News briefly

Schaefer barn destroyed by fire

The Nicholas County Fire Department answered a call Monday at 6 p.m. to the Joe Schaefer farm on the Carlisle-Ellis Road where a tobacco barn had caught fire.

The barn was completely destroyed.

It was filled with tobacco and also contained a tractor and other farm equipment. Also leveled was a stripping room. The contents of the barn reportedly were not covered by insurance.

Benefits based on earnings

Social security benefit rates for retired and disabled workers and their dependents are based on the worker's average yearly earnings over a period of time prescribed by law. The needs or personal circumstances of a beneficiary cannot be taken into consideration in determining of the benefit to or she receives.

However, the law includes a provision under which benefits are adjusted annually to take into account increases in the cost of living. Generally, benefits are increased automatically whenever there is a 3 (tenth) per cent increase in the cost of living from one year to the next.

Attorney Downing of Mr. Taylor's whereabouts and have him get in touch with the Mercury where Mr. Webster's address is on file.

Next, in the picture of the "Seventy-eight Stooges", a group shot of local youths prior to entering the army in World War I, another has been identified. In the back row, third from left, the young man is Perry Noble Jones, Mr. Jones may appear and if he is sitting, in the third row, between two of the protrusion on the courthouse steps (taken I suppose that way). (Information courtesy of Mrs. Gayle West of Bourbon County.)

However, Col. Roy Lee Shannon of Lexington goes as one better and names all of the "Seventy-eight Stooges". Not only that, he tells us they were starting for Ft. Thomas on July 31, 1918.

Since 1917 the soldier's dream of his children not having to fight has been a reality for the American veteran. America is not now in a shooting war, declared or undeclared, with any other country. There are many veterans alive today who fought and served to make it so and each and every one of them deserves our thanks on Veteran's Day.

sought is not obtainable elsewhere. These rules do not extend to local police and prosecutors.

The ineffectiveness of the present law does not encourage reporters to feel well-protected by the press's awareness of the problem. Some of the laws only real protection is from private libel suits. The constitution and the legislature and regulations are [illegible] by the courts.

Confidentiality of sources is the most valuable tool of a reporter. The privilege between a doctor and his patient, between a priest and his confessor, between husband and wife, between attorney and client, between government and investigative officials [illegible] official statements or investigations.

A surprising and bright spot on a number of fronts in the recent report by Attorney General Ted Faulkner to the national poll by the Associated Press in 1971 and 1972. "Suppose a newspaper reporter obtains information from a newly convicted drug trafficker in which the trafficker tells what he has done in the past. Do you think that reporter should or should not be required to reveal the source of this story, if he is taken to court to testify about the information he has gained in writing?" In 1971, 69 per cent felt the reporter should not be required to testify about the information he has gained in the interview. In 1972 this [illegible] 69 per cent said he should not be required to answer.
