Goodness gracious what have we here? Everything seems a "shogun wadding" including a flower girl to Minnie Mouse. Hee Hee even has a representative. Can you pick her out among these Halloween Hoologans? US food dollar may not buy enough nutrition

Americans spend an average of $1.20 per person for food each year, but they may not be buying their money's worth in nutrition.
 Americans have changed both where and how they spend their food dollars during the last 15 years. They are eating more, and spending a greater share of the food budget at the restaurant than they did in 1965, said Dr. Piedad Maruyana, Extension food and nutrition specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.
 Of weekly food expenditures, averaging $23 per person, 47 or 72 percent goes for groceries, and 46 or 72 percent for meals and snacks away from home, according to Maruyana. In 1965, Americans spent an average 17 percent of their food budgets for restaurant meals.
 The groceries they bring home have changed as well. A recent USDA survey shows Americans are buying less milk, dairy products, breads and cereals, eggs, fats and oils, sugar and candy, and vegetables — especially potatoes. They are buying more beef, poultry, fish, nuts, fruit, soft drinks, desserts and alcohol, especially beer and wine.
 The supermarket food dollar now consists of 38 cents for meat, poultry, fish and eggs; 20 cents for fruits and vegetables; 12 cents for dairy products; 12 cents for breads and cereals; 7 cents for sugar, candy, soft drinks and desserts; 4 cents for beer and wine; and the remaining 7 cents for fats, oils and other foods.
 Not all the changes in eating and buying habits have brought nutritional benefits. Studies continue to show people in this country are not as well nourished as they might be, said Maruyana. "Americans still consume too many calories, and too much fat, cholesterol, salt and alcohol."
 Sugar and alcohol consumption has increased dramatically since 1965. Americans are drinking 38 percent more alcoholic beverages, mostly beer and wine. And although they buy less sugar and candy, they actually consume more sugar — largely in soft drinks, punches and desserts, Maruyana said.
 Use of soft drinks and desserts has jumped a whopping 150 percent in 15 years. Per capita consumption of soft drinks is now $3.8 billion per year, and that amount contains 34.4 pounds of sugar, said Maruyana. "That is the equivalent of each American drinking a 16-ounce can of soda every day, and consuming more than three table-spoons of sugar in that 16-ounce can."
 As Americans buy more beer, wine, soft drinks and desserts, they may be shortchanging themselves on nutrition. "Alcohol and soft drinks provide calories, but few nutrients," Maruyana

Tips given to combat shoplifting at holidays

The Christmas shopping season sales, the bad news is shoplifters bring good and bad news to retail merchants. The good news is increased prevention, shoplifting increases dramatically during the Christmas shopping season.
 Gary Bush, crime prevention official, said the season brings out professional shoplifters who work in the cover of large crowds of shoppers.
 According to the uniform crime report maintained by the state police, 4,999 persons were arrested for shoplifting last year. Shoplifters took merchandise valued at $254,304, an average of $54 per theft.
 Bush said that the real figure for shoplifting is probably double that.
 "The number of shoplifters caught is only a small percentage of the total shoplifters in the state," he said.
 "Even with the Christmas spirit, I doubt that many merchants want to give their merchandise to shoplifters," he commented. Merchants should take steps to discourage shoplifters and make shoplifting more difficult, he said.
 One of the most basic steps to take, Bush said, is to prosecute all shoplifters caught in the store and make court appearances.
 "Stores that don't prosecute get a reputation among professional shoplifters as easy targets," he said.
 Other tips to combat shoplifting:
 — Greet all customers as they enter.
 It's good for business and discourages shoplifters. Shoplifters don't like attention.
 — Watch for jittery eyes and nervous hands. These may be clues to a potential shoplifter.
 — Pay special attention to persons with large packages or purses and those wearing unusually bulky clothing.
 Bush, a former police officer, said he once arrested a man who had sewn pillow cases to the insides of the pockets on a loose coat. The man had $300 in clothing stuffed in the coat.
 — Keep valuables in locked displays and away from store exits.
 — Avoid tall displays and long rows that can provide hiding places for shoplifters to work. Limit the number of garments that can be tried on in changing rooms.
 — Neatly kept displays and regularly removed empty hangers can tip store personnel to a shoplifter at work.
 Bush said that advertising shoplifting policies with signs around the store discourages many shoplifters. Merchants who think they've spotted a shoplifter should call the police. If the person attempts to leave the store, the merchant has the right to confront the suspected shoplifter.
 He said, the merchant should ask the suspect, "Do you have something of mine? I would like it back."
 The U.S. Dept. of Justice said the amount of time until police arrive.
 Merchants who want more information on combating shoplifting can contact their local police or state police post or call the office of crime prevention at 1-800-772-2969.
