Farm-Home Week gets revival after 16 years

Thousands of people from all over Kentucky will be coming to the UK campus in Lexington Jan. 8-12 for Farm and Home Week. The special event will open the classrooms of the UK College of Agriculture to people of all ages and walks of life.
Many who attend will recall with nostalgia when Farm and Home Week was strictly a farm family event. The annual visit to the UK campus was a tradition for many years through 1963. Now, after a lapse of 16 years, the event is being revived by popular demand.
Although the 1978 Farm and Home Week retains the traditional name, the week-long educational program Jan. 8-12 will reach beyond the farm to serve the needs of Kentuckians wherever they work and live. This is in keeping with the change that has taken place in the Cooperative Extension Service, broadening its programs for the benefit of urban residents as well as rural families.

"There will be something of interest to everyone," says John Ragland, Associate Dean for Extension in the UK College of Agriculture and chairman of Farm and Home Week. He adds that plans are complete for one of the largest educational meetings sponsored in years by the College and the Cooperative Extension Service.
Programs, workshops, exhibits and speeches will cover a wide range of specific interests throughout the week, with special emphasis each day on a certain aspect of agriculture and homemaking.
For agriculture, emphasis will be on tobacco Monday, Jan. 8, of Farm and Home Week, markets and marketing Tuesday, energy Wednesday, grain and livestock Thursday, and forage and livestock Friday.
For homemakers, emphasis will be on food, nutrition and health Monday; simplifying lifestyles and clothing for all ages Tuesday; housing design, landscaping and new products for the home Wednesday; developing parent-child values and dealing with emotional stress and crisis Thursday; and facing family conflict Friday.
Estate planning to help Kentucky families save death taxes and achieve other goals is a daily feature. A different phase will be covered each day.

In addition to the formal programs scheduled, there will be opportunities throughout the week for visitors to consult with experts about specific problems and interests.
Although the campus will take on an added look during the special Farm and Home Week event Jan. 8-12, information that will be presented is an example of the help that is available to the people of Kentucky throughout the year.
"You are always welcome to the campus," says Charles E. Barnhart, Dean of the UK College of Agriculture. And he adds, "Through our field staff, county Extension agents for agriculture, home economics and 4-H, your AG College is as close to you as your county seat and as easy to reach as dialing your telephone."

Plates expiring
Kentuckians who bought new cars in 1978 will be renewing their license plates on a staggered basis, under the state Transportation Department's new registration system.
The system is being phased in over the next few years to end the long waiting lines at county clerk's offices every February, according to O. B. Arnold, Commissioner of vehicle registration. For cars purchased before 1978, the renewal deadline is still Feb. 28.
New cars are registered according to the month of purchase, Arnold said. For example, cars purchased in January 1978 must be registered by Jan. 1, 1979. Those bought in February must be renewed by Feb. 1, and so on.
Arnold advised car owners that they can determine their registration deadline by checking the sticker near the center of the license plate. New stickers for 1979 will also have a renewal date.
Arnold said truck and motorcycle registrations will not be staggered. As before, truck licenses must be renewed by April 1, and motorcycle licenses expire Dec. 31, with a two-month grace period.
