Rolled hay works well in winter

Lovell Hollar and his 'tumblebug'

by Wilmer Halkomb, S. C. S.

Lovell Hollar, landowner and conservationist of Nicholas County, has found another way to feed hay to his cattle during the winter. The 80 head of cattle that Hollar is feeding this winter is doing real well on the high quality hay and protein blocks that he feeds.

Hollar heads his rolled hay from his Gane Run farm to his cattle on other farms in Nicholas County. He finds that the "tumblebug" hay trailer works just fine pulled with his four-wheel drive pickup truck. He has been able to get hay to his cattle as needed all this winter and last winter and he thinks the weather has been a real test.

Hollar is the chairman of the board of conservation district supervisors for the Nicholas County Conservation District. He has been a conservation district supervisor for years and has been a practicing conservationist all his life. He believes in saving the "natural resources for the generations to come."

It is time to get the grass seeds and legumes tough for seeding this year. If you haven't gotten your soil test it is time. If one needs grass and legumes without a soil test one should use a complete fertilizer. Early seeded pasture and hay fields always do much better than late seeded fields. The weather might break and permit early seeding in March.

Good pastures and plenty of good hay is needed for success in livestock production and conservation.

If you need help in determining the best grass and legumes for your farm contact the Soil Conservation Service and we will give you the needed assistance.

Sandy Thacker spent Friday night with Sharon Doyle.

Jeffery Doyle attended a cousin party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Courtney and children near Cynthiana on Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hollar visited Mr. and Mrs. Layne Hollar on Sunday night and Sunday with Sandy Thacker, Gladys Bobbs and Mrs. Lora Ritchie at

The Caring Corner

"It is through Christ that God's greatest and most precious promises have become available to us, making it possible for us to escape the inevitable frustration that has produced..." - 1 Peter 1:4

"I'm a sexually liberated teenager" she declared during my response.

"I'm sorry to see that you have put yourself in a cage," I replied and began to walk off.

"Cage (#1)?" I'm an individual!" she retorted, catching up to me.

I stopped, looked her straight in the eyes and said, "All you have done is to allow your sensual drives to become stronger than your spiritual drives. Your thoughts, will, and emotions tend to be controlled by your sensual desires. And now you suffer from immense tension and internal conflict because God designed you to be of first of all spiritual. And if you are not careful your physical liberation will destroy your spiritual potential and result in the debauchery of yourself."

"You will only be liberated when you begin to live in harmony with God's design. You can only be free to yourself when you accept His standards, and until then you will remain in the cage you have made for yourself."

Good spellers

Evelyn Shrouf (right) and Angie Buckner (center) receive their spelling showdown for the photographers. The two were finalists in the KEA Spelling Bee held at the Nicholas County Elementary School last Thursday. Angie won, spelling "awkward" and "balloon" correctly. The contest included students from grades four through eight. Mrs. Julie Berryman (left) gave the words out to the contestants.—Mercury photo.

Carter proclaims March as 'Red Cross Month'

President Carter has proclaimed March as Red Cross month. In a proclamation signed Feb. 1, the President states:

Since its founding in 1881, the American Red Cross has had one basic purpose: the concern for others in distress. Indicative of this concern is the fact that over five million people have successfully completed Red Cross safety courses last year. Many of them received instructions in cardiopulmonary resuscitation and first aid techniques for choking. Exemplifying this concern is the certificate of merit, which is presented to our fellow Americans who have saved or sustained a human life with the skills learned in a Red Cross first aid, small craft or water safety training program. Since 1928, well over 6,000 persons have received this award.

The Red Cross also operates its blood services, which collect and process half of the supply of blood needed by the nation's medical facilities. Red Cross is continuously seeking new and more economical uses for blood and blood products. And there is always a need for more volunteer blood donors to meet the ever-increasing need for this lifesaving gift.

The Red Cross serves members of the Armed Forces, their families and veterans through financial assistance, counseling and emergency communications. Thousands of disaster victims each year receive a variety of Red Cross services, including emergency food, shelter and clothing, first aid and medical help, replacement of occupational tools and other vital services. And Red Cross volunteers may be found each day performing compassionate, personal tasks to aid the elderly, the handicapped and the homebound. Young people develop leadership skills as they assist in Red Cross programs in their schools and communities.

Each year, March is observed as Red Cross month. Although the American Red Cross works closely with government, there are no federal funds appropriated for its support. The Red Cross depends upon the American people for membership and voluntary contributions to carry out the functions of its congressional charter.

Now, therefore, I, Jimmy Carter, President of the United States of America and Honorary Chairman of the American Red Cross, designate March 1979 as Red Cross month. I urge all Americans to give generous support to the work of their local Red Cross Chapter.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and the Great Seal of the United States of America at the White House, Washington, D.C., this first day of February, in the year of Our Lord Nineteen Hundred Seventy-Nine, and of the Independence of the United States of America The Two Hundred and Third.

Buckner wins KEA spelling

by Deborah Newman

A feeling of intense excitement filled the air on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 22, as parents, teachers, friends, and contestants sat in the elementary music room to await the outcome of the K.E.A. Spelling Bee.

All students in grades 4-8 participated in the preliminary spelling. However, only one student per grade would be involved in the final competition. The winners of each grade were:

Teresa Cain, fourth grade; Angie Buckner, fifth grade; Martha Golby, sixth grade; Pam Sparks, seventh grade and Evelyn Shrouf, eighth grade.

One by one, the girls divided until the final two were alone. Evelyn Shrouf missed "awkward," which led Angie Buckner to capture the title by correctly spelling "awkward" and "balloon". Judges for the contest were Mrs. Rusty Lawrence and Mrs. Powell Neal. Julie Berryman, eighth grade, teacher, coordinated the school-wide spelling campaign.
