

Kay's Kitchen

Thanksgiving is over and we can turn our thoughts to the Christmas holidays, having guests, shopping for that special gift, and the general things that must be done for the special season. This week will be devoted to desserts to serve.

ENGLISH CURLEAD

8 eggs milk
1/2 cup cornstarch
1 cup sugar
8 egg yolks, beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon pure vanilla
Brandy to taste
Whipped cream

Soak milk. Combine the cornstarch and 1/2 cup of the sugar. Add one cup of the hot milk and stir with a whisk until perfectly smooth. Add mixture to remaining milk and stir with whisk until thickened, stirring constantly with a whisk.

Cover the mixture and cook it over hot water for about 15 minutes. Combine the egg yolks and remaining 1/2 cup of milk and stir with whisk until perfectly smooth. Cook the mixture for 15 to 20 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from stove, add salt and vanilla. Refrigerate. When custard is cold, add brandy to taste. Serve with slightly sweetened whipped cream. Recipe may be cut in half. However, it is delicious served with a small piece of fruit cake or pecan cake when unexpected guests drop in. Or serve with a cookie. 15 to 20 servings.

FRENCH PUDDING

1/2 cup powdered sugar
1/4 cup butter
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup whipping cream
1 1/2-cup hot vanilla water, crushed
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup crushed vanilla wafers, stir in beaten eggs. Whip the cream. Roll wafers into crumbs. Place half the crumbs in buttered casserole. Then layer of butter, sugar and egg mixture, then a layer of whipped cream and pineapple. Top with remainder of

Garden Club elects officers

The Carlisle Garden Club met Monday, Nov. 26, in the Library Club Room with 18 members present. Mrs. Cheryl Fitzgibbon gave the Spiritual Values. With Thanksgiving approaching, she used scriptures reminding us of our need to be thankful and closing with prayer. Mrs. Honora Wilson, president, presided over the business session. Plans were made for making Christmas wreaths for the Library and Nursing Home. Dec. 6 was set for the work. The nominating committee presented the following officers for election for the next two years: president, Mrs. Lena Williams; vice president, Mrs. Wayne Shumate; secretary, Miss Mary Lela Campbell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. M. DeMyer; treasurer, Mrs. W. J. Clark. They were accepted by acclamation. Small's Greenhouse presented the program with Mrs. Cynthia Bryant in charge. She made some arrangements and had a number on display, suitable for fall and Christmas. Mrs. Taylor Stelling and Mrs. r. George Dale hostesses, used 18 Thanksgiving themes to both their arrangements and their refreshments.

CREAMY FRENCH CHOCOLATE

1 pkg. (1 1/2 c.) semi-sweet chocolate
1 square (1 1/2 c.) unsweetened chocolate
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon strong coffee
2 eggs, separated
1/2 cup milk
2 cups whipping cream
Melt chocolate with butter over hot, not boiling, water stirring to blend until smooth. Remove from heat, stir in coffee, salt, egg yolks and brandy. Cool slightly. Beat egg whites stiff, fold into chocolate mixture slowly but thoroughly. Whip cream until it mounds, but not chilled. Spoon into dessert dishes. Chill. Invert! Invert! Invert! with additional whipped cream and shaved chocolate. Top with nuts.

PEPPERONI DESSERT

1 1/2 cups crushed vanilla wafers
1 cup chopped pecans
18 large marshmallows, cut fine
1 cup crushed peppermint stick candy
1/2 pint whipping cream
Put one cup of the crumbs in the bottom of a large pyrex dish. Whip cream stiff and add pecans, marshmallows and candy. Mix well, pour over remaining whipping cream. Refrigerate 30 minutes before serving. If dessert seems too stiff when ready to serve, drizzle a small amount of white cream creme de menthe over each serving.

Maxey Flats will cost—and cost

The nuclear waste burial site at Maxey Flats will cost the state $303,000 this year and about $700,000 per year from now on, according to an attorney in the state Department of Finance. Charles Wickliffe, a member of the Special Advisory Committee on Nuclear Waste Disposal, Thursday said the cost of the disposal site might cost less but could cost a lot more. Committee member Hugh Spencer, a professor at the University of Louisville's Speed Scientific School, said the $700,000 figure might be misleading, since the money will cost taxpayers an added amount as it is dispersed over a period of time. Spencer estimated that over a seven-year span such an allocation would result in an additional expense of $4.5 million. The dumping ground was opened in 1969 and taken over by the state in December 1977 after reports that radioactive material had leaked away from the site. Since then the facility has been paid for by the Department of Finance, regulated by the Department of Environmental Protection and operated by the privately owned Nuclear Engineering Co., which owned the facility originally. Members of the Special Advisory Committee discussed this separation of responsibilities as a major problem in maintaining the site. Several alternatives were considered, including federal control and consolidation of responsibility under one state agency. "We would probably endorse the concept of federal responsibility for nuclear waste disposal sites if the government chooses to reassess its jurisdiction," Wickliffe said. The panel deferred action on a check for $1.2 million to the Maxey Flats area who requested an inspection of his cattle. Singer said he examined the animal diagnostic laboratory in Lexington, Kentucky, and in his opinion the animals will suffer from copper deficiency, as they did two years ago, as well from ringworm.

TVA goes solar

Robert C. Radcliffe
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — That pioneer in public power, the Tennessee Valley Authority, now is trying to bring solar power into customers' homes instead of bigger electric bills. Put another way, instead of yet another new electric generating plant, the TVA is now trying to get solar power plants on one for each house — may keep house on solar power, and water, and perhaps even air conditioned. At least that's the idea being advanced by David Freeman, who holds one of the three TVA directorships, he told the National Geographic Society he wants to help lead the way from total dependence on giant nuclear generators, air-polluting steam power plants, and hydroelectric dams that submerge acres of scarce farmland. Economic Survival.

"TVA, in partnership with the people in the Valley, is going to demonstrate solar heating on an economical footing," he says. Communities and other regions across the nation, he predicts, will be closely watching such a broad attempt to go to a more competitive, cheap solar energy. This summer the TVA is beginning a pilot program that, according to Freeman, could eventually lead to the solarizing of 100,000 valley homes. How the home solarizing program: a TVA guarantee of homeowners' financing. The guarantee may be patterned after another energy-saving program in which the TVA has encouraged some 15,000 homeowners to install ceiling insulation with the utility providing interest-free loans paid back on electric bills. From 500 to 1,000 homes would be solarized after the first year, Freeman predicts, with workable relationships well established between Valley contractors and TVA inspectors and planners. The project's first homes are being fitted with roofing solar panel collectors to heat water, which is stored in two 80-gallon tanks when not circulating to bath and radiators. Nighttime Advantage A monitoring computer will switch on an electric hot water heater, taking advantage of cheaper, nighttime rates, to keep the water at 140 degrees
