Jerry Rosser wins national grocery award

Jerry Rosser, owner of IGA stores in Nicholas County, Kentucky, has won the national award for excellence in grocery merchandising at the IGA's 50th anniversary convention held in Chicago, Ill.

He received a plaque and golf club from IGA's National Retailer Award—1976.

Over $600,000 worth of merchandise was sold at the convention at McCracken Place, including 40 other retailers from the district.

At present, the sheriff's office serves both county and circuit courts as bailiff and officers of the court. City police performed this duty for city courts.

The four new areas Gov. Carroll suggested last week that may be put in the call for the special session are arising workers' compensation insurance, no-fault automobile insurance rates, a huge bond issue for sewer construction in Jefferson County, and the death penalty.

Gov. Carroll and legislative leaders decided during the regular session that the new court system is too much to deal with at that time without much needed study and planning for passing legislation to cover the new court system.

The Jefferson County bond issue came up during the regular session, but it floundered when representatives from Jefferson County couldn't agree on the subject.

These crucial situations and others where special sessions are necessary need to indicate the need for annual legislative sessions, but the people have consistently turned them down on referendums.
