

KU officers give presentation

Kentucky is not only attractive to tourists and agricultural interests, but also provides favorable locations for industrial growth, Kentucky Utilities Company president W. A. Duncan said yesterday in a presentation before the New York Society for Security Analysts.

Representatives of Kentucky Utilities Company were invited to speak before the Security Analysts on Sept. 22. Participating in the presentation were Duncan and KU vice president John T. Newton. These presentations are made periodically upon invitation.

Discussing KU's service area, Duncan highlighted the important economic developments in Kentucky and their corresponding effects upon the company. He noted that the new Lexington Civic Center is expected to attract thousands of visitors to the area annually and that the Kentucky Horse Park near Lexington is expected to enhance the state's important horse industry.

"Further economic improvements in the area is expected not only because of favorable locations for industry, but also because of the proclaimed dedication of economic development by the Governor of the Commonwealth and his staff," Duncan said, citing Governor Roy Harris' recent opening of a European economic development office to attract new jobs for Kentuckians.

German industrialists seek site

USDA proposes grade loan rates for 1976 barley

A proposed schedule of grade loan rates for 1976 crop barley tobacco was announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The proposed loan rates range from 75 to 100 cents per pound and reflect an average support of 109.3 cents per pound—12 cents per pound above the 1976 level.

As in the past, no loans will be available on unthreshed grade No. 1 U.S. (unround), U.S. (doubled keeping round) or Scotch. Marketings of European economic development office to attract new jobs for Kentuckians.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT SWINE INFLUENZA (FLU) VACCINE (MONOVALENT)

GENERAL POPULATION 18 AND OLDER July 16, 1978

The Disease
Influenza (flu) is caused by viruses. When people get the flu they may have fever, chills, headache, dry cough or muscle aches. Illness may last several days or a week or more, and complete recovery is usual. However, complications may lead to pneumonia or death in some people. For the elderly and people with diabetes or heart, lung, or kidney diseases, flu may be especially serious. It is unlikely that you have adequate protection against swine flu, since it has not caused widespread human outbreaks in 45 years.

The Vaccine
The vaccine will not give you flu because it is made from killed viruses. Today's flu vaccines cause fewer side effects than those used in the past. In contrast with some other vaccines, flu vaccine can be taken safely during pregnancy.

One shot will protect most people from swine flu during the next flu season; however, either a second shot or a different dosage may be required for persons under age 25. If you are under 25 and a notice regarding such information is not attached, this information will be provided to you whenever you receive the vaccine.

Possible Vaccine Side Effects
Most people will have no side effects from the vaccine. However, tenderness at the site of the shot may occur and last for several days. Some people will also have fever, chills, headache, or muscle aches within the first 48 hours.

Special Precautions
As with any vaccine or drug, the possibility of severe or potentially fatal reactions exists. However, the vaccine has rarely been associated with severe or fatal reactions. In some instances people receiving vaccine have had allergic reactions. You should note very carefully the following precautions:

- Children under a certain age should not routinely receive the flu vaccine. Please ask about age limitation of this information if not attached.
- People with known allergy to egg should receive the vaccine only under special medical supervision.
- People with fever should delay getting vaccinated until the fever is gone.
- People who have received another type of vaccine in the past 14 days should consult a physician before taking the flu vaccine.

If you have any questions about flu or flu vaccine, please ask.

No cropland to be set-aside

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butts announced there will be no cropland set-aside in 1977. This decision followed the conclusion of a two-day meeting in Washington, of the national advisory committees on grain and cotton.

The decision for continued unrestricted production is based on the continuing strong export demand for grain, particularly for livestock feeding. Under the 1973 farm act, farmers have been given freedom to shift crops without restrictive acre allotments.

In 1977, as in the present year, producers may substitute any non-conserving crop (except marketing quota crops) or any conserving crop (including volunteer cover) used for hay or for grazing in order to preserve their land, feed grain or cotton allotments. Next year will be the fourth consecutive year for the feed grain and wheat program and the fifth for the cotton program which no set-aside was required. About 40 million acres of cropland have been brought back into production since 1972.

Maps to depict boundaries of county property

A new project was begun on Sept. 16 to construct maps showing the location and boundaries of all property in Nicholas county. This work is being done to meet the requirements of a state law (KRS 132.670) which states: "The Department of Revenue shall prepare detailed maps identifying every parcel of real property within each county of the state by July 1, 1982."

Eighty-eight of the 120 counties in Kentucky have already been mapped under this program, and six additional counties presently have mapping projects in progress. Only 26 counties remain where mapping has not yet been started.

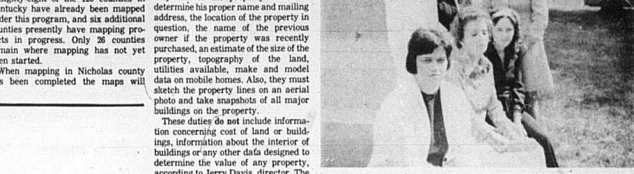

When mapping in Nicholas county has been completed the maps will become a part of the permanent records in the Nicholas County Property Valuation Administrators' office where they will be kept up-to-date to reflect the current ownership of each individual parcel of real estate in the county.

Seven local people have been employed to gather and record information necessary for the completion of these maps. Their duties require that they talk to the property owner to determine his proper name and mailing address, the location of the property in question, the name of the previous owner if the property was recently purchased, an estimate of the size of the property, topography of the land, utilities available, make and model data on mobile homes. Also, they must sketch the property lines on an aerial photo and take snapshots of all major buildings on the property.

These duties do not include information concerning cost of land or building, information about the interior of buildings or any other data designed to determine the value of any property, according to Jerry Davis, director. The mapping project is purely a census type operation designed to aid the Property Valuation Administrator in establishing more accurate and orderly records so that he can perform his duties in a fair and equitable manner.

During the third month of operation basic field work was completed on approximately one third of all rural parcels in the county. Most of this work has been done in the southeastern half of the county, but work is now in progress in most areas of the county except for the northern portion. Work will probably not begin in the City of Carlisle until sometime this winter, Davis said.

Jerry Davis, a qualified mapping technician with the Kentucky Department of Revenue, is directing the day-to-day operations of the Nicholas County Mapping Project. Anyone desiring further information about the project should contact Davis at 289-2342. Davis, originally from Lawrenceburg, estimated that it will take approximately 10 months to complete the project locally. In the meantime, he is living in Carlisle.

Some of the local persons who have helped with the mapping are standing. Debbie Vice and Brenda Buckler; seated, Phyllis Siders, Vana Robinson and Kathy Allen.
