Designs submitted by students from Parsons School of Design, New York, in a contest sponsored by Jockey International, Inc., through its ad agency, were of such high quality that the company has announced plans to incorporate the shirts in its regular line of sportswear to be marketed next year. The three young winners were honored by Mayor Abraham D. Beame at City Hall, Thursday, June 30, for their outstanding work. At the 4 p.m. ceremony, Mayor Beame also presented Certificates of Appreciation on behalf of New York City to William C. Herrman, Director of Advertising for Jockey International, and Parsons School for "demonstrating deep faith in the work and talents of students in New York City." The students will each receive a special scholarship from Jockey International to continue their studies at Parsons.

Kentucky reflections

Elkton
by George Street Boone

(Editor's note: This is the last in a series of four articles on the Kentucky Constitution and Revision.)

A legislature is generally regarded as the people's branch of government. The representative or senator is the state official whom a citizen is most likely to know and the state official most responsive to the citizen's wishes. A representative in Kentucky generally has less than 34,000 constituents, while a senator represents some 100,000 people.

Kentucky, as do most of the states, pays homage to the theory of checks and balances. One branch of the government is supposed to be a check upon the powers of another. Thus, the legislature is supposed to check the governor, and the courts check the legislature, and so on.

The people's branch of government as established by our constitution in Kentucky is woefully weak. Such weakness usually suits executives well and legislators are all too aware of the power the governor wields. Kentucky's legislature is one of the weakest in the nation and this weakness is due to constitutional provisions. Hampering restrictions include the requirement that the 60-day biennial sessions must be consecutive, the impossibility of recess to study or consider the more than 1,000 bills now commonly introduced into each session, the governor's power to veto bills after the legislature has adjourned, leaving the Assembly no opportunity to override that veto; the legislature being unable to call a special session, or consider in a special session any subject except those designated by the governor; inability to extend its regular 60-day term, no matter how demanding questions may be. Each biennium the legislature is a completely new body required to organize, adopt rules, appoint committees and begin afresh. Members may be appointed to a committee on which they served in an earlier session, but the committee turnover as well as change in committee leadership is cripplingly high. Leadership decisions and committee appointments are commonly made by a legislative leadership; in practice they are made by the governor rather than by the legislature itself.

Section 249 of our constitution prescribes in detail the number of doorkeepers, pages, janitors and clookroom keepers for the House and Senate.

The long ballot is also a gift of the 1891 Constitution. We elect a governor, lieutenant governor, auditor, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, commissioner of agriculture, secretary of state, treasurer and railroad commissioners. How many incumbents can you name? With how many are you familiar enough to appraise the quality of his or her performance? Appraising their performance may be too much to expect, since the constitution forbids consecutive terms for these officials. So, if you felt a governor or auditor had done an outstanding job and was needed in the office, he or she could not be re-elected to that office, anyway. Is this sensible?

The document is sadly out of touch with the times as is revealed by a close study of the remarkably detailed structure and limitations set in 1891. What business survives under the patterns and procedures of the 19th Century? Yet, strangely, many business interests reflexly oppose constitutional change, printing stability or fearing efficiency or power in government. Modernization of our governmental structure is long past needed. The people of Kentucky have the intelligence and responsibility to effect such a change, if they will accept their democratic responsibilities.

Quick, before they spoil!

You'll probably want to can some, freeze some, dry some and put some blackberries in jams, jellies and preserves.

Here are instructions for canning blackberries by the raw pack method.

If possible, put up the berries the same day you pick them. Otherwise, hold them overnight in the refrigerator or other cool place. Sort and wash just before canning.

Canning blackberries

Wash berries, drain. Fill jars to ½-inch of top. For a full pack, shake berries down while filling jars. Cover with boiling syrup. You can make a light syrup with one cup of sugar to three cups of water. For a medium syrup, use one cup of sugar to two cups of water.

Leave ½-inch headspace, wipe jar rims clean, and adjust lids. Process in boiling-water-bath canner, 10 minutes for pints and 15 minutes for quarts.

As soon as you remove jars from canner, complete seals if necessary.

When jars have cooled completely, check seals. Store jars in a cool, dark, dry place and plan to use them within a year for the best quality and taste.

Freezing blackberries

When you freeze blackberries, you have your choice of a syrup pack, a sugar pack, or an unsweetened pack.

Use the syrup pack for berries you plan to serve uncooked. Use the sugar pack or the unsweetened pack for berries to be used for pies, cobblers, and other cooked desserts. Use the unsweetened pack for berries to be made into jams and jellies later on.

Use thin paraffin layer to seal homemade jelly

There's a special trick to getting a good paraffin seal on your homemade jelly. Pour a single thin coating of paraffin on the hot jelly, then leave it alone until the jelly has set and the paraffin has cooled and hardened.

Don't use hot wax for anything other than jelly. All other jams, marmalades and preserves should be processed in a boiling-water-bath canner, using standard half-pint canning jars and regular two-piece canning lids. Open-kettle canning is an approved method for jelly only. That's because processing would cause jelly to get runny, giving an unsatisfactory product.

Here, in more detail, is how to get a good paraffin seal: After making jelly, skim off any foam and pour hot jelly immediately into hot, sterilized glasses or jars. Leave about ¼ inch at top. Use only enough melted paraffin to make a layer 1/8-inch thick. A single thin layer, which can expand or contract easily, gives a better seal than one thick layer or two thin layers.

Prick any air bubbles in paraffin. Bubbles cause holes as paraffin hardens, and they could prevent a good seal.

Always use new paraffin and melt it in a double boiler, or in a clean tin can over boiling water. Paraffin melted directly over heat can catch fire.

Free canning, freezing, pickling, jelly and jam booklets are available at the County Extension Office located in the basement of the courthouse.

Chlorine tanks at BGK spring leak Sunday

Nicholas County Fire Chief Woody Wilson reported Monday that he answered a call Sunday around 11 p.m. at Blue Grass Knitting after some chlorine tanks had sprung a leak. He said he equipped Junior Sorrell with an air pack so that he could go into the building and turn the tanks off.

The county fire department answered a call Friday afternoon at the Chester Bretz home on the Myers Road. A tree had fallen on an electric line catching the electric pole on fire. No other damage was done.

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF CARLISLE, KENTUCKY, SO AS TO PERMIT HOME OCCUPATIONS AS A CONDITIONAL USE IN RESIDENTIAL DISTRICTS #1, #2 AND #3

Whereas, the City of Carlisle Independent Planning Commission held a public hearing as duly advertised in the Carlisle Mercury, on Wednesday, June 22, 1977; and

Whereas, said Planning Commission recommended to the City Council of Carlisle, Kentucky that the Zoning Ordinance be amended so as to permit home occupations as a conditional use in Residential Districts #1, #2 and #3; and

Whereas, "Home Occupation" is defined in Article 11, ¶ 2.1 of "The Carlisle, Kentucky Zoning Ordinance" as follows: An occupation customarily incident to the use of the premises or a dwelling place and not one in which the use of the premises as a dwelling place is largely incidental to the occupation carried on.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF CARLISLE, KENTUCKY:

1. That Article IV, ¶4.112 of "The Carlisle, Kentucky Zoning Ordinance" be and the same is hereby amended by adding the following as ¶4.112 (c) which shall read as follows:

c.

1. No person other than members of the family residing on the premises shall be engaged in such occupation.

2. The use of the dwelling unit for the home occupation shall be clearly incidental and subordinate to its use for residential purposes by its occupants, and not more than 25 percent of floor area of the dwelling unit shall be used in the conduct of the home occupation.

3. There shall be no change in the outside appearance of the building or premises, or other visible evidence of the conduct of such home occupation other than one sign, not exceeding four square feet in area, non-illuminated, and mounted flat against the wall of the principal building;

4. No home occupation shall be conducted in any accessory building;

5. There shall be no sales on the premises;

6. No traffic shall be generated by such home occupation in greater volume than would normally be expected in a residential neighborhood, and any need for parking generated by the conduct of such home occupation shall meet the off-street parking requirements as specified in this ordinance, and shall not be located in a required front yard; and

7. No equipment or process shall be used in such home occupation which creates noise, vibration, glare, fumes, odors, or electrical interference detectable to the normal senses off the lot, if the occupation is conducted in a single-family residence. In the case of electrical interference, no equipment or process shall be used which creates visual or audible interference in any radio or television receivers off the premises or causes fluctuations in line voltage off the premises.

2. That Article IV, ¶4.122 of "The Carlisle, Kentucky Zoning Ordinance" be and the same is hereby amended by adding the following as ¶4.122(c) which shall read as follows:

c.

1. No person other than members of the family residing on the premises shall be engaged in such occupation.

7. No equipment or process shall be used in such home occupation which creates noise, vibration, glare, fumes, odors, or electrical interference detectable to the normal senses off the lot, if the occupation is conducted in a single-family residence. In the case of electrical interference, no equipment or process shall be used which creates visual or audible interference in any radio or television receivers off the premises, or causes fluctuations in line voltage off the premises.

3. That Article IV, ¶4.132 of "The Carlisle, Kentucky Zoning Ordinance" be and the same is hereby amended by adding the following as ¶4.132(f) which shall read as follows:

f.

1. No person other than members of the family residing on the premises shall be engaged in such occupation.

2. The use of the dwelling unit for the home occupation shall be clearly incidental and subordinate to its use for residential purposes by its occupants, and not more than 25 percent of floor area of the dwelling unit shall be used in the conduct of the home occupation.

3. There shall be no change in the outside appearance of the building or premises, or other visible evidence of the conduct of such home occupation other than one sign, not exceeding four square feet in area, non-illuminated, and mounted flat against the wall of the principal building;

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle then strike it off the list. Circling will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.

WE TOOK A TRIP TO — Sol.: 9 letters
