Watch farm fuel

Farmers can cut fuel consumption considerably if they operate equipment and store fuel efficiently.

Larry Turner, Extension energy specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, says that one of the easiest practices to adopt is "gearing up and throttling down" when operating a tractor. Turner cites a Nebraska study which reveals that reducing the engine speed and lightening loads can reduce fuel consumption by as much as 20 percent.

"This practice doesn't apply to power take-off (PTP) operations, though," advises Turner. "PTO work, such as using a hay baler, requires a constant speed and throttling down cuts back the PTO."

"Proper engine maintenence can also save fuel," adds the specialist. Turner relates that correcting the ignition timing, replacing worn-out spark plugs, servicing air cleaners, and making necessary carburetor and governor adjustments can increase horsepower by as much as 11 percent and reduce fuel consumption by almost 14 percent.

Fuel storage is another area where farmers can become more efficient. "As much as 10 gallons of fuel per month can be lost from an above ground fuel tank due to evaporation," informs Turner. "By merely painting the tank white, the loss can be reduced to only six gallons per month." He adds that placing the tank in the shade and installing a pressure vacuum relief valve can reduce evaporation even more. Turner says that the most fuel-efficient storage system is the underground tank, which loses less than one gallon of fuel per month.

Less gas in July

Kentucky's gasoline allocation for the month of July will be 21 percent less than the allocation for July 1978, according to Deputy Energy Management Commissioner Damon Harrison.

The projected allocation for this July is 146 million gallons. As a comparison, allocations in June totaled 145 million gallons, Harrison said.

Despite the cutback in gas supplies, motorists in Kentucky should not experience any major problems in getting gas for the upcoming July 4 holiday. First-of-the-month deliveries of gas should help people traveling for the mid-week holiday, Harrison said.

Kentucky's motorists should not have to face any long lines at the pumps if people observe normal buying habits. However, if motorists avert to "panic buying" and "top off their tanks" the long lines may appear, Harrison warned.

Motorists are asked to conserve gasoline, observe the speed limit, keep their cars properly tuned and organize their local buying trips, Harrison said.

Fashion 'n Fabrics

By FANNIE GLEESON

RIGHT WAY WITH ELASTICIZED WAISTS

The loose-fitting dress illustrated has a feature used in many easy-to-wear, easy-to-make dresses — an elasticized waistline.

Elastic is threaded through a casing, which is applied to the wrong side of the fabric at the waistline. The casing may consist of self-fabric or purchased tape. When self-fabric is used, allow for a one-eighth inch wide hem on each lengthwise edge of the casing plus the width of the elastic and another one-eighth inch to allow for smooth passage of the elastic. It's aggravating to discover that you've stinted on the width of the casing and have to push and prod to get the elastic through the casing.

Use three-eighths inch wide elastic. Look for the vertical ribs that help prevent twisting. Check the stretch at time of purchase. The fabric appropriate for this type of dress is lightweight.

It's a little tricky to determine the correct length of elastic needed for your waistline. Fabric thickness, plus the amount of fabric that's pushed along that piece of elastic, work together to make it seem tight or right. Add one-half inch to your waistline measurement. Before cutting, check this length over the dress at your waistline, lapping the ends one-half inch. If in doubt, it's better to allow a little extra elastic length and make a final adjustment after you wear the dress.

Before applying the casing, stitch down the free seam allowances in the dress at the casing location. This prevents poking the safety pin guide into the seam allowance, when threading elastic.

Another trick: pin a safety pin at the end of the piece of elastic, as well as at the beginning. When you've pulled the elastic through to its full length, secure the end by pinning it to the fabric so it won't slip into the casing. As you thread the elastic, check with fingertips to be sure you're not turning the elastic in the casing.

The finishing touch. Lap one end of elastic over the other for a distance of one-half inch. Yank it far enough out of the casing so that you can machine stitch ends together. Stitch a box-shape around the half-inch overlap. A single vertical line won't do. Close the opening with small hand stitches. If you've machine stitched the turned-under edges, you'll find it makes a neater, stronger closing.

MAGICWORD

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a line around each letter of a word found in the puzzle that forms it off the list. Circling it will show a word in the puzzle that forms it off the list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.
