Kay's Kitchen

— By Kay Fisher

We are now in the peak of the "apple season." So my mind turns to using this all round delicious fruit. As you probably know by this time, I'm great for serving any fruit or vegetables in season. We are just lucky fresh apples are with us thru most of the winter. Then we can look forward to the Early Transparent ones.

Naturally my mind goes to apple pie with good cheddar cheese. I'll give you a good basic recipe and you can serve it with anything you like—cream, cheese or ice cream.

APPLE PIE

Pare 5 to 7 tart apples and slice then. (I prefer Johnathan or Winesap). Use enough apples to fill generously a 9-inch pastry shell.

Combine ¾ to 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, and a dash of salt; mix with apples. Fill 9-inch pastry lined pie pan; dot with 2 or 3 tablespoons butter.

Cover with top pastry and seal edges. For shiny top, brush crust with milk before baking. For sparkle, sprinkle lightly with sugar. Be sure to cut small slits in some form of design for steam to escape.

Bake in hot oven at 400 degrees about 50 minutes.

If apples are not tart add a teaspoon of lemon juice. A bit of grated lemon peel adds greatly to the flavor.

APPLE CRUMB PIE

5 to 7 tart apples sliced thin or enough to fill a 9-inch pastry-lined pie pan

½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sugar
¾ cup flour
½ cup margarine

Combine ½ cup sugar with the cinnamon; sprinkle over apples in pastry shell. Combine ½ cup sugar with the flour and cut in the margarine until crumbly. Sprinkle over apples. Bake in hot oven at 400 degrees about 40 minutes or until done. Serve with whipped cream and a sprinkle of mixed sugar and cinnamon.

The following is a recipe from one of my cousins in England. I notice he has named it for his wife. If the recipe sounds a bit odd to you, try it anyway because it is delicious. Here is a part of his letter written to Kay's Kitchen and his recipe—"Apple Mollieback."

"If you do include 'quickies' for the harassed housewife who has had an afternoon at a bridge party, collected the kids from school on the way home and arrived home 10 minutes before dear husband, the following is offered as a sweet.

'APPLE MOLLIEBAKE'

Core the apple, fill with seedless raisins, garnish with a tablespoon of 'black treacle' (dark syrup or molasses). Cook in oven. By the time the main course is finished, this should be ready to serve with thick cream to taste. It is as delicious as the dish that cooks it for me."—Charles Stapeley, Dartford Kent, England

Law requires license to care for children

Kentucky law requires that anyone providing care for four or more children, outside of the children's own homes and who are not related to the provider must obtain a license from the Department for Human Resources and meet existing regulations so that adequate care will be assured.

Many citizens who provide care for children are not aware of the need to obtain a license at the Division of Licensing and Regulation, Department for Human Resources, 107 Bridge Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, phone 502-564-7960.

Mrs. Whaley is honored by RECC

FLEMINGSBURG (Special)—Mrs. Lutie Whaley, co-founder of Fleming Mason Rural Electric Cooperative and a member of the Board of Directors for 37 years, has received statewide recognition for the part she played in organizing the Cooperative. The awards program, held in conjunction with the 29th Annual Meeting of the Kentucky Association of Rural Electric Cooperatives, paid special tribute to the nine Original Incorporators of local Rural Electric Cooperatives in the state.

Mrs. Whaley not only served as a Director but also as secretary-treasurer of Fleming Mason RECC for 23 years.

Mrs. Whaley, wife of C.R. Whaley, widely known retired farmer and winner of the State-Master Farmer Award in 1940, was also honored in 1964 by being selected by NRECA as the subject for the "Director in Profile" feature in the NRECA Management Quarterly magazine.

Mr. and Mrs. Whaley now reside near Maysleick after having spent most of their married life in Fleming county.

In presenting the honor to Mrs. Whaley, Louis B. Strong, president of the statewide Association, noted how, during the years prior to 1938, rural residents of the Fleming Mason area had to settle for second class lifestyle without the advantages of electricity as were enjoyed by city residents. Strong said that public spirited people such as Mrs. Whaley through their capable leadership were responsible for the formation of the Cooperatives.

Fleming Mason RECC, incorporated on March 18, 1938 with 330 members has now grown to serve 11,797 members on 2,435 lines of line in eight counties.

The Kentucky Association of Electric Cooperatives was formed in 1942 by J.K. Smith, first manager of Fleming Mason RECC and now Governor of the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corp. located in Washington, D.C. It serves 22 Rural Electric Distribution Cooperatives and two Generating Cooperatives in the state. Over one million Kentuckians are served by member-owned cooperatives that associate on a statewide basis for efficient and effective programing and service.

Mrs. Whaley is one of the few women directors in the nation, has an enviable record of dedicated service and her honors are richly deserved.
