Spirit of '75

The Spirit of 1775 was a true American Spirit. It was a dollars-and-cents revolt against an unfair economic situation. People were fed up . . . with the Stamp Act, with all the unnecessarily high prices. So they did something about it. That was the true beginning of the American Revolution. It was only later that the intellectuals, philosophers, and soldiers got into the act. The Revolution of 1776 really began as a pocketbook revolt in 1775. Lowe's salutes the spirit of '75 . . . and it appears that history is repeating itself. Today, stamps are more expensive than ever, tax and other food items are at an all-time high, and people are beginning to do something about it. They're being more demanding in the products they buy and the prices they pay. If you agree that part of the Spirit of 1975 is a quest for lower prices and better values, Lowe's is with you. We don't sell stamps or tea bags, but we do sell over 7,500 other items lots of people need at prices they like. Just look at Lowe's Spirit of '75 prices!
