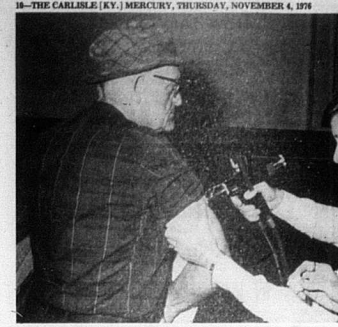
Towles named Courier veep



Mrs. Robert Sparks vaccinates Clifton Fryman at the Swine Flu Clinic held at the Elementary School last Thursday. Mrs. Wayne Rawlings, a Community Woman's Club member, assists. The local club members helped throughout the clinic and later furnished refreshments for the workers. 898 persons were inoculated. The vaccine will be given again Nov. 9, 10 and 11 from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon and 1-4 p.m. at the Health Center. Transportation for those needing it is available by calling the Carlisle Community Center at 289-7172. —Duncan photo

Donald B. Towles has been named vice president and Director of Public Affairs for The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times, effective Dec. 1.

Towles was named Director of Circulation for the newspapers in 1971 after holding successive positions as Public Service Manager, Assistant Director and Director of the Public Service and Promotion Department. He was made a vice president of the papers in 1974.

Towles is a native of Lawrenceburg, and a graduate of the high school there. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky where he received a degree in Journalism. In 1948, he was appointed editor of "In Kentucky" magazine and assistant director of publicity for the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Beginning in 1952 Towles spent 19 months overseas with the U.S. Army. His tour took him to Japan, Korea and Okinawa, first working in military intelligence and later as a roving correspondent and photographer with Pacific Stars and Stripes.

He returned to his job with the State in 1954, but left in 1955 to join the Louisville newspapers.

Towles is a former Eagle Scout and had helped with volunteer Scout projects for several years. In 1962 he received the Seneca District President's Award for outstanding service. In 1967, he was honored for service to scouting by Beargrass Christian Church, where he also serves as an elder.

Towles is a member of the board of directors of the Kentucky Press Association, and has served as legislative co-chairman and chairman of the Newspaper in the Classroom committee. In 1972, the association presented him its President's Cup for outstanding service.

He is a past director of the International Newspaper Promotion Association and has also served as president of the INPA - Southern Region.

He has been active in many civic projects, including service on committees of the Louisville Fund, the Louisville Area Chamber of Commerce, the Louisville Development Committee, the United Appeal, and the Jefferson County Task Force on Efficiency in County Government.

He is married to the former Gerry Gooch of Somerset, and has two daughters.

Guards begin membership drive

FRANKFORT—The Kentucky Army National Guard began its second major recruiting of the drive for the year Nov. 1, according to Maj. Gen. Richard L. Frymire, the state's adjutant general. The goal is 500 new enlistments.

An earlier campaign brought in 786 recruits, and this one is designed to bring all Kentucky Guards units to full strength.

Lt. Col. Armando J. Alfaro, recruiting and retention officer, explained that the Guard has remained above 90 per cent strength during a very difficult year.

"Six years ago several of our units returned from a tour of Vietnam and we had an almost complete membership turnover. We spent much time getting people to fill the vacancies then, but many who came in for six years are now leaving us," he said. "Of course we're also working without a draft, so we have to sell our programs even more."

The 1976 General Assembly provided several incentives that have already begun to bring dividends. Frymire cited the Guard's tuition assistance program as a "great recruiting tool."

Under that program, members of the Kentucky National Guard may receive reimbursement of up to 50 per cent of tuition fees at state-supported universities, community colleges, and vocational schools.

Alfaro noted that Guard members will be actively seeking prospective recruits during the month and inviting many people to see Guard facilities and equipment.

"We've got a lot to offer," Alfaro concluded, "and we find that we have little trouble getting members as more and more people learn what we do and what we offer."

Mrs. Rapp in California

Mrs. Brenda Rapp, daughter of Mrs. Arnold Mattox and the late Mr. Mattox has arrived in Los Angeles, Calif. where she has obtained work for the following year. She spent several weeks enroute, visiting with relatives and friends in Texas, Arizona and other places and also visited with her aunt, Mrs. Mary M. Ellis, Palm Springs, Calif.

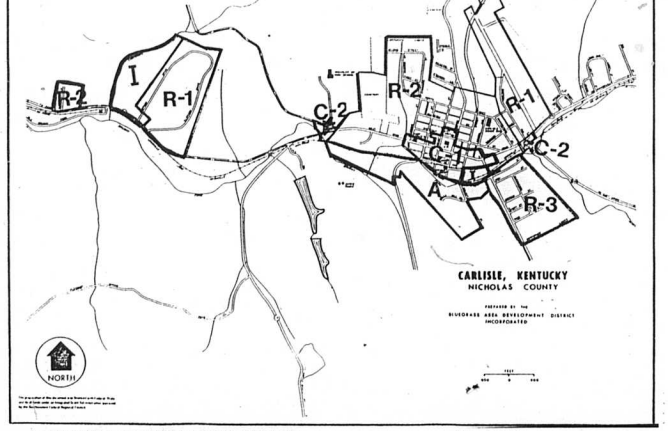
LEGAL NOTICE



ZONING ORDINANCE

On August 9, 1976, the Carlisle City Council adopted a new comprehensive plan, zoning ordinance and subdivision regulations. This action was the result of a movement to reinstate an active planning program within the City of Carlisle. These new documents were required because in 1972 the Joint City/County Planning Commission, which previously was responsible for planning in the area, disbanded and could not be reorganized.

The need for community planning has become increasingly evident in recent years as difficult decisions affecting the economic, transportation, utility and land use patterns of the community must be made in the near future. It is through the planning structure that the elected leaders of Carlisle can be given the facts and information on which to base their decisions affecting the future of Carlisle.

In Carlisle, the planning program works this way. An advisory board of five members is appointed by the Mayor and approved by the City Council. This board consists of four citizen members and a representative of the City Council. The Commission is aided by an attorney, a zoning enforcement officer/building inspector, and a planning advisor from the Bluegrass Area Development District (BGADD). The duties of the Planning Commission are to insure the enforcement of the zoning ordinance and subdivision regulations, and to advise the elected officials on planning matters, as the need arises.

The Planning Commission is guided in its decisions by a Comprehensive Plan, a document adopted by the City. The Comprehensive Plan concentrates on several areas which are important to Carlisle's future, such as the transportation system, the utility network, the economy and future land use. It then recommends suggested courses of action in each area. The Plan was prepared with input from both the Planning Commission and City Council, and the BGADD. To implement the recommendations made in the Plan, the Commission uses a zoning ordinance to regulate future construction and insure that provisions for adequate yard space. This also insures that the proposed use is in accordance with and does not detract value from surrounding properties. The Planning Commission also uses the subdivision regulations to insure that new subdivisions within and adjacent to Carlisle will be constructed to quality standards. By following subdivision regulation standards, the City will not be forced to assume substandard streets and utility systems.

The Comprehensive Plan, Zoning Ordinance and Subdivision Regulations assure that Carlisle will be an orderly and attractive community in the year 1990. The planning process worked well in many cities, both small and large, if the general community takes an active interest. However, it has also failed miserably in others where an interest was not taken. Many citizens and leaders have shown that they are interested by their efforts to promote the planning process, but the efforts of many different community groups such as : merchants' organizations, civic organizations, church groups and the general citizenry are also needed. The Planning Commission invites the general public to attend its meetings.

This ordinance does not require that any structure, which is currently in use, be moved to an appropriate district. However, in the event that the use is terminated or is destroyed, it may not be replaced unless it is an appropriate use in that zone.

If, however, a property owner desires that a parcel of land be rezoned, the proper course of action is through the zone change procedures set forth in the zoning ordinance.

WHO WAS THAT LADY?

Born in 1865 to an Irish immigrant machinist in Rochester, N.Y., an enterprising young woman studied at Cornell University and later saved her father's business several times from bankruptcy with her business and sales ability. She did not invent the bevel gear planer that was first produced by her family's firm, but was so skilled in selling it that many famous industrialists attributed its design to her. Among them was Henry Ford who declared once it was "the most remarkable machine work ever done by a woman." Who was that lady? Kate Gleason.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle then make it off list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.

You are now eligible to buy National Flood Insurance

With this community's participation in the National Flood Insurance Program, every resident can buy low-cost, federally-subsidized flood insurance.

This insurance covers residential, business and farm structures and their contents. Flood damage is not covered by the ordinary homeowners policy.

Because of the reasonable rates and the long-standing need for national flood insurance—and the fact it is new—this is the fastest growing insurance program in America.

The program is a joint venture of the federal government and the insurance industry.

Protect your home and business properly immediately from flooding. For details, contact your insurance agent or broker.
