Watch for buses

Every school bus is a "STOP" signal, and newspapers, radio and television stations all across the state are helping the Kentucky Department of Education stress this vital fact.

"We rarely go through a school year without seeing one or two children killed or injured as they get on or off a bus," said Paul Jones, director of the division of pupil transportation.

Jones said newspapers will be running public service ads reminding drivers they are required by law to stop for buses which are loading or unloading students. Public service announcements are being sent to radio and TV stations.

Kentucky's school bus law provides for penalties up to $500, imprisonment up to six months or both, for anyone who passes a bus while it is stopped for loading or unloading.

Under the law, drivers must stop for a bus whether it is going in the same direction they are or in the opposite direction.

The one exception is on divided highways where opposing lanes are separated by a definite median strip. Drivers going in the opposite direction may proceed with caution. Jones said painted lines are not medians and cars going in both directions must stop.

Kentucky school districts transport 473,000 pupils every school day.

"The buses may be out early, at midday, mid-afternoon or even, unfortunately, after dark," Jones added. School buses loading or unloading children display a STOP sign and flashing red lights.

The school bus law also covers church buses which are transporting children, he said, but the church buses do not have the warning lights.

Jones advises parents to teach their children to wait until a bus is completely stopped before crossing a road to get aboard. If they must cross a street or road after getting off the bus, they should do so right away while the bus driver waits with the lights flashing, he said.

Gotcha covered!

One organization (we won't dare say who) recently made sure that a meeting it was scheduling would be well attended if publicity had any effect on attendance.

By 5 p.m. on Monday of the week before the meeting at least four notices and one phone call were received. And they kept getting better and better as they came in. We won't say who because we want you to keep up the good work!

Lucky break

My vacation last week was the first "real" (i.e., scheduled and taken) one I've had in five years.

I planned to spend a couple of days helping some of my friends put their tobacco in the barn. Luckily the days they couldn't it was nice and the days they could they couldn't because it was raining.

Then I was supposed to refinish some furniture but I used it all last week and couldn't get it back in time.

I visited some friends and they said, "Why aren't you at work?" (Notice the verb form.) When I explained, they said, "How can you get a vacation? You never work?"

Last but not least, I did go to work for a couple of hours on a couple of days, here at the Mercury. You just can't quit cold turkey.

When I get back the boss is in the hospital. A man stops me on the street and says, "Cancel my ad, I thought I told you two weeks ago. I've been to Mexico on my vacation and got back and the phone ring and somebody says, "You got a place to rent, I saw it in the paper."

Next year, I'll think I'll go to Mexico...

(Editor's note: Mexico, Nicholas County, Kentucky or Mexico, Mexico?)

Now presenting...

A check with Coach Ben Pumphrey indicates that the NCHS lineup this Friday will see quite a few new faces.

That's mostly because 20 seniors graduated from the team in this spring. The Jackets open at Fleming Friday and next week take on Madison in Richmond. An open date follows and then the home opener Sept. 7 with Fairview in the first district game.

Laid [-up] back

Mercury publisher Warren Fisher is on assignment at the Nicholas County Hospital being treated for a back injury incurred in the line of duty last week. At presstime we weren't sure if Mercury Vapors would appear or not but further details are expected soon. The editor has written his OBI (Old Back Injury) and told it not to show up soon. Other members of the OBI Club are no doubt sympathizing.

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in it — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle that spells it off the list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD

LIGHTS ON

In spite of the increase in the cost of electricity and the fact that we must cut back and save on energy, good lighting is still essential. It's more than having enough light. It's having the right kind of light in the right place.

In a study area, for instance, providing your child with good lighting is imperative for good eyesight. A lamp needn't be expensive, but make sure you have at least a 200 watt bulb. For a wall mounted fixture, use two fixtures rather than one, spaced at each end of the desk or writing table with 150 watt bulbs in each.

The lampshade should allow light to come through the top as well as the bottom for good distribution of illumination over the entire work area. Overly translucent or opaque shades should be avoided. Gooseneck and high-intensity lamps cause glare and eyestrain, and should be used only when supplemented by other lighting.

Kitchens and bathrooms need a great deal of light with combinations of overhead and task lighting. Supplement kitchen ceiling fixtures with additional lighting over the stove, sink and countertops. A fixture should be hung over your eating area as well.

Lighting should be planned and executed before a room is painted or decorated. Good lighting can create happy surroundings.

"Not that it's any of my business, but if you'd quit leaving silver bullets behind, you wouldn't be in this financial mess."

THE HOME GAME

BY VIRGINIA TRUAX

BETTER LATE — Did you know you could reheat a baked potato without losing that fresh-baked flavor? Just dip it in water and bake for 20 minutes in 350-degree F. oven.

AFFORDABLE PRICE — Many budget-pleasing casseroles using ground beef can be made with beef that has the lowest price tag, usually 70 percent lean. If you pour off the fat after browning the meat. For meat loaves, meat balls and low-cal dishes, you'll probably want to choose a higher percent lean.

PLUGGING THE HOLE — Keep unwanted bugs out of the house by plugging small holes in the screen with household or model-airplane glue.

ROUND-THE-CLOCK GARDENER — Leave home with a clear conscience! Place all house plants in the tub. Cut strips of soft white cloth about an inch wide and several feet long. Elevate a bucket of water above the plants, put ends of cloths in water and bury the other ends deep in the soil of the plants. Your worries are over.

TOP OF THE MORNING — Add this morning's leftover bacon or sausage, crumbled, to tomorrow's scrambled eggs. Makes them much more interesting!

COOKIE CAPER — To keep homemade cookies from drying, slip a slice of bread into your cookie jar. When the bread dries out, replace it with a fresh slice.

PEACHY KEEN — Whether you are pickin' peaches in the grocery or in the orchard, remember to select only those with yellow undercoat. A green undercoated peach too often shrivels up and refuses to ripen!

STEAK STABBER — Be kind to your meat when grilling. Turn the steaks or chops with tongs, not a fork, and prevent the loss of flavorful juices.

THINK SMALL — That key from a can of sardines makes a fine screwdriver for small objects. Just unwind the metal strip, being careful not to cut your fingers, file the rough edges and slip into your tool box.

"Where do you think scenario writers get their ideas?"

"Judging from the product, I think they get them from each other."
