FRANKFORT—While summer is not over, it isn't too early to be looking forward to some important issues that will be debated in the 1976 session of the General Assembly, starting Jan. 6. There are going to be some highly controversial issues and some emotional issues. One of the most emotional issues probably will be an effort to rescind the state's approval of the federal Equal Rights Amendment. There is strong feeling among some women's groups that the equal rights amendment should not be approved, and there is just as strong feeling on the other side.

Repeat of the fair trade laws on milk and distilled spirits proposals will have strong opposition and some conservative groups support repeal. One of the hottest issues will be the proposed measure for collective bargaining for all public employees. The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, the Kentucky School Boards Association, the Municipal League and Associated Industries of Kentucky are likely to be the strong opponents. For the issue there is likely to be a litany of the biggest lobbying battles during the session.

While the bill has been drafted about the fuel-adjustment charge now allowed to utility firms, if the price of coal doesn't level off, there likely will be some effort to change it, but nobody now seems to know what route to take. It will at least get discussed. The coal producing counties are going to want to rescind their claim to a share of the coal severance tax. Now the counties receive one-half the surplus above the budget estimate of $44 million for this fiscal year. In July of this year, the first month of the state's fiscal year budget, the severance tax produced $677,963. The proposed "power equalization" bill, discussed in this column some time back, for education might develop into a controversial issue, although it is now labeled an administration bill.

Scouts petition Gov. to name bridge for founder

Sept. 13 will be the day that 30 Boy Scouts and their leaders leave Northern Kentucky on a 166 mile canoe trip with a mission—to deliver petitions containing some 20,000 signatures and resolutions passed by a number of Northern Kentucky organizations to the Governor of the state. The documents call for the new I-75 bridge between Northern Kentucky and Cincinnati to be named in honor of Daniel Carter Beard, founder of the Boy Scouts of America.

Beard, born in 1856, was raised in Covington. He founded the Boy Scout movement in 1906. His boyhood home still stands in Covington, where he has been designated a national historical shrine. The Scouts will paddle their canoes, carrying a collection of historical flags, from the Ohio and Kentucky rivers to Frankfort to their rendezvous with Governor Carroll.

Decent burley support price wanted by Perkins

"The fight to try to get a decent support price for our burley tobacco farmers took a major step forward today when a new support bill I am backing all the way was reported favorably by the House Agriculture Committee," Rep. Carl D. Perkins said. "I am going to do everything I can to get improved burley support legislation through the House of Representatives," Rep. Perkins added. "Unless we pass a new support bill thousands of small tobacco farmers will be broke by Christmas."

Rep. Perkins said the new bill compares the support price for burley in a different way than the present system. "That would break the backs of our burley farmers," Rep. Perkins said. "By going to the present system, the support price would be $10.00, and that is a considerable improvement," he said. "I would actually be able to pay much higher," he added.

Under the present system the 1976 price would be $10.00, without a change in the legislation. If the change Rep. Perkins is fighting for is approved by the House, as he predicted, the 1976 price would be $12.75, without a change in the legislation. If the change Rep. Perkins is fighting for is approved by the House, as he predicted, the 1976 price would be $12.75, without a change in the legislation.

KU works toward additional units at Ghent Station

Kentucky Utilities Company announced that it was taking steps which it hopes will lead to early environmental approval of additional generating units at its Ghent Power Station in Carroll county on the Ohio River. W.A. Duncan, Lexington, KU president, said it has sent to the Environmental Protection Agency a proposal seeking approval of a consulting firm to prepare an environmental assessment statement in conjunction with EPA for the additional units.

He said the study and preparation of the Environmental Assessment Statement is expected to be completed in about a year. The statement is the first step in meeting the requirements of Federal and State agencies before permits and approvals can be obtained and construction begun. The studies planned for the Environmental Assessment Statement include water quality, air quality, land use and other environmental and socioeconomic considerations.

Headquaters group of homemakers meet

By Mrs. Frank Gudgeff On Tuesday, Sept. 2, Mrs. Margie Wilson, 13 members of the headquaters Homemakers, and a new member, Mrs. Marina Sexton met with Mrs. Webb Buntin. Mrs. Reynolds Allison, president, presided. She gave the devotional and read a poem, "The Joy of Growing." Mrs. John Clinkenbeard led the group in singing "My Old Kentucky Home."

Mrs. James Sundry read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report. The roll call was answered by "How I'd like to improve my community."

The need for laws to be carried out if we have them concerning the large number of dogs that roam the town and county. If we have no such law, one should be made by the proper authorities.

National problems were discussed. Everyone was urged to vote not for the party but for the individual who is best suited for the office. We felt the most important thing was for all nations to turn to God and not away from Him. We'd appreciate anyone who wants to join our club to contact our president. We need younger women to belong. Everyone is welcome regardless of race or religion.

The members listed the quartets of things canned and frozen. A report on fall fashions was given. After lunch the yearbook was completed. The lesson was given by Mrs. Reynolds Allison. She displayed some things of the past that could be used in our kitchens of today. Hanging baskets and vines are becoming very popular.

Mrs. A.V. Allison was in charge of recreation.
