When you think of pests,

think of me.

I can get the termites out of your house. And the ants, cockroaches, spiders or mice. And keep them out. I can get any pest out of your house (except maybe your in-laws).

Wash tiled floors and walls with a diluted solution of chlorine bleach. If mildew has discolored the grouting in between tiles in your bathroom, you can make a "thick paste" about the consistency of toothpaste with household bleach and baking soda. Apply the paste and scrub it with a toothbrush. Rinse with clean water and wipe dry.

You can buy other products that will help you route out mildew. Antimicrobial preservatives will help and fungicides and special aerosol sprays will stop the mold growth.

If you have a cellar with a dirt floor, sprinkle chloride of lime on it, wait till the moisture is gone, then sweep up the lime.

Protecting damp and musty books from further damage is a real problem. They should be aired thoroughly and dried out as soon as possible. If they're very damp, sprinkle cornstarch or talcum powder between the pages to take up the moisture. Leave it on several hours, then brush off. Use paradichlorobenzene or paraformaldehyde in a closed cabinet or other closed storage area to stop mold growth. These same precautions should be used to protect old snapshots and photographs from mildew.
