TNW'S AUTO TIPS
Impoverishment of a car's transmission can lead to a very expensive repair bill. As a preventive measure, it's wise to check the transmission fluid and filter about every 20,000 to 25,000 miles.

THE CARING CORNER
So even to old age and gray hairs, O God, do not forsake me, Ill I proclaim Thy might to all generations to come. (Psalm 71:18)

Our Senior Citizens Center has just finished celebrating their first birthday. It was very uplifting and warm to watch many people who reach 70 or 80 make plans for five or ten years in advance despite the fact that they probably will not see them fulfilled. For instance, just recently an 81 year old woman took me around her home and garden and showed me all the different plants and trees that she was growing. She said that some of her plants would really be pretty in five or six years. She talked as if she would go on living indefinitely. What a wonderful spirit!

In Psalm 71 we read of another senior citizen who refused to give up. David would not cling to the past nor settle for the idea that his work for God was done. He expressed the desire to use all his time to praise and honor him. He said he would hope continually, and the desire of his heart was to show the strength of the Lord to his community. The pains and frustrations of old age should be treated realistically. They are not going to evaporate just because we stay active and optimistic. But God cares about us and has given us good reason to believe that He's not done with us when we have passed our prime. Let's let Him determine when we are over the hill!

Join us this Sunday in caring.

Gov. Bert Combs is scheduled speaker at Historical Society's Boone Day

FRANKFORT — Former Governor Bert T. Combs is the featured speaker of the Kentucky Historical Society's annual Boone Day celebration Wednesday, June 7. The traditional luncheon, which includes country ham, beaten biscuits and other Kentucky delicacies, will be served on the grounds of the Old Capitol at noon. "Because of the important role which Daniel Boone played in the exploration and settlement of Kentucky, Boone Day has been celebrated for more than 100 years," said Col. George Chan, the society's deputy director. "His discovery that Kentucky had level and flat terrain which could be farmed, as well as mountainous regions, attracted land companies into the area." Mr. Boone left his home in North Carolina in May 1780, and traveling with John Finley, John Stewart, Joseph Holden, James Moway and William Cool, set out to find Kentucky. "After a long and tiring journey through a mountainous wilderness, in a westward direction, on the seventh day of June, we found our selves on Red River, where John Finley had formerly been trading with the Indians, and from the top of an eminence, saw with pleasure the beautiful level of Kentucky," wrote Daniel Boone in his diary in 1780. Each year the society pays tribute to the man the Indians called "Wide Mouth", sometimes, "Big Turtle", and who lost every acre he owned in the Bluegrass, along with two sons and one brother. Tickets for the Boone Day luncheon are $1.50 each and reservations must be made in advance, according to Frank W. Sower, vice president of the society and chairman of the Boone Day committee. To make reservations, call Mrs. Edna Flowers, the society's controller, at (603) 564-3018.

Weatherford award given

BERRA — The W. D. Weatherford Award for outstanding writing about the Appalachian South was presented Tuesday to the authors of two books — Gurney Norman for "Kiddo" and Laurel Shackelford and Bill Weinberg, editors of "Our Appalachia".

A special award also went to James Still for the body of his work in fiction and poetry, including "River of Earth", "On Troublesome Creek", "Palatka of Man", and "Hounds on the Mountain". Mr. Norman, an editor of the "White Earth Catalog" and the author of "Divine Rights Trip", is a University of Kentucky graduate who now lives in California. Last year he was writer-in-residence at the University of Kentucky. "Kiddo", a book of short stories, was published by Gnomon Press. "Our Appalachia" is a collection of interviews with Appalachian people that makes up an oral history of the region in this century. Laurel Shackelford is a reporter for the Louisville Times; and Weinberg, now a Hindman attorney, was director of the Alice Lloyd Oral History Project. The book was published by Hill and Wang. Both awards are made possible by the late W. D. Weatherford, a pioneer in Appalachian development, youth work and race relations. They are jointly sponsored by Berea College's Hutchins Library and Appalachian Studies Center. Weatherford, for more than 50 years a trustee and benefactor of Berea College, was a pioneer in speaking out for mutual respect and understanding between the races in the south as early as 1910; sponsor of the most complete study of the Appalachian region in 1962; and author of "The Weatherford-Hammond Mountain Collection about the region; and author of 18 books. Previous special award winners have been Dr. Robert Coles, Wilma Dyke, Jesse Stuart, and Harry Caudill.
