THE CARING CORNER

"To not to one another, seeing that you have put off the act of man with his deed." - Genesis 3:9
 Someone once said, "So many tools, but a few are handy that let's them all." I remember a story about a man whose door had not been set to lock. He never opened up to peck thieves. But he was broken into the kitchen and doubled his money. Then he went for a shopping. Seeing his two-penny number standing ready, he quickly opened some jam on the little fellow's face. "I'm sorry to do this to you," he said. "But I can't let you go until I do it. She will forgive you, but I know I'll get a whopper" that was hung a lot of times. He was not an accident happen, but she gives others a wrong impression that laugh them to form an enormous opinion. This is more subtle, but it is equally deceptive and useful.

Crime rate

 physical injury.
 The report also showed a 12 percent decline in the number of state, county and local police officers assaulted during the year.
 And while residential burglaries were down somewhat from a year ago, state police said that private homes still account for 62.2 percent of all reported burglaries. The total dollar value put on property lost through both residential and non-residential burglaries was more than $16.8 million.
 Auto thefts cost Kentuckians another $23.6 million in stolen vehicles.
 The overall loss figure for robbery and larceny was an additional $16.8 million. Almost half of the reported robberies took place on the street. However, the biggest factor behind larceny involved the taking of articles from automobiles, followed by thefts of auto parts and accessories.
 A breakdown of arrested offenders by age groups further revealed at least one-third of all those persons arrested last year for major crimes were juveniles. The biggest percentage of the juvenile offenders were held for burglary and larceny.
 The overall number of offenses reported for the year was 10,697, or about 3,021 crimes per 100,000 residents. Individual offense totals were for rape — 725, for auto theft — 8,256, for burglary — 30,293, for robbery — 2,444, for larceny — 50,201, for murder — 218, and for aggravated assault — 1,917.
 By comparison, the 1977 crime total was 102,127 offenses or 3,011 crimes per 100,000 Kentuckians.
 In another same-day release, state police confirmed an earlier unofficial count which put the number of persons killed in traffic accidents on Kentucky's highways during 1978 at 895.
 That total represents 68 fewer deaths than were reported over the same 12 month period in 1977.
 The report also listed another 41,486 persons as having been injured. The estimated total economic loss to Kentucky, as a result of fatal, non-fatal and property damage accidents, amounted to more than $436.2 million, the report shows.
 Although most of the persons killed were either riding in or operating a motor vehicle, state police noted that 107 of the victims were pedestrians. Another 12 were bicyclists. Motorcycle accidents accounted for another 57 deaths.
 Of all the fatal accidents reported during 1978, most — or 81.6 percent — resulted from a collision with another motor vehicle. And fully 50.6 percent of those were head-on collisions.
 State police said speed was the chief factor behind last year's death toll. By age group, the biggest percentage of those killed were between the ages of 15 and 24. Most of the drivers involved in fatal accidents also were from that same age group.
 According to the report, the most dangerous time to be on the road last year was between 7 p.m. and 11:59 p.m. on a Saturday. The most dangerous months last year were May, July, August and October.
 The report also noted that a person is far more likely to be run over by a neighbor than someone from out of state or even from the next county.

Paris; Betty Allen, N.J.; Charlene King, Mary Lick.
 Funeral services were held Saturday at the C.M.E. Church with burial in the Henryville Cemetery Mathers-Shearer Funeral Chapel, Carlisle, in charge of arrangements.

 Conley, a member of the class of 1924, said that when moving "D" the pictures began, the committee, faced some problems.
 "For one thing, two of the four members confessed they didn't climb steps as well as they used to and they were really not ready to go into the spirit of things," Conley said. "By the time we had all the pictures over here he was just as involved as any of us were."
 Other committee members include Bill Goshue (class of 1963) and Harry Galbraith and Charley McCann (class of 1930).
 During Monday's meeting Mrs. Elsie Snelling, Nicholas County Librarian,
