'How Kentucky ranks'

Recent findings taken from the National Education Association (NEA) by the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) entitled "How Kentucky Ranks" reports that the state ranks 49th in the per cent of revenue, (16.3% coming to public elementary and secondary schools from local governments. However the amount put into public schools in 1977-78 jumped from 58.4% to 71.6% thereby causing Kentucky to rank second in that category. The findings also shows Kentucky ranks 10th in the nation in revenues coming from the federal government. In other categories Kentucky: ranks 45th in the estimated amount spent from local, state, and federal funds on each Kentucky public-school pupil, below all seven states that border the state; and 40th in estimated in the average salary payed to public-school teachers.

Track and field games re-scheduled for tots

Coach Ben Pumphrey reported that over 100 youngsters came out to the track and field grounds at the high school to participate in the 4-H track and field games held last week. He said all the children got along well and enjoyed the event especially so when $80 in quarters was given out to the many children.

Coach Pumphrey also said he hoped many of the youngsters in the county would participate in the Optimist Club's track and field contest re-scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 10, at 4 p.m. at the high school. He said 296 ribbons would be given.

Livestock expo to give $225,000 in awards, prizes

Thomas O. Harris, Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture, announced today that the 1978 North American International Livestock Exposition Premium Catalogs are published and list record amounts in prizes. Harris said that the show is now entering its fifth year and that the $225,000 in money and awards being offered have broken all previous records for the show. The 1977 show offered $200,000 to more than 10,000 livestock entries. The 1978 show, to be held November 4-18, will show an increase in livestock numbers present and may range up to 12,500 head of dairy cattle, beef cattle, Quarter Horses, sheep and swine. Commissioner Harris said that both the premiums offered and the exhibitors present now rank the North American International among the largest livestock shows held in the United States annually.

The show will again be held in Louisville at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, and current show expansion plans include many new activities of interest to both the general public and other agricultural segments.

Commissioner Harris said that premium Catalogs for the 1978 North American International are available by writing to: Harold Workman, General Manager, North American International Livestock Exposition, 725 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, KY 40601.
