Gospel 'reigns' at Lions Blue Grass Fair

The sounds of celestial tones will fill the air in Lexington beginning Friday, July 15. This signals the opening of the 1977 Lions Blue Grass Fair, the annual Kentucky spectacular which enjoys a national reputation as a "family-fun event." A "permanent" home is now ready. The Lexington Lions Club, owner and one of the principal organizing Lions Clubs of the Fair, has just completed negotiations with the Lexington-Payette Urban County Government for a yearly renewable 30-year rental agreement of Masterson Station Park on Leestown Road. Three miles north of the city on Highway 421. This is just one of the many other reasons the Lions are grateful for their religious background.

To exemplify their faith in the future of the Fair, the Board of Directors has unanimously approved a proposal to secure indebtedness for 1977 in the amount of $25,000 for facility construction the first year.

"When the gates open at 4:30 p.m., patrons will see immediately that good Gospel Music has a high priority with us," states Don Sullivan, manager of the Fair. Sullivan is serving as manager for his first year, after having served in various capacities with the Fair for many years.

Talent for the 1977 event was selected in a unique way. Since Gospel had a high priority with the new manager, he contacted area promoters, radio personnel, and knowledgeable patrons for their input to make this year a truly Gospel Extravaganza. After many discussions and polls, a list of hopefuls were selected.

"We were most fortunate to secure the services of the talent we sought," Sullivan continues. "and only through the dedicated efforts of many people were we able to offer patrons the programs they will enjoy."

Gospel groups perform two shows each evening, beginning at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

The Cathedral Quartet opens this year's event. Wendy Barwell and Green represent the stage for the first Saturday. The Fair closes on Sunday as its day of relaxation and reverence.

Consumer Comment

By Robert F. Stephens

Spring brings out the fly-by-night car art specialist specializing in home repairs. The Consumer Protection Division will receive many complaints in the next few months about fraudulent business involved in home and barn painting, tree-trimming, driveway sealing, basement waterproofing, aluminum siding, and other home-related repairs and projects.

Start by getting the names and addresses of several contractors, and ask at least three to come to your home. Explain to each what work you want done, and let him inspect that part of your house where the work is to be performed. Then ask each of these contractors to give you a firm, written estimate. These estimates should contain a specific description of the work to be done and should include a description of the kind and quality of materials to be used. Make certain that all the estimates include the total price.

After you get the written estimates, you are ready to make a choice. But don't just consider price. Information on the workmanship of the contractor, your feelings about the contractor's reliability, the amount of work time involved, and the guarantee offered should all enter into your decision.

After you select a contractor, ask him to submit a written contract based on his estimate. Read the contract thoroughly, understand it, make sure all blanks are completed, and that you know how much the work will cost. Do these things, before you sign any papers.

After the work has been completed, if your repairs are being financed, you may be requested by the contractor to sign a certificate of completion so that he can receive payment from the bank or finance company. Before signing the certificate, inspect the work thoroughly. If you feel you have a complaint about the materials or the work, do not sign the certificate of completion. Under no circumstances should the certificate ever be signed before all work is completed.

These precautions will help you to avoid consumer problems which are difficult to resolve.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation call the Consumer Hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

County funds must finance 'state' audits

FRANKFORT—County funds must finance county fee officers audits and "state" audits made by the State Auditor to individual counties, according to an opinion by Assistant Attorney General Charles Runyan.

In answer to State Auditor George Atkins' question on whether counties should be billed one-half or the entire cost of the "state" audit, Runyan cited money as well as county money.
