Crown vetch is hardy grower, stabilizes roadbanks

Crownvetch, Coronilla Varia L., is a perennial herbaceous legume that is deep-rooted, winter-hardy and drought-tolerant. Crownvetch is a beautiful plant. It is covered from the latter part of May through July with a blanket of purplish-pink to white-pink blossoms. Some scattered blooms are visible in August and September.

The plants are low growing, usually growing 18 inches to 36 inches tall.

Crownvetch can be established easily from seed or from plants. Once established, the plants produce new stems from spreading rootstocks, which improve or thicken the stand. It prefers a PH of 6.0 to 6.5. This would be slightly sweet soil or a soil limed at the rate of 2 ton per acre.

Plants normally produce seed the second year. Newly seeded areas should be kept free of heavy weed competition until the plants are three to four months old or until they are well established.

Established stands usually do not need mowing, but if the accumulation of top growth becomes unsightly or so dense that it retards the growth of the plants, the area can be mowed two or three times per year at a height of four inches without injury to the stand.

When planted on areas adjacent to lawns, it may spread into the lawn. It can be controlled by mowing or by using chemicals.

Crownvetch has been used extensively for about 25 years to stabilize highways roadbanks and other critical areas. The success in stabilization of the areas has been very good and is well known.

Many problem areas around homesites are created whenever land development takes place, such as borrow areas, fill and cut slopes, major land leveling areas, steep yard banks along streets, driveways fill and cutslopes, and other odd or critical area that need vegetative cover.

Frequent inquiries are received requesting information on using and planting Crownvetch on these problem areas. Usually these areas to be planted are small in size and will require small quantities of planting material, either seed or plants.

Two methods of planting seed are described here. There, no doubt, are others just as satisfactory.

Broadcast Seeding — If lime is needed, use approximately 10 ounces lime per square yard. This equals about two ton per acre of crushed lime or less if slacked bag lime. Fertilize with 5-20-20 or its equivalent at the rate of about five ounces or a little more than one half cup per one square yard. Prepare a firm seed bed and rake lightly to smooth the surface. Mix one and one half ounce or three tablespoons full of seed with one quart of soil or sand and low on the prepared seed bed. This amount of seed is enough to sow 250 square feet of area or 20 ft. times 10 ft. Cover the seed very lightly, if at all. Mulch with wheat straw or other mulch. Apply 20 pounds, approximately one half bale, string tied wheat straw per 250 square feet.

Spot Seeding — This method is especially well suited for seeding Crownvetch on steep and or eroded areas. Prepare the seed bed by scalping the vegetation, if present, from spots approximately 12 inches in diameter, space approximately two feet apart. Dig the holes in the center of the spots. Loosen the soil appxpximately six to eight inches deep. If the subsoil is very infertile or droughty, remove the soil from the holes and discard. Replace with good quality topsoil, to which has been added about one-fourth cup hydrated lime and two tablespoons of fertilizer, such as 5-20-20. Mix thoroughly. Firm the soil and sow 12 to 15 seeds evenly distributed on the prepared seedbed. Cover the seed very lightly, if at all.

Crownvetch plants can also be used to vegetate these sites. However more care and careful timing will be required when plants are used in place of seed. Make sure the planting stock is healthy and freshly dug. Plants should be spaced about two feet by two feet, the same spacing as for spot seeding. Prepare the seedbed same as for spot seeding. Add the fertilizer, lime and mulch the same.

Crownvetch seed should be sown March 1 to April 30. Crownvetch plants should be planted between March 1 and April 15.

You can obtain Crownvetch seed at local seed stores or they can order them for you. You can get Crownvetch plants from nursery.

Your local Soil Conservation Service can help you on many of your conservation problems. If you need help, call 289-2424.

Program signups start February 15

Farmers can sign up for the 1979 wheat and feed grain program beginning Feb. 15, according to Cliff Vice, Chairperson of the Nicholas County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee.

Provisions of the corn and sorghum set-aside program include a 10 per cent set-aside and a 10 per cent diversion. The wheat and barley program contains a 20 per cent set-aside requirement.

"Participation in the program is voluntary," Vice said. However, producers must file their intentions to participate during the signup period to be eligible for program benefits. All farmers planting feed grain and/or wheat for harvest in 1979 are eligible to participate.

Program participants will be eligible for price support loans, deficiency and disaster payments for barley, corn, sorghum or wheat on the participating farm, and on other normal crop acreage (NCA) grown on the farm. They will also be eligible to use the grain reserve.

Vice said farmers may also sign up for voluntary diversion payments on corn and sorghum. "However, there will be no advance voluntary diversion payment for 1979 crops."

Producers who sign up agree to take out of production one acre for every 10 planted in 1979 to corn and sorghum; two acres for every 10 planted to wheat and barley for grain; and reduce the acreage of NCA crops by this set-aside amount.

"By participating in the set-aside program, farmers help to prevent an excessive buildup of wheat and feed grain stocks which causes low farm prices," Vice said.

More program details may be obtained from the local ASCS office. The signup period will be conducted until April 16.

The Happy Gardener

GROWING BRIEFS

• Plants most easily cultivated in plain water are coleus, philodendron, wandering jew, syngonium, and velvet plants. These are guaranteed to last in hydroculture environments. Put a lump of charcoal in the water to keep it from souring, and unless the plant is far from direct sunlight, use an opaque container to prevent algae growth. When algae does begin to grow, wash container and roots every week until it is gone.

• Double-potting will keep plants damp between waterings. Plant your thirstiest plants in clay pots filled with a moisture-retaining soil mix. Put this pot into a larger container made of more airtight material such as glazed ceramic, or wood. Fill the space between clay and airtight containers with peat or shredded sphagnum moss up to about an inch from the rim of the clay pot. Water both the soil and the moss. The moss will hold water and supply it to the plant through the porous clay walls of the inner pot.

• You can also double-pot by using a glass container on the outside of the clay pot and by filling this outer container with layers of colored sand — a very attractive effect. Don't water the sand.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards, too. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle then strike it off the list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.

WHO WAS THAT LADY?

This woman began by desiring to make dramatic changes in the two occupations available to the women of her times, the 19th century: homemaking and school teaching. With her well-known writer-sister, she wrote a popular book, "American Woman's Home," which became the intelligent woman's guide to housekeeping and, as such, helped to dignify the work that most of her contemporaries were doing. She worked to create colleges which would train women to be teachers by tirelessly lecturing and writing on the subject. Who was that lady? Catherine Beecher.
