Forest fire season here

Fall forest fire season is now upon us. From Oct. 1 until Dec. 15 it is illegal to burn any open fires within 150 feet of any woodland. If burning is done more than 150 feet from the woodland, but capable of spreading to the woodland through grass or other flammable material, it is still a violation of the Kentucky Forest Fire Laws.

If burning must be done, it is permissible between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and midnight, providing all reasonable precautions are taken. Reasonable precaution shall consist of cutting and piling flammable material and clearing around it to prevent spread of fire to the woodland. The fire must be extinguished at midnight.

The largest violators of these laws are the debris burners. They have no intention of doing any harm to the woodlands by causing a forest fire to spread from their innocent debris burning. When they have something to burn during the fire season, they should always be aware of the weather conditions and the dryness of the soil. Fires can spread after 4:30 p.m. if the condition is very windy or dry.

Division of Forestry employees will be patrolling the area and citations will be issued to individuals violating the Kentucky Forest Fire Laws.

For information on how and when to burn debris, or to report a forest fire, contact John Moreland, Nicholas County Guard, phone 498-4106, or the District Office at Morehead, phone 784-7506.

WHO WAS THAT LADY?

A hard-fighting defender of causes, this woman who moved to the United States from Russia in 1885 espoused almost every civil liberties cause except suffragism. The vote just wouldn't help women's accursed lot, she is known to have said. For 35 years in this country, she supported passionately anarchism, free love, birth control and feminism. When she began advocating Bolshevism, vociferously as always, the government decided she had to go and, in 1919, she was deported on the Soviet Union. Who was that lady? Emma Goldman.

WHAT'S YOUR $WORTH ?

By SALLY and JIM ADAMS

ENERGY SAVER

The cost of heating and cooling your home has doubled since 1973, and is expected to double again in five years. Here, for a change, is good news about an energy saver that will cut the soaring costs of heating and air conditioning.

The energy saver is a familiar product, inexpensive, durable, easy to maintain, easy to install: the window shade. A comprehensive series of tests made at the Illinois Institute of Technology has resulted in some dramatic findings: "Use of window shades on a typical residence in a moderate climate would reduce the temperature control costs as much as 8 cents on the dollar on heating and 21 cents per dollar on the cooling."

Winter Heating. The researchers used light-colored, opaque shades, and made tests during outside temperatures that ranged from 20 to 50 degrees F. Drawing the shades, they found, cut heat loss through the windows by 24 to 31 percent, as opposed to a mere 6-7 percent reduction in heat loss by venetian blinds or drapes. The saving is substantial, because windows account for up to 33 percent of the heat lost in a typical house. To put it another way, somewhere between 40 cents and $1.40 is added to fuel bills for every square foot of standard single-pane window unprotected in winter.

Summer Saving. Tests found that opaque shades blocked out up to 54 percent of the total heat — both solar and hot air — that would come through an unshaded window.

Even a translucent shade cut incoming heat by 44 percent while a venetian blind, fully closed, reduced heat gain by only 29 percent, a white-colored drape by 33. What this means in real terms is that each degree of heat prevented from entering the house in summer can save 3 percent in fuel costs.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle then strike it off the list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should a word form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the proper number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.
