For the past few weeks and for the next few upcoming weeks, tobacco stripping is at the top of the list on most farmers' minds. In traveling around to several stripping rooms, I found that generally tobacco is better quality than had previously been expected. Weight is holding up pretty well and most farmers are optimistic that they will have the necessary weight to make their grade. The color of this year's crop seems to be holding up quite well although houseplant tobacco is holding down somewhat. But after the tobacco has been stripped and pressed most are pleased at the appearance their tobacco has. This year has not been a problem of having a season to get the tobacco down, as was the case last year and hopefully we won't have to contend with this problem. If the weather stays extremely warm and damp, extra precaution should be taken to make sure the tobacco doesn't get hot after we have taken it down, particularly if we are it covered with a plastic cover. Too much work has gone in the crop to let something like that ruin it.

As is generally the case, much speculation is going on as to how the market will open, what kind of price will each grade bring, and how is the best way to strip it in the three grades. The tobacco this year is generally better stripping than previous years across the county, however, some are stripping their crops into three grades, but this seems to be where extreme houseplant tobacco

Farmers warned about screenings from corn dryers

FRANKFORT — The deaths of some 50 hogs in western Kentucky has prompted state Department of Agriculture Commissioner Thomas O. Harris and state Veterinarian Dr. Tom Maddox to warn farmers not to feed livestock the screenings from corn dryers.

"We have had reports of about 30 to 35 mature hogs dying of pulmonary edema within a period of hours after ingesting these screenings from corn farm dryers," Maddox said. Harris said, "The cause of death is apparently one of the mycotoxins, but our labs have not isolated which one yet. But in a year when there have been so many problems with aflatoxin, we really advise the farmers to be extremely cautious."

Both Harris and Maddox emphasized that there was no danger in products obtained from milling operations, but cautioned against dumping large amounts at one time. "The rainy, warm weather can cause corn to mold in a hurry, and we definitely feel that some sort of mold is causing these problems," Maddox said.

Farmers were also advised to exercise extreme care when allowing cattle to feed on "down corn" in the fields. This corn, which has been subject to damp conditions, can also cause adverse effects in animals.

There have been numerous reports of cattle dying from overeating while foraging in corn fields.

Miss Lexington entrants sought

The 1971 Miss Lexington Scholarship Pageant Entrance Committee has announced that in addition to the local girls from Fayetteville, entries will be accepted from the following six surrounding Central Kentucky counties: Nicholas, Boone, Hartwood, Clark, Woodford and Franklin.

The Entries Committee's search for participants in the Miss Lexington Pageant, a preliminary to the Miss America Pageant, includes entries at 111 1/2 Memorial Hall, Saturday, Feb. 4, 1972, followed by the pageant sponsored annually by the Metropolitan Woman's Club which is scheduled in the Opera House at 8 p.m., Wednesday, April 8, 1972.

The rules of eligibility are: A. Entrant must be single, never married, divorced or marriage annulled. B. Entrant's age must be between 17 and 28 and a high school graduate by Labor Day 1972 of the competition. C. Entrant must be of good character and possess poise, personality, intelligence, charm and beauty of face and figure. D. Entrant must possess and display talents in a routine not to exceed three minutes. E. Entrant must be resident of the city, county, or territory near which the Lexington pageant is held for six months prior to the pageant. This rule is waived only for contestants whose residence is out of the city, county, or territory, but who are college or university students in the territory where the pageant is held. F. Entrant may be either professional or amateur.

Miss Marcia Malone Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bell, Lexington, winner of the 1971 Miss Lexington Scholarship Pageant received a $1,000 scholarship and represented Lexington in the Miss Kentucky Pageant in June at Louisville where she was the second runner-up to Miss Kentucky.

The first runner-up will receive a $500 scholarship, second runner-up will receive a $200 scholarship, second runner-up will receive a $200 scholarship and the fourth runner-up a $100 scholarship.

The musical works of four composers — all of which are set to the libretto text of the "Magnificat" — will be featured in the fall concert of the Transylvania University Choral Union, Saturday, Nov. 13, at 8:15 p.m. in Haggin Auditorium. The concert is open to the public at no charge.

Helping you succeed is our only concern.

The Land Bank was established 60 years ago with one goal in mind — to help farmers succeed by providing them with the financing they need to improve their farms.

Over the years, generations of farmers have come to depend on the Land Bank for their financing needs. We offer long-term financing for the purchase of farm equipment, the replacement of worn-out equipment, and the purchase of land. We also provide financing for the purchase of a new home or the improvement of an existing home.
