CHRISTMAS IS COMING!
Mistletoe is hanging in the homes, this time of year.
Evergreens and holly are being arranged, with so much care Ribbons are making Christmas packages so pretty and bright.
Radiance from window candles are lighting up the darkened night.
Hanging stockings are awaiting to be filled with fruits and toys.
Reindeers are ready to bring Saint Nick to all good girls and boys.

glow of the happy, hearty Christmas!

Icebergs are forming everywhere, they appear so close and sharp.
Snow is beginning to fall, the fishes seems to make the music of a harp.
Trees are being cut for all to decorate with the seasons cheer.
Meals and goodies are being prepared.
The best we get all year.
Angels are singing carols, listen, the words are so sweet to hear.
Stars are blinking a message, the birth-date of the Christ Child is getting near.

THE MAN
I remember the man by the smile that I saw Every time that I walked through his door.
I remember the way he played checkers with us.
And Oh! When he'd win, would he roar!
Remember the stories, the laughter he gave
The way he would play and would joke,
I remember the wisdom, the help that it
gave
How it soved in each word that he spoke.
I remember the times I would walk in the house
And he'd be asleep in his chair
Even tho' we had problems, we knew they'd work out
All was well because Daddy was there.

He advised us, he helped us, he led us along
No matter how gloomy life looked at the time.
By a smile, he could make it all right.
When we think of him now, as we all often do,
And we speak of his own special ways,
We're filled with a smile, at the man that we knew,
Who added so much to our days.

I think there's a part of my son's life,
I'll always regret most of all,
And that's that he knew, for such a short time
The magic of his Papaw.
—Mrs. Gayle Vanlandingham

THOUGHTS
Time has gone by, our boy has grown
Tho' he still seems small to me,
Going on nine, and for him life's time,
As we'll always want it to be.

Hallelujah
We pray the Spirit of the holiday will glow ever greater
in your heart.
Warm thanks.
