Ky students to be tested

FRANKFORT — About 20 per cent of Kentucky's students will need remedial training when the state's competency testing program goes into effect this year, a Department of Education official told the state advisory committee on educational improvement.

Dr. Donald Van Fleet, head of the education department's Office of Research and Planning, said that 15 to 24 per cent of the students tested would score beneath the accepted standards. He based his prediction on student performances on tests administered over the past few years. The Comprehensive Tests of Basic Skills, which will be used to determine student competencies, is already used by 160 Kentucky districts.

Teacher judgement and test scores would both be taken into account when local school districts plan remedial programs for students under the Educational Improvement Act, passed during the 1978 General Assembly, Dr. Van Fleet said.

House Bill 579, which calls for a statewide competency testing program and remedial training for those students with educational weaknesses, also provides for an advisory committee for educational improvement to advise the governor and the department of education on implementation of the act.

AVCO EMBASSY PICTURES Release

A Starting Aug. 9th "CORVETTE SUMMER"

Employee compensations takes a 60% bite

(This is the final article of a six-part series describing changes in county government and emphasizing the new county administrative code. The code will detail a county's business procedures for services, finance, personnel and purchasing.)

People are the most costly item in any government's budget. Wages, salaries, fringe benefits, and in 1979 the addition of unemployment compensation taxes to government payrolls, usually constitute 60 per cent of budgeted costs.

As county services increase and the number of employees grows, good personnel policies become an important part of financial management as well as the best guarantee of good service.

Then, "What about the county as the last bastion of patronage or the spoils system?" you may ask. This, too, is changing. Federal revenue sharing has been one of the keys to change. Cities and counties receive revenue sharing without the red-tape of an application. It can be used for almost any legitimate governmental purpose. But it is not "without strings."

The string having the most impact is called "equal employment opportunity". Counties are no longer able to hire without considering the effect of their recruitment and selection procedures on their affirmative action plan.

That plan describes what the county will do to remedy any prior discrimination in employment of minorities, whether they be women, blacks, older workers or handicapped. It also should be included in the administrative code. Any federal grant program requires that the recipient follow nondiscriminatory policies in employment.

Hiring, supervising or firing county employees is now clearly the job of your judge/executive. But the fiscal court must adopt the personnel rules and policies which the judge/executive administers. That is a legislative function.

The county administrative code is the vehicle by which personnel rules are formalized. Through the code, the fiscal court tells the judge how it wants him to exercise his authority "to appoint, supervise, suspend and remove county personnel".

In some counties, the fiscal court may exercise its "advise and consent" powers in a very detailed way. In others, the magistrates may assign the judge authority to make personnel decisions for certain positions without requiring a specific fiscal court response on each action. Formal approval could even be required only for senior or supervisory positions.

The fiscal court must approve the creation of all appointive offices, the duties of the office and all appointments to them, and the creation, abolition or combination of any county department or agency.

In the areas of personnel, the statutory prohibition against fiscal court exercise of executive authority means particularly that official contact and direction for county employees comes only through the county judge/executive.

PUBLIC NOTIFICATION

The Sharpsburg Water District hereby gives notice that the maximum contaminant level for turbidity was exceeded during its recent reporting period of April.

The test for turbidity is performed here in the water plant on a daily basis. It is a measure of the clarity of the water and is one method of assuring purity. A discoloration could be caused by mud or other contaminant.

The purpose of the Safe Drinking Water Act (PL 93-523), which is the basis for increased inspections, is to safeguard the water consumed by the public.

At this time, the Sharpsburg Water System is frequently testing and taking corrective measures to protect your health.

SLAPSTIX

Give dandelions an inch and they'll take a yard

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle then strike it off list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.

THE VANISHING RACE Sol.: 15 letters (2 words)
