

Pro cowboys and cowgirls coming to Rupp Feb. 8

Professional cowboys and cowgirls from across America and Canada will be riding and roping for world championship points in the Rupp Arena, Lexington, when the 2nd annual Longhorn World Championship Rodeo starts Saturday, Feb. 9, at 7 p.m.

More than 200 head of livestock will be transported here for the competition which will include barbed wire, brush riding, steer wrestling, saddle bronc riding, cowboy barrel racing, and roping and the most popular contest of all, bull riding.

In rodeo, spectators survey ranching from coast to coast, bull riding, consistently represents 36 percent of the vote as the favorite event. Each rider is required to stay on top of a bucking bull that can weigh as much as a ton for eight full seconds to qualify. Qualifying does not necessarily mean the rider will win part of the prize money, however. Two judges mark both the rider's and the bull's ability during the eight-second time limit and only six of the bull riders in the entire rodeo can win part of the prize.

Because many of the Longhorn Rodeo bulls are also noted for their fighting ability, the rodeo will feature three rodeo clowns during this contest. Two of them will be working on the ground, while a third will be stationed in a padded barrel. It will be the clown's responsibility to get the attention of the bull once the rider has left his back and that is not always an easy task.

In addition to the competitive events, this year's rodeo will also feature some of the sport's best known contract performers with new acts between the contests.

The three performance rodeo begins with a Bargain Night at 8 p.m. on Friday with all seats $6. Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Tickets are $7.50, $6.50 and $5.50 with kids 12 years and under half price on Sunday. Tickets can be purchased at the main box office and all normal ticket outlets.

In 1978 Marcon succeeded in transmitting radio signals for a distance of more than a mile.

Ford's Footnotes

By Senator Ed Ford

The Senate also sent Senate Bill 57 to the House. This would increase the terms of office for members of the Council on Higher Education, the boards of trustees for the Universities of Kentucky and Louisville and the boards of regents for the five regional universities to six-year terms whenever a vacancy occurs.

Let me encourage you to notify me in advance if you are planning a visit to Frankfort while the General Assembly is in session. It is helpful to me in the planning of my day if I know in advance that you will be here.

You can reach members of the General Assembly in Frankfort by toll-free telephone 1-800-372-7164 or by addressing mail in care of me to the State Capitol, Frankfort, KY 40601.

The House and Senate committees will listen to expert testimony, discuss the bills and decide whether to send the bills to the entire membership for a vote.

Among bills now being considered by the Legislature are: Senate Bill 28 — would prohibit non-resident foreign individuals and foreign businesses from owning or controlling more than ten acres of agricultural land in Kentucky for farming purposes; exempt agricultural land which is converted to non-agricultural purposes — now in the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources.

House Bill 105 — would require non-resident foreign individuals and foreign businesses to register with the Secretary of State and the county property valuation administrator if they own mineral rights on more than 40 acres of agricultural land — now in the House Committee on Agriculture and Small Business.

Senate Bill 88 — would allow milk cottage cheese and frozen dairy products to be sold below cost, a practice which is now prohibited in Kentucky; the proposal would also make changes in the state's Milk Marketing and Anti-Monopoly Commission — now in the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources.

House Bill 113 — would require people transporting nuclear materials into or through Kentucky to obtain a permit from the state; allow the state to recover from the shipping any costs incurred in preventing radioactive discharges; authorize the state to change dates, routes or times of shipments — now in the House Committee on Natural Resources and the Environment.

Senate Concurrent Resolution 3 — would establish a task force to address the effects of the proliferation of power plants, particularly nuclear power plants, in the Ohio River Valley — now in the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Senate Bill 89 — would direct the state to establish spy-nuclear clinics for dog control; increase dog license fees from $10 to $20 for spayed or neutered dogs and $30.00 for dogs which are not spayed or neutered — now in the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The Senate is meeting as a committee of the whole to hear testimony and expert witnesses in various areas of the highway budget for state government.

There are also informational seminars scheduled during the month of January to provide members with background information on such things as capital construction, state income tax reform, deregulation in occupational licensing, the state's juvenile code, pensions, the budgeting process, and a final report from the Flood Task Force which has been working since the record breaking floods in December, 1978.

Both the House and Senate were working on adoption of permanent rules for the 1980 session. The Senate adopted their permanent rules on Wednesday and the House was expected to adopt rules on Thursday.

The Senate passed Senate Bill 15 this week which would change the word "workman" to "workers" in the Kentucky Revised Statutes in references to compensation. The bill now goes to the House.

Lot of bull

Bull riding is always a favorite contest at the Longhorn World Championship Rodeo. The rodeo is coming to Rupp Arena Feb. 8-10. Surveys done by the rodeo from coast to coast show that 56 percent of the fans who attend the shows like the bull riding events best. — Photo submitted.

Gas prices jump

The average cost of gasoline rose six cents a gallon last month at full-service pumps and four cents at self-service pumps in central and eastern Kentucky, according to the Blue Grass Automobile Club (AAA) Fuel Gauge Report. This is the largest monthly increase in full-service prices to date in the auto club's surveys.

The average cost at full-service stations is $1.11 for regular, $1.16 for premium, $1.36 for no-knock and $1.06 for diesel. Self-service prices are $1.04 for regular, $1.11 for premium and $1.07 for no-knock.

These averages represent an increase of 29 cents per gallon in full-service and 29 cents in self-service prices since May 11, 1979.

77 percent of the stations contacted this month are open past 8 p.m. weekdays, compared with 39 percent last month. 64 percent are open past 9 p.m. on Saturdays, and 32 percent are open on Sunday, compared with 20 percent, $1.36 for no-knock and $1.06 for diesel. Self-service prices are $1.04 for
