plants in Carlisle and Paris. They are the only product manufactured in Kentucky especially for use in the XXI Olympic Games.

Wayne Shumate, BGI chief executive officer, stated that the unit was selected five months ago by the United States Olympic Committee. The BGI plants have been producing this special pattern for over two months.

The boy's and girl's swimsuits, to be worn in July by the Olympic Swim Team at the games in Montreal, were manufactured exclusively at the BGI

University of Kentucky.

In 1962, Shumate went to work for Blue Grass Industries, an undergarment manufacturer in Carlisle. Starting as a line supervisor, he was soon promoted to product manager, and two years later became assistant general manager. In 1969, he was promoted to general manager for both Blue Grass Industries plants. Shortly thereafter Shumate became the company's chief sales representative in addition to his responsibilities for all phases of manufacturing, and Mrs. Virginia Crump, BGI production manager at Paris, as the male swimsuit model listens. He is Jeff Pich of Versailles, a student at Indiana University.—Mercury photo

Great American Happenings

1834: We reap what we've sown.

We're pretty self-reliant people. Our farming feeds us, gives us an income, and, hard and trying as it is, becomes the way of life for thousands of our families. Lately, farming has become a little easier. And we're able to accomplish a little more. Thanks to a new metal plow. And a bright fellow named Cyrus McCormick, who's just made us our first mechanical reaper and keeps improving on it. Now, we can really take advantage of our fertile soil. We can make a grand success of our farms on the prairie. We can move our farms into the West. We can realize our grand dreams of exporting grain. Looks like this McCormick isn't going to stop with just a bright idea. We predict he'll teach us a lot about manufacturing, just as he has about farming. We may even make farming a big business someday. ☺

A history of bell ringing

On April 19, 1975, the bells in Boston joyfully announced the beginning of the city's Bicentennial celebration. The date also marked the 200th anniversary of Paul Revere's historic ride, and appropriately, the bell in the Old North Church chimed in.

As a young lad, Paul Revere is said to have been one of the church's bell ringers. His interest in bells continued, and in 1792 he cast his first church bell—a rather "crude casting with a relatively raspy note," Paul Revere and Sons went on to cast 397 more church bells, most of them smooth and better tuned than the first attempt. Only 100 of those bells have survived in their original form.

Throughout the ages, bells have been the voices of history. They have pealed in victory or tolled to signal the beginning of battles. They have sounded fire alarms, announced curfews, mourned for the dead and celebrated births. Bells have summoned laborers to their work, given notice when the lord of the manor's oven was ready to bake bread, signaled shop owners to open the market place, and announced dinner.

Some of the bells that rang out in England when World War II broke had previously sounded to celebrate the signing of the Magna Carta in 1215. Some English bells have tolled the death of every English ruler since King John died in 1216.

A number of English or European folk tales tell of bells buried in the earth that still can be heard ringing by who puts his ear to the ground on Christmas morning.

In ancient China, batteries of small bells kept in a temple or palace served as standard pitches for tuning musical instruments. Some doubled as standard relatively raspy note.

The early Greeks and Romans knew nothing of bells that could be heard throughout the town. Ancient peoples had only small square-mouthed bells which were often hung about the necks of sheep and cattle.

After A.D. 204, when Christianity was established as the state religion of the Roman Empire, the Christians began to use bells in their churches. At first the bells were small. Gradually they became larger and were hung in high towers. In the fifth century A.D. the first large bell was hung atop a Christian church in the Italian Campagna. The practice was approved in 806 by Pope Sabastian.

By the Middle Ages church bells were rung to get attention—announce fires, floods, deaths and so on. Generally, though, the largest bell in the church belonged to the town, not the church. Whoever commanded the bell commanded the town, and a conqueror usually acknowledged the political importance of the bells by melting them down and casting his own.

Ringers, however, were in the lowest order of feudal priority, along with the doorknobs and floor scrubbers.

England's monotonous method of simply ringing bells by repeating their order finally gave way to "change ringing" with more elaborate variations played on five to 12 bells.

In the Low Countries, the chime grew into the carillon. The invention in the 16th century of the carillon machine or "chime barrel" turned the carillon into an over-sized automatic music box.

Football practice to begin July 12

The 1976 Nicholas County football team will begin practice on July 12, at 7 p.m. at the high school. Coach Ben Pumphrey urges all interested boys to attend. Also at this practice a summer track program will be implemented.
