FHAC meeting

Southern States Cooperative Regional Farm Home Advisory Committee meeting was held recently in Lexington.

Mrs. Nancy Slaughter of the Richmond, Va. office was in charge. Attending from Carlisle were Mrs. Sue Shaffer, manager of Southern States Carlisle Coop., Mrs. William Dampier, Mrs. Rose W. Snow, Mrs. Bobby Sexton, Mrs. Clay Fryman, Mrs. Dagnie Letcher, Mrs. John Barrett, Mrs. Sharon Wilson, All Extension Agent and Mrs. Margie Wilson, Nicholas County Home Economist.

Financial burden

The generic value is seen as contributing information useful in overcoming problems being experienced at other low-level waste sites, she said.

Specifically, the Moxey Flats site has a water problem that causes waste-filled trenches to fill with water. Presently the state spends $1.6 million a year in upkeep and maintenance. Approximately $500,000 of that amount is spent for perpetual care and operation of evaporation equipment.

Despite the department's $18 million budget for fiscal year 1981, Drensen said Kentucky would not likely receive any large financial assistance grants.

Funds instead would be used to develop a national plan for improved low-level waste disposal, design of waste treatment plants and of interim-storage containers.

REFUNDING

BY VICTORIA R. FLEMING

The holidays will soon be here and clever refunders are already following up on offers that will ease the financial strain of entertaining. While almost everyone else is busy with the daily challenge of serving nutritional and economical meals and snacks, imaginations can really be stretched when it comes to feeding larger groups of family and friends.

Many of the national manufacturers seem to share one concern by offering coupons and refund deals — to make the traditional "grooming board" less of a real granger in three days of mounting food prices by taking advantage of these exciting holiday news offers.

Q. What can I do if all the items have been taken from a supermarket display? A. Look around to see if a "pad grabber" has torn off too many items and dropped them on the shelves or floor around the display. Ask store managers or salespeople if there are more pads available. If the offer is for multiple items, check the area near the other products for the forms. Be sure to check the cardboard backing on the pad — if you're lucky, an address will be printed for you to write away for the form.
