Editor's notes

owe me I figure it out. If I owe them (and I usually don't) I list them do it.

Famous people
You would think that a journalist would meet a lot of famous and important people. I mean this job lets you hobnob with nabobs daily, right? I mean, right there in the corridors of power, etc.
So how come the most famous person I ever met was Jack (Goose) Givens (we ate a tough steak together as he talked about how tough a coach Joe B. was and my sister has not only sat down at the same table and had a drink bought for her by Joe Namath but also escorted Paul Harvey and Art Linkletter from the airport in Lexington? a positive thinking rally a couple of weeks ago?)
She is prettier than I am and her job (District Court Administrator in Fayette County) doesn't require her to write, and sometimes not so favorably, about the people she meets. I guess that's why.
It reminds me of the time when I took my mom and dad to a Reds game on some freshies and we sat right behind home plate about 15 rows up.
On the way to the pennant stand my dad grumbled, "Journalists and lawyers. They always get the best seats."
Maybe so, but we always seem to end up paying for them in one way or another.

Joke time
Here's one from Jean Ann:
Two old friends meet after many years. One says to the other, "You must come out and see my new mansion."
"Fantastic," was the reply.
"And," continued the other lady, "you must see my new swimming pool."
"Fantastic," says the other.
"And you have to meet Harry. Harry is a famous nuclear physicist, you know."
"Fantastic," the other lady said again.
"Oh, dear, by the way, what have you been doing all these years?" says the lady.
"Going to charm school and learning how to say 'Fantastic' instead of 'bull'."
