Commonwealth of Kentucky
AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS
Frankfort, Kentucky 40601

January 27, 1977

To the People of Kentucky

Honorable Julian M. Carroll, Governor
Commonwealth of Kentucky
Frankfort, Kentucky

Honorable Mildred Clark, County Judge and
Members of the Nicholas County Fiscal Court
Carlisle, Kentucky

We have examined the Statement of Receipts and Disbursements of the County Judge, County Attorney, County Court Clerk, Circuit Court Clerk, Sheriff and Jailer of Nicholas County for the year ended December 31, 1975. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

The Circuit Court Clerk is not in compliance with KRS 68.210 which requires uniform accounts be kept.

The County Court Clerk was the only County official with excess fees. The Fiscal Court entered an order allowing the Clerk to retain the excess fees as compensation for bookkeeping work performed by him in connection with the County rock quarry. This order is in violation of KRS 64.920 which states "the fiscal court shall collect any amount due the County from County officials as determined by the audit of the official." However, OAG 74-238 states that the Fiscal Court can contract with the County Clerk (as a private contractor) to do work not required of a County Clerk. Any money paid the Clerk as a private contractor would not be considered fees of public compensation.

In our opinion, the financial statements mentioned above present fairly the receipts and disbursements of the respective County officials of Nicholas County for the year ended December 31, 1975.

Respectfully submitted,
/s/ George L. Atkins
Auditor of Public Accounts

Ohio Farm Bureau opposes burley changes

The legendary "birthplace of burley" —Brown County, Ohio, is a center of strong opposition to proposed burley handling and marketing methods, which would change from the traditional hand-tied bundles to sales in loose-leaf form.

Meeting at Mt. Orab, a few miles from Higginsport where the burley variety was accidentally developed over 100 years ago, from seed brought from Kentucky, the Ohio State Farm Bureau Tobacco Advisory Committee adopted resolutions against the loose-leaf plan, and asked the USDA and Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to turn it down.

In a letter to U.S. Senator Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, chairman of the Ohio Farm Bureau tobacco committee, Golden Canaday, said the change "would be detrimental to the small, or family farmer." He added that the committee "represents all segments of the tobacco industry here in Ohio," and that the vote was unanimous.

Burley is grown in 22 southern Ohio counties, with an effective quota of 22,143,073 pounds for the 1977 crop. There are 10,500 farm quotas for Ohio, most of them small family-operated units.

The Ohio Farm Bureau opposition was registered at the May 10 meeting in Washington, when advocates of the change met with Secretary Bergland. After the meeting, news reports said the Secretary had not changed his stand against the plan.

"There was much concern expressed at the meeting (in Brown County, Ohio) that the proposed changes would eventually lead to the concentration of acreage, and this would be detrimental to the small, or family farmer," said the letter to Senator Metzenbaum, "and also it would seriously damage the economy of many counties in Appalachia.

"Those proposing the change to sheets or bales lack compassion for the small family type farm on which the family does all the work in producing a tobacco crop. But to those people tobacco means the difference between being a welfare family, or a family that maintains self-respect through family effort.

"We feel that this is a way of life for those people, and that it should be perpetuated . . . We do not feel that marketing in sheets or bales is in the best interest of the industry."

The resolutions also opposed transfer of allotments of burley across county lines, opposed removal of the 15,000 pound limit on leasing of quotas, asked continuance of the 5% restriction on reducing burley allotments, and favored requiring a two-thirds vote in a tobacco program referendum.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle then strike it off list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.
