Walkathon set May 21

For residents of Nicholas county, helping the March of Dimes is just a hop, skip, jump, and a 15-mile walk away.

Young and old alike are urged to participate in the first annual March of Dimes Walkathon on May 21. The trek will start at the Nicholas County High School at 9 a.m. Those who do not have enough sole power to hike the distance can help by sponsoring a trekker.

"Walkathons are fun and great fund raisers," says Pam Bowles, chairman of the event. The March of Dimes uses the money to support research into the causes of birth defects—our nation's number one child health problem. The voluntary health agency also funds professional and public health education and medical service programs throughout the country.

All interested in walking or sponsoring a walker can contact Pam Bowles at 289-2946 for further information.

Homemakers meet

The Headquarters Homemakers met with Mrs. Elbert Smith. There were 11 members and three visitors. Mrs. Cleota Snapp, Mrs. Dorothy Neal and Mrs. Jessie Hatcher. Mrs. Reynolds Allison presided. Mrs. Nelson Hillcock gave the devotional. Mrs. Carolyn Snapp read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report. Eight members had attended the annual meeting.

Plans for the craft show and food sale on May 6 were discussed. The officers for 1977-78 were elected. They are Mrs. Reynolds Allison, president; Mrs. A.V. Allison, vice president; Mrs. Armita Clinkenbeard, secretary; and Mrs. Carolyn Snapp, treasurer.

Some of the lessons for next year were listed: Wall treatment, economical entertaining, mental science, personalizing purses, window treatment and fitting patterns in sewing. The family life report was given by Mrs. F.D. Gudgeil.

The June meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Russell Alexander on the second Tuesday, June 14, instead of the first Tuesday. It will be a picnic lunch. Mrs. Reynolds Allison gave the lesson on "How to Live on What You Make."

The roll call was answered by "The best Mother's Day gift you could receive." After Mrs. A.V. Allison's recreational period, the meeting adjourned.

Vote for Wilson Palmer Democratic Primary May 24, 1977

State Senator, 30th District

Check Performance!

Since voters get no written guarantees, the best test of any candidate is his past performance. And that's good reason to vote for Wilson Palmer.

Wilson Palmer has proved that he knows working people and that he effectively represents all of the people of this district.

Wilson Palmer has proved that he knows how to obtain public funds for hospital, road, library, vocational school, and rural water supply projects that are important to residents of the 30th District.

Wilson knows government, having chaired two state committees on its operation. He knows agriculture through running his own farm and serving as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

He has the support, goodwill and cooperation of other elected state and federal officials. And that good working relationship is necessary for a state senator to be effective.

Vote for Wilson Palmer, an experienced and energetic leader who knows how to get a job done.

April, one of worst in last 16 years for traffic fatalities

FRANKFORT—Summer-like driving conditions and a rash of multiple-fatality accidents have made April one of the worst months on Kentucky's highways in the last 16 years, according to Lt. Ernest Bivens of the Kentucky State Police.

Eighty-seven motorists were killed on Kentucky highways during April, compared to 71 in April, 1976. Kentucky highway deaths for April average 78. April's fatalities bring the total for the year to 346, compared to 266 this time last year.

Bivens said there were 12 multiple-fatality accidents during April, killing 25 people. He said this, combined with nice weather encouraging more people to drive brought about the fourth worst fatality total for April since 1962.

This year began with some of the worst weather since the Kentucky State Police began keeping records. Bivens said drivers began driving more carefully.

"The first three months of this year were tremendous," Bivens said. He said comparatively few (41) motorists were killed in both January and February and 64 were killed in March.

"Then the summer-like weather set in and more people took to the roads and we saw 47 people killed during April," Bivens said. "People were just not driving as carefully as they did in the wet and snow. They got careless and wound up in accident-causing situations."

Even though this year's total is still below last year's, Bivens expressed concern for drivers to begin driving more attentively for the Memorial Day weekend coming up.

Day weekend coming up. The record high for traffic fatalities in April came in 1969 when 106 people were killed on Kentucky highways. The record low came in 1963 when 52 people were killed.

Certified paper suffices for VA

Don't let lost documents prevent you from seeking veterans' benefits, the Veterans Administration recently reminded veterans and their dependents.

In the past, a VA spokesman said, we have found that some veterans who cannot locate birth or marriage certificates don't apply for benefits because they believe these documents are essential.

VA will accept a certified statement instead of an original birth or marriage certificate when needed to establish eligibility, provided—in the case of a marriage—that it is the first for each partner and VA has no contradictory information on file.

In years past, VA required formal documentation to support claims for compensation and education benefits for veterans, widows and orphaned children.

Now, however, VA will accept a certified statement regarding the birth or death of a child or as proof of age and relationship in disability cases, the spokesman said.

VA urged veterans and their dependents with eligibility questions to contact the nearest VA regional office or a representative of one of the national veterans service organizations.

Some problem drinkers sense they have problems but don't want to think it is the alcohol. Following is one such story of how a woman alcoholic who has now sober and happy several years ago.

The sun rose brightly on another dark and dismal day. She needed a drink. She needed a drink to see the sun, and she needed a drink to keep from shattering into a million pieces.

Hemorrhage and gulf filled her mind, her stomach burned, her head ached, and her thoughts raced to recall that part of the evening past that had left her memory.

The evening had begun with drinks in the kitchen as she fixed dinner for her family. The four martini lunch had made the afternoon pass quickly, and the beer before her private cocktail hour in the kitchen had held her over to face the end of the day.

The pint of bourbon she had stashed in the kitchen cabinet would make this evening passable, too, and maybe this time there would be no confrontation with the family.

But here she was again, waking on a bed that already felt ruined, and not remembering a part of the evening before.

She hadn't always been this way. Her need for alcohol had come about slowly, the drink in earlier days one or two drinks as the group she was with did.

How did this happen to her, she would like to know. She had been lovely, her life became alcohol-centered, she wondered?

Her major concern now, though, was having another drink to soothe her screaming nerves. Maybe if she took a tranquilizer she could wait until lunch.

The settee she took wouldn't stay down and she gagged as she brushed her teeth. The burned-out alcohol fumes reeked from her pores, and a dismal loneliness closed in on her.

The family had left for their day . . . they had left without even saying goodbye.

But a drink would make the loneliness go away. A drink would ease the pain in her memory.

There were many painful memories associated with her drinking, and another drink seemed to be the only way to relieve the hurt.

It was a vicious cycle . . . it was a nightmare merry-go-round.

She had tried many times to control her drinking, she did not want life to be like this, but she felt now that the drinking had control of her.
