Editor's notes

That's right

Somebody asked me where I got my cold. I had to turn my head around and listen to the question again because one side of my head is all stuffed with cotton — or feels like it.

Finally when I understood, all I could say was "Propinquity" That and an open window on a cool night will do it every time.

Overheard

Question: "How re you feeling today, Jess?"
Answer: "Like a cross-cut saw."
Q: "How come?"
A: "It takes two men to handle me."

Loafer for rent?

For the past couple of months the Mercury has been running two pages of special inflation-fighting ads. My job was to take the pictures in the middle of the page. (It turned out that my job involved more than that but that's another story.)

Usually when I'd go into a business I'd ask how business was. A lot of times I'd be told, "Bad. It's falling off. Nobody in town. Nobody got any money," etc., etc.

Great, I'd think. I can get the picture without any trouble. But, like old Louie the Fourteenth said in Paris one day, "Apres-moi, le deluge."

Translated, that means, get out of the way, here come the customers. Most times I'd have to wait for 30 to 45 minutes to get the picture. Then I started getting the picture: Business ain't as bad as some folks make out. But the national media says we got a recession, the tv says we got a recession, the President says we got a recession. Who's right? Them, or the folks that are keeping me from my daily loafing.

Then of course it always could be that I am attracting the customers. But I don't think that's right. They don't follow me around. Just the best bargains.

The weaker sex?

A reason why I'm not hot to trot on writing articles on union organizing efforts may be traced to this little episode:

Once upon a time I was in the Eastern Kentucky coalfields during a bitter mine strike. About six months into the strike the miners' wives formed a committee and started picketing the courthouse. When their picture didn't make the front page of the paper that week they got mad. (Well, how was I to know?)

The next week, which was a particularly tense and violence-fraught seven days filled with wild rumors, I wrote an article for the paper about the week's events and it totaled 60 inches, or five feet of galleys.

About 20 minutes after the paper came out that week the miners' wives were after me. Seems I'd said in the article that they were "indignant" about the lack of media attention they were receiving. (We had all the biggies down there, media-wise.) But they thought I meant "ignorant". They even looked it up in the dictionary in the new library and found out what it meant, but that didn't stop them from raising old Ned.

So about 30 of them stormed the paper office. I was home for lunch at the time but I needn't have worried. Those 30 were no match for the three in the office and they were told that if they were "indignant" before they sure were "ignorant" now.

Coming from a neighbor that cooled 'em off real quick. I was just happy there was only one word in five feet of news that anybody could question. But to me it goes to show that when this stuff starts, good sense usually takes a vacation.

Let's hope it won't happen here.

One of the first of the homemakers who combined domestic work with a profession in this country, this woman produced four novels, raised all her children alone after she'd been widowed, and claimed never to have sacrificed to her pen "one social or one domestic duty." She lived from 1759 to 1855. Who was that lady?

The Wine Rack

By BIANCA St. JOHN

PINK CHAMPAGNE

Old-fashioned romance is in fashion again and so is pink champagne.

The legend of how pink champagne originated is very much associated with nuptial bliss. As the story goes, a beautiful and wealthy bride ordered a special champagne to be made for her wedding because she wanted the sparkling wine to perfectly match her bridesmaid's satin slippers.

Vintners of the northernmost vineyard in France, the Champagne Province, tell another story. Pink champagne came about, they say, as an accident of nature. Due to a great deal of sunshine during the growing season, some of the pigmentation in the red champagne grape skins merged with the pulp of the fruit and created the pink blush of the wine. This was more than a hundred years ago. Today, the making of pink champagne — also called rose champagne — is a tricky process.

One method is for the wine maker to allow the skins of the dark Pinot Noir grapes to remain in the juice after pressing. Another process involves adding an exact proportion of still red wine from Bouzy or Ambonnay in the province of Champagne, to the sparkling wine just before it is fermented for the second time.

Producing just the right hue and taste is very difficult, and champagne makers can never be certain that the results will be perfect. For this reason, it is impossible to predict quantities of pink champagne from year to year, and it is usually a bit more costly than golden champagne. But, slightly sweeter and very pretty to look at, pink champagne is worth the extra expense when the occasion calls for something really special.

HOROSCOPE

NEXT WEEK'S

FOR WEEK BEGINNING MONDAY, JUNE 23, 1980
If your birthdate occurs this week ...
Your sensitive feelings are easily hurt. When you're unhappy or insulted you will retreat into solitude.

Aries Mar. 21 - Apr. 19 Mars
Much depends this week on your skill in handling money matters. If you're wise, you will take very careful stock of your assets. Figure out where you're headed and keep well within the limit of your resources.

Taurus Apr. 20 - May 20 Venus
Aspects accent friendships, hopes and wishes. Something you've worked on for a long time may shape up and become profitable. Others recognize the true attributes of your real character. Don't be resentful.

Gemini May 21 - June 20 Mercury
Favorable moon signs indicate that difficulties in a love relationship will be removed. Consult an older person who will give you good advice. There's a tendency to neglect yourself. Fatigue could be a problem.

Cancer June 21 - July 22 Moon
You teach and learn. You find out more facts of life. You find that impulsive action sometimes carries a price tag, that some unscrupulous people take advantage of you, that extravagance should be stopped.

Leo July 23 - Aug. 22 Sun
You may be in the best of fortune this week. A career plum may fall right into your lap. Your mental abilities will be valued and praised in a very sincere way. Whatever you do, don't act on impulse.

Virgo Aug. 23 - Sept. 22 Mercury
You are relieved of a bothersome burden and have learned a lesson. From now on be more independent and do more things yourself. Have little patience with indecisive people, cut through red tape and be frank.

Libra Sept. 23 - Oct. 22 Venus
Your ruling planet favorably aspects your activities this week. Think and act big. A confident manner brings rewards. Light is suddenly cast on a matter you've found puzzling. Good time for new ideas.

Scorpio Oct. 23 - Nov. 21 Pluto
The aspects amongst your stars indicate a mellow and peaceful mood this week. Be happy and let the chips fall where they may. Stay away from an enemy or acquaintance. Don't let anyone downgrade your efforts.

Sagittarius Nov. 22 - Dec. 21 Jupiter
Excellent week to improve domestic harmony, home comforts and security. Brighten your home environment with more color and better lighting. A wel' to-do and very acceptable acquaintance looks up to you.

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 19 Saturn
Moon signs accent your precise judgment and almost uncanny intuition. Know this and be confident. Emphasize personal appearance and put your best foot forward. Good time for courtship and romance.

Aquarius Jan. 20 - Feb. 18 Uranus
There will be a more harmonious atmosphere at work or home as relationships improve. Substantial gains can be made in your career and financial goals. One close to you makes some unusual demands.

Pisces Feb. 19 - Mar. 20 Neptune
Something good will develop through a personal contact recently made. Your partner or mate is impressed by nice things others have to say about you. Activities such as dancing and competitive games are favored.
