County native Richey retires

LOUISVILLE—Clay Richey, a 32-year-veteran of Kentucky Farm Bureau Insurance who headed the firm's statewide sales force since 1964, retired Jan. 1.

Richey, a native of Nicholas county, supervised 184 agents in the 120 Kentucky counties, offering a full line of auto, casualty, property, life and Blue Cross insurance to KFD members.

Richey worked first as a part-time agent in Nicholas county with KFD Mutual, then in 1961, he was named district manager of KFD in central and eastern Kentucky counties. Three years later he moved to the state sales manager's post which he held until he was named vice president of sales. Richey's wife, the former Lucille Humphrey, is also a Nicholas county native. Both graduated from Eastern Kentucky University and both started out in the teaching profession. He was a principal in Nicholas and Bourbon counties, and Mrs. Richey taught in those counties, plus the Lexington City and Jefferson County Schools.
