Glamour Talk by Joy

If your hair needs washing in an emergency, simply dust on some baby powder and brush out. The baby powder absorbs excess oil and dirt, leaving hair fluffy and fresh smelling.

Participants in the State 4-H Demonstration and Tractor Operator's Competition won county and area contest to become eligible for the State Level. Senior Division Winner of the Small Engines Demonstration Contest goes on to represent Kentucky in the Eastern Regional Contest.

Taking part in the two 4-H Variety Shows during the Fair will be club and specialty talent acts that won top honors in area competition. The state event is not a contest — winners will not be named.

Dairy, Beef, Poultry, Land and Meat Animal Judging events at the Fair are final eliminations for Seniors who scored highest in state judging competition earlier this summer. Those scoring highest in the State Fair eliminations will represent Kentucky in National 4-H Judging Competition.

When you think of pests, think of me.

I can get the termites out of your house. And the ants, cockroaches, spiders or mice. And keep them out. I can get any pest out of your house (except maybe your in-laws).

NICHOLAS COUNTY STATE FAIR PARTICIPATION

The Kentucky State Fair will begin August 17 and run through August 26. Twenty-five youngsters will take exhibits for the 4-H display. If you attend be sure to look for the exhibits marked Nicholas County.

The following youngsters will participate in events at the State Fair. Be sure to look them up if you attend the fair.

August 17 — "Short People" — 2 p.m. — East Wing — Mary Ann Hollar and Alison Knapke. August 19 — Demonstration — 1 p.m. — Dining Room C — Tony Smith. August 23 — Tobacco Judging — 9 a.m. — West Wing — Andy Judge.

THE 4-H WAY

Purpose: The purpose is to provide opportunity for parents, other interested adults, and you to become involved as volunteers to influence the development of youth.

Provides opportunities for boys, girls, parents, and adults to work together to decide what they want youth to become.

Adults and youth have fun, learn, and work together in the home, neighborhood, and community.

Involvement: Create as a team, with common goals and an interest in helping each other to do the best job they can for the benefit of all.

Parents, relatives, neighbors, and others provide leadership to 4-H'ers by:

1. Guiding them in deciding what they want to do.
2. Helping them learn skills to accomplish their goals.
3. Assisting them in evaluating their accomplishments.

4-H'ers learn skills that help them get along better in their family and community. They are involved in specific projects and activities in areas of interest to them.

Team Members: Boys and girls — They live in cities, towns, and in the country. They are people who want to learn and have fun other things.

The limits for involvement are the limits of one's own imagination.

Moms and Dads — They are the leadership back-bone of a good 4-H club. Their interests vary greatly and occupations are limitless. Homemakers, doctors, teachers, farmers, secretaries, lawyers, truck drivers, policemen, and bricklayers all may have children in 4-H.

Their families will have the chance to participate and become involved in activities together.

Relatives — Regardless of age and background, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, and grandparents play an important part in supporting family members. They share skills and feelings and influence values. They are interested in and care about each other.

Neighbors — Young and old alike have skills to share. Individuals with our family members in 4-H may have an interest in the development of youth and enjoy working with people. They may be concerned about the greatest resource the world has: its YOUTH!

Agents — The 4-H Agents are kind of like the team manger — like Sparky Anderson of the Cincinnati Reds.

They are professionals employed by the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service and the county in which they live. They counsel, train, coordinate, guide, teach, and advise teen and adult leaders.

The 4-H agent works with the leaders in providing a county 4-H program that will support and supplement the program of the local 4-H Club.
