Survey shows

8 out of 10 brought in by advertisement buy

An advertising research study released in New York recently shows that eight out of 10 shoppers brought into the store by newspaper advertising make some kind of purchase.

It also shows that the shoppers spend as much for other goods, on the average, as they do for the advertised items.

The findings were reported in a study conducted by the Newspaper Advertising Bureau and published in a news story in the Publishers Auxiliary, the newspapers' newspaper.

The study measured the response to advertising for seven items in seven stores located in major metropolitan markets in the United States and Canada.

Shoppers were interviewed in the stores, and again at home by telephone, to determine the full range of their shopping activities.

The report found that 60 percent of the customers shopping for an item the day after the store ran a newspaper ad, had seen the advertising.

Other findings were:

—Sixty percent of the shoppers bought the advertised items and 34 percent bought the advertised item plus some other merchandise in the store.

—Another 21 percent bought only other merchandise.

—Less than 1 percent bought nothing in the store on that day.

The study also found that newspaper ads offer the newspaper advertiser a competitive edge. Seventy-five percent of the shoppers who bought the advertised items, and who had seen the newspaper ads, had not looked in any other store.

The report also found that 64 percent of those who bought the test items had been motivated to shop by newspaper ads for those items. Another 7 percent, the report said, were motivated to shop by other newspaper advertising, while 29 percent of the shoppers were in the store for reasons not connected with advertising.

Forty percent of the shoppers brought into the store by the ads who went on to buy other items said they were aware of advertising for these other items.

On the average, the study said, the customers matched each dollar they spent for the advertised items with another dollar spent for other purchases in the store that day.

The advertised items were dresses, motor oil and anti-freeze, digital watch, pants suit, coffeemaker, mattress and sheets and pillow cases.

The study said the rate of conversion of shoppers to buyers varied by the kind of merchandise. Among the shoppers brought into the store by the ad for motor oil and anti-freeze, for example, nearly nine out of 10 purchased the sale item. By comparison, 16 percent of those brought into the store by the dress ad bought the advertised merchandise.

Survey of Kentucky equine industry planned

The Kentucky Horse Council, an agency of the government of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, is coordinating the development of a survey of the state's equine industry. Cooperating in the project are the Kentucky Department of Agriculture and the Louisville office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Statistical Reporting Service, which will conduct the survey.

In its request for funding, the Kentucky Horse Council explained that knowledge of the status of the industry and of the size and scope of the industry is necessary to enable both government officials and the general public to become better informed of the impact each facet of the industry has on the state and the citizens of the Commonwealth. Requests for information on the Kentucky equine industry are being received in increasing numbers from a wide variety of individuals and groups. The same information is also necessary to assist the thousands of Kentucky horse owners in their individual and group efforts to help their industry, and horse-related opportunities, improve and strengthen.

Kentucky Horse Council Chairman, Helen Crabtree of Simpsonville states, "The information that will be obtained from the Kentucky equine industry survey is vital to the well-being of our industry. With this information we will be able to promote all facets of the Kentucky equine industry, determine areas of new growth and interest that need support and direction, and identify already-established areas that need renewed support to keep them strong and viable. Without it, we as horsemen cannot reasonably be expected to contribute to our own development."

Heretofore, information on the Kentucky equine industry has been obtained utilizing either limited information or opinions of industry leaders. Frequently both sources have been used, but have presented only a limited picture of certain portions of the Kentucky equine industry.

A questionnaire is currently being developed and will be mailed to horse owners in May with a postage-paid return envelope. A preliminary report is scheduled for publication in August, with a complete report on the status of the Kentucky equine industry to be published in November or December.

The listing of horses and other equine owners that will be used for mailing the survey questionnaires has been compiled utilizing various sources. It is recognized, however, that some owners will be missed.

If you did not receive a questionnaire, please contact the Council directly.

The American farmer deserves a lot of credit.

Our 60th anniversary is an appropriate time to salute the greatest producer of food and fiber in the world — American farmers.

Sixty years ago, the Land Bank was established to help the farmer by providing dependable, long-term financing.

We've changed a lot over those years, but our purpose has remained the same...to provide farmers with the credit to produce that food and fiber.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle then strike it off list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.

Your cooperation will be sincerely appreciated
