BGADD uses as funds for bills

Residents of the Bluegrass Area Development District used a $100,000 of the district's $200,000 allocation this year from the Department for Human Resources program offering grants to elderly or disabled Kentuckians to help pay winter fuel bills.

Many area development districts fell short of their budgeted amount, department figures indicated. Statewide, about $2.5 million remains available from the Energy Cost Assistance Program, which began Dec. 1, 1978. A total of $5 million was approved by the state legislature for the program this winter. Applications will be taken through April 30.

ECAP provides assistance in paying winter fuel bills for households with a member who is either age 62 or older, or who is blind or disabled and receiving Medicaid or Supplemental Security Income benefits. The amount of aid depends on family size and income. Grants average about $80 per household.

Gail Huecker, commissioner of the department's Bureau for Social Insurance, said she hopes for increased response from prospective applicants before the April 30 deadline.

Huecker said, "Receiving an ECAP grant has no effect at all on other assistance the client is receiving. This is extra help for persons hardest hit by high utility bills in the winter."

"The bureau developed a simple, one-page application so that applying for aid would be as easy as possible. As with other programs, we have tried to keep red tape to a minimum," Huecker said.

ECAP will continue next winter with another $5 million allocation.

Nicholas is well suited for tree farming

Game management and forestry management are a natural when planning most farms. Most Nicholas County farms have land that is more suited for forestry or wildlife than crops, pasture, or hay. Forestry can be just as profitable a use for land as any other crop if properly managed. Forestry is a long term investment. Forestry can make land more valuable each year if the original owner does not harvest the trees. In many cases forestry is the only suitable use for the land. Some odd areas have to get to woodlands. This might require planting trees in order to get the right species of trees and the right number. Some areas are too steep to use for anything except trees. Some of this steep land has been cleared in the past years, and is ready to go back to forest. In order to have the best trees, planting is the best way to get trees started.

The Kentucky Division of Forestry has announced that they have tree seedlings for sale. They will sell bundles of trees with 100, 500, or 1000. They have many species for sale. If you need an order blank and price list see the Soil Conservation Service, ASCS, Extension Service, or one of your local Soil Conservation District Supervisors. Your local ASCS office will cost-share with you on the expense if you wish.

Wildlife management is always connected with forestry. Many of our animals live in the woods. They depend on the woods to produce food and protection. The animals that don't live in the woods use the woods for escape from their enemies. For an example it is difficult to have a good quail and rabbit population without having woodlands near.

Wildlife management requires at least three things which are food, water, and cover of the woods. There are many things that can be done that will provide the needed food for wildlife. If one wants equine they will need to have some of the hickories, oaks, walnuts, and mulberries. If one wants rabbits they will have to provide grass leys, and some cover or place for them to hide. If one wants song birds they can make plantings that will provide food and cover.

Water for wildlife can be provided with streams, ponds, and natural wet areas.

Dr. Leon Riggs planned for crops, hay, pasture, forestry, and wildlife while planning his farm. Dr. Riggs plans on leaving the young trees on the areas unsuited for other crops. He has built ponds that will supply water for all the farm needs and wildlife water. He plans to drain some wet land so he will have level land to grow his row crops on.

If you need help on planning your farm for its level use, see the Soil Conservation Service. The assistance from SCS is free.

THE CARING CORNER
Ezden 3529 "The children of Israel brought a offering unto the Lord."

I recently read a book describing three kinds of ovens—the flint, the sponge, and the honeycomb. To get anything out of a flint you must hammer it, and then you get only chips and sparks. To get water out of a sponge you must squeeze it, and the more you squeeze it the more you get. But the honeycomb just sweats with its own sweetness. Some people in Carlisle are stingy and hard as flint; they give nothing away if they can help it. Others are good natured; they yield to pressure, and the more they are pressed, the more they will give. But, thank God, there are still others who delight in giving without being asked, and it is these of this kind in Carlisle—cheerful givers—that the Lord loves.

What type of giver will you be tomorrow with your time, your talent, your fitness?

Babe Ruth League to meet Mar. 22

An organizational meeting of the Nicholas County Babe Ruth League will be held March 22 at 7:00 p.m. at the Nicholas County Library.

All persons interested in working with the Babe Ruth League this summer are urged to attend. Areas where volunteers are needed include coaches, umpires and sponsors.

Officers of the league for the coming year will also be elected at the meeting. Last year the Babe Ruth League, which is for boys from the ages of 13 through 19, had four local teams. The same number of teams is expected this year.

Anyone wishing more information should call league president Clifton Waugh at 265-2027.
