House burns

smoke out so we could see if anybody was in there and where the fire was, he said. "But when we did see that it would just feed the fire..."
"Everything," he said, "was against us: the weather, the wind, the way the house was built. We were on the roof when the shingles started slipping off and we had to pull back..."
Raising funds
The fire department has been busy lately, but just what we need. It's sponsored wrestling matches here in Carlisle in an attempt to raise money for this Saturday night...
The funds being raised will be used to try to obtain another truck. Jerry says he knows grants are available, only they're hard to get. And it doesn't look as if there will be extra money in the city's coffers for a while to finance added equipment.

Jane Whiteley's mother nears century mark

By Margaret Arnett
The year 1980 ushered in a new decade... Jane Whiteley's mother, Mrs. Maggie Gray, is now 98 years old...
Jane Whiteley's mother, Mrs. Maggie Gray, was born on that date in 1881 in Lexington, Ky. At that time, Lexington was not even an incorporated town, but rather a small, rough-hewn village on the Brumby and Albany Highways...
Mrs. Gray's mother, Mrs. Jane Williams, was still considered a "Kentukian." Her advice to anyone wanting to live to be 100 years old is to "obey the commandment that says 'Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother,' live by the Golden Rule, and eat a good breakfast every day..."
Mrs. Gray believes that people are made the same today as they were during her younger days, except for one thing — their morals. "I think they are terrible," she says. "It's not getting more and more, they don't care what they say or what they do. If it would just go back to being the old-fashioned Mrs. Williams, her other living children are Ruth Williams of Lexington and Jane Whiteley of Carlisle, Ky. She now has seven grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and 12 great-great-grandchildren...
Of all the memories of her life, the most exciting to Mama Gray was a flight on one of the "machines that fly in the air" that her grandfather had talked about so many years before. She flew from Atlanta to Chicago on a Jumbo Jet four years ago. "That airplane ride made people across the street hold 300 passengers in all," she says. "I loved it!"
Since being her eight-three years ago, Mama Gray depends mostly on television and radio for her entertainment. Although she likes to listen to the soap operas on television, she watches the radio with her eyes open, as if for the political, "I'm a Democrat, and I don't believe I'll ever change."
As for what this year will bring for her, Mrs. Gray looks forward to a visit from her 84-year-old brother... "The girl Maggie loved forward to always saying, 'Let's play like...' And she's looking forward to a big walk 10 miles to get there. "Some family present to help her celebrate her 100th birthday."
