haven't been right for it."
He said the spores can affect the plants "as long as there is living tissue present." This means that until the tobacco is cut down, wilted and in a semi-cured state the danger of blue mold is present.

Some growers who have discovered the fungus in their crop tried spraying with Ridomil with good results. But that blue mold chemical cure costs more than $100 per gallon and if the plants are big enough, spraying can become a problem.

"I notice that some growers are already cutting their crop even though they could grow some more," Phillips said. "That's because they weren't able to get the spray to the bottom leaves and they'd rather cut it now than take the chance of losing more of it."
The crop is somewhat later this year, due to the lack of any midseason moisture to help the plants along. And the total outlook for the Nicholas crop seems almost as grim as last year, when 39.6 percent of the crop was lost due to flooding and other problems.

This year, Phillips estimates, the crop may be as much as 30 to 35 percent short. But one thing is certain: "We, and that includes most of central Kentucky, have a definite problem with the tobacco crop and the diseases that are striking it," Phillips said. "It's awful hard on the grower to go through two straight years of short crops and when it's hard on the farmer, it's hard on everyone."

Farm

cattle accounted for 6 percent of the total 12,300 cattle and calves sold in 1978.
The number of hogs and pigs changed from 2,667 to 2,627.

Acres of crops harvested for 1978 and 1979 were as follows: corn for grain, 1,880 acres vs. 2,322 acres; hay, 13,204 acres vs. 9,770 acres; tobacco, 2,413 acres vs. 2,570 acres; corn for silage, 1,189 acres in 1978.
Production of tobacco for 1978 was 5 million pounds compared to 5.3 million pounds in 1979.

The figures are for farms qualifying under the definition. Any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold, or normally would have been sold, during the census year.
Data in the reports for acreage and inventories for 1978 and 1979 are directly comparable; however, dollar values have not been adjusted for changes in price levels.

September food stamps on time

Kentucky's food stamp recipients will get their September allotment on time, thanks to additional funds appropriated by the U.S. Congress.
Up to $46 million to continue food stamp benefits nationwide through next month has been appropriated by Congress.

The additional funding is the second supplemental appropriation made by Congress this fiscal year. Congress allotted $2.6 billion in May and provided $46 million this week "when it became apparent that the present funding would not last through the 1980 fiscal year," said Lela Bentley, manager of the food stamp branch within Kentucky's Department for Human Resources. Food stamp appropriations for this fiscal year total $9.181 billion.

Human Resources officials knew earlier this year Kentucky would deplete its food stamp funding and began planning "for an impending crisis," Bentley said. A network was established to inform Kentuckians that food stamp money might run out. "We were even making plans for emergency feeding sites and asking local church and civic groups to apply for federal funds to support feeding programs, especially for children," she said. With the additional appropriation from Congress, Bentley explained, emergency steps will probably not be necessary.
Administration of the food stamp program is funded on a 50-50, federal-state matching basis. Some 128,000 families in Kentucky receive food stamp benefits at no cost.

Illegal tobacco chemicals used

Some positive test results have been received from the U.S. Department of Agriculture Laboratory showing use of TDE, Totaphene, and Endrin on the 1979 crop of tobacco. All results for the previous two years have been negative. All such cases have been referred to the Office of General Council in Atlanta for criminal prosecution.

All Nicholas County tobacco producers have been mailed a letter from the local ASCS office notifying them of the regulations, and will be asked to certify to the nonuse of DDT, TDE, Totaphene, or Endrin before receiving their marketing certificate.

It has been discovered that one possible cause of the positive tests results is that some Dying services have been mixing some of these chemicals (DDT, TDE, Totaphene, and Endrin) with other spray materials and spraying soybeans and other crops near or adjacent to tobacco fields and the drift from the spray used on these crops has settled on the tobacco causing positive test on tobacco samples.

Producers wishing to obtain information regarding eligible chemicals for use on tobacco should contact the County Agent at 289-2312.
