Nicholas County's unemployment lowest in Ky.

FRANKFORT—The Bluegrass area's unemployment rate is lower than the state rate, according to statistics released Friday by the Department for Human Resources (DHR). In July, the state rate was 6.3 per cent while the area's was only 4.8, or an estimated 1.5 million people.

Robert MacDonald, chief statistician in DHR's Bureau for Manpower Services, points out that the unemployment picture is brighter than it was in June, when the state posted an 8.1 per cent rate. MacDonald credits the improvement to two factors, a decrease in unemployment insurance claims and in-school youths who have dropped out of the labor force. Nicholas county has a 3.3 rate, the area's lowest.

Nurses to meet

The Kentucky Nurses Association, District No. 20, will sponsor a Continuing Education program on Thursday, Sept. 11, at the Mayville Community College from 4:00 until 7:00 p.m.

Dr. Jean Hayter, R.N., and Professor in the College of Nursing at the University of Kentucky will present the program entitled "Understanding the Aging Patient."

The class is open to all registered nurses, graduate nurses, and licensed practical nurses and 6 or four hours of continuing education units will be earned from the lecture. The fee will be $5 for KNA members and $10 for non-members and will include a chicken box dinner.

Also, the nursing students from Mayville Community College and the practical nurse students of Haywood Hospital are invited and urged to attend and their only cost will be for the dinner. Persons interested in attending this one day session should send their name and fee to Mrs. James Glenn, Maple Leaf Road, Mayville, Ky. 41066 by Monday, Sept. 8.

Newspaper to publish fishing, boating column

by Donovan Smith

If you enjoy watersports such as boating and fishing you probably also enjoy reading about these activities. Unfortunately, throughout the state very little newspaper coverage is devoted to these forms of recreation. Therefore, beginning next week The Mercury will publish a weekly column by Donovan Smith entitled "Kentucky Watersports."

Don has been an avid angler for many years. For the past seven years he has worked in the marine sales field, first as a salesman for Kentuckiana Yacht Sales in Jeffersonville, Ind., and later as a general manager of Soveg Marine in Elizabethtown. During these years he has been active in boating and fishing organizations and has served on national dealer councils for marine manufacturers. His column will be based on this experience and will appear in several Kentucky newspapers.

Don, his wife Penny, and children, Craig and Cindy, live in Vine Grove. Here are his comments to our readers:

Welcome aboard!
This state the Indians called "Happy Hunting Ground" could today quite appropriately be renamed "The Land of Watersports." Kentucky provides water recreation for millions of people each year and is generally considered to be the playground for mid-America. Combined watersports business such as boat manufacturing, marine sales, tackle sales, tourism and other related enterprises rank third in the state in revenue produced, behind only coal production and agriculture.

Watersports participants in Kentucky exceed 12 million people. Why is this so? What does the Bluegrass State offer to account for Beach Atlantic College, West Palm Beach, Fla.

While doing postgraduate work at the University of Kentucky for the past three years, she was employed by the Fayette County Board of Education as an Adult Basic Education teacher, conducting home classes and teaching English at the Lexington Blue-Grass Army Depot and at the University of Kentucky. She also did substitute teaching in the Fayette County Public Schools.

Starting Sept. 11, night classes in Adult Basic Education will be conducted at Nicholas County High School. In addition to her regular daytime assignments as English teacher there, Mrs. Tinnin will be teaching night classes in English. Having moved from Lexington, Mrs. Tinnin is now residing at East Chestnut Street here in Carlisle.

Squirrel hunting laws discussed

FRANKFORT—Aug. 27—Squirrel hunting season has returned to Kentucky and many landowners are discovering a change in procedure dealing with hunters and fishermen on private land without permission.

Due to a change in Kentucky's penal code a Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources no longer has jurisdiction over those hunting or fishing without permission on private land. The power to arrest has shifted to local peace officers. The change occurred with no prior knowledge of the department, which worked for passage of the former law in 1960.

Under the 1960 law, a conservation officer could arrest a person hunting or fishing without permission on written complaint of the landowner if the CO was already on the land. An arrest could also be made on the CO's initiative.

Under provisions of the new penal code, a landowner must swear a warrant to be served by a local peace officer, sheriff or state policeman. Conservation officers can no longer arrest for hunting and fishing without permission.

According to A.H. Henson, director of the department's Division of Law Enforcement, landowners should first inquire of a local peace officer if he has unauthorized vehicles on his land. The landowner should then locate trespassers and ask that they leave. A warrant can then be obtained from the county judge for the arrest of the guilty parties.

Landowners can also contact a local peace officer. If the peace officer witnesses the trespass, no warrant is needed. Otherwise, a warrant must be obtained.

Under the former law on hunting and fishing without permission, a fine of not less than $15 or more than $100 was levied. The current penal code divides trespassing into three degrees. The change applicable to hunting and fishing trespass at least carry a fine of no more than $250. A trespasser is also liable for damage he may cause while hunting or fishing without permission.

It is the legal responsibility of any person to obtain permission from the landowner before entering private property to hunt or fish. Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commissioner Arnold Mitchell says, "Good sportsmanship demands abiding by any restriction a landowner may place on the sportsman and a respect for crops, fences and other private property. Without this, criminal and civil court action and more closing of private lands to hunting will result."

Four bands to play Sept. 20 UK game

Four of Kentucky's finest high school bands will be performing guests at the second annual Kentucky Inland National Band Day Saturday, Sept. 20, during halftime of the Kentucky-Kansas football game in UK's Commonwealth Stadium.

The bands, selected for their musicianship and marching, are Meade County High School, Brandenburg; Paul Davis, director; Henry Clay High School, Lexington, Brian Gerrell, director; Franklin County High School, Frankfort, Tom Brawner, director; and Davina County High School, Owensboro, Edie Wilk, director.

UK's director of bands, W. Harry Clarke, and his staff have "scouted" the state's 475-200 bands all year, attending marching festivals and concerts, in order to make their selections for this second band day at UK.

With the UK Wildcat Marching Band, there will be a total of 800 musicians, majorettes, flag-and-rifle-bearers in the 15-minute halftime show.

Richard G. Levery, Washington, D.C., principal recreation planner for the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

Inquiries about the conference, which is open to the public, should be directed to Boyce Driskell or Richard Dexter, Department of Anthropology, Lafferty Hall, UK, Lexington, Ky. 40506. The telephone number is (606) 258-2850.

Heritage conference scheduled Sept. 5

County attorneys and judges, environmental lawyers and local land planners, engineers, historians and concerned citizens from over the Commonwealth have been invited to a day-long conference Friday, Sept. 5 at the University of Kentucky, called Kentucky's Heritage: A Public Concern.

Registration is at 8 a.m. in the ballroom of UK's Student Center, where all subsequent meetings will be held.

The conference will examine the state's energy needs and the laws protecting historic and prehistoric sites, and ask, "Are these laws just?"

The conference is sponsored by the University of Kentucky Department of Anthropology, the Kentucky League of Women Voters and the Kentucky Heritage Commission. It is made possible through a grant from the Kentucky Humanities Council, which receives funds from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Dr. Laibel Duffield, UK associate professor of anthropology who is also the state archaeologist, will moderate two panels of speakers on the topics "Preservation: The Advantages and Disadvantages," and "Preservation and the Law."

Among the guest panelists are Buddy
