

1
6

O
C
T

1
6

UK revolving fund

Philip Losch wins Pharmacy award

Philip C. Losch of Johnson-Mathers Health Care Facility in Carlisle has won a $750 award in the Burroughs Wellcome Pharmacy Education Program, Research Triangle Park, N.C. The award money will be presented to University of Kentucky in the name of Mr. Losch to establish a revolving loan fund for deserving pharmacy students.

Mr. Losch is a native of Elizabethtown and graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy in 1972. He is married and he and his wife Julie and children Andrew, 7½ years, and Hebeccah, four months, live in Cynthiana. He moved to Cynthiana from Colorado in 1977 and was with the Harrison County Memorial Hospital before accepting the position of Director of Pharmacy at Johnson-Mathers Health Care Facility in May 1980.

The $117,000 Pharmacy Education Program is sponsored by Burroughs Wellcome Co., one of the nation's leading pharmaceutical manufacturers. Three pharmacists from each state and the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico were selected as winners this year. More than 40,000 pharmacists across the country submitted entries.

Selective Service late registration

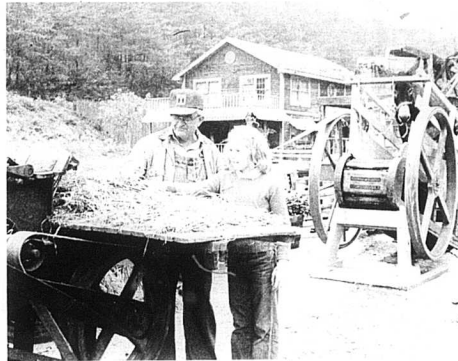

The 1980 Selective Service Registration for men born in 1960 and 1961 has been completed, but late registrations continue to be accepted by U.S. Post Office from men who failed to register because of special circumstances, or through oversight or misunderstanding.

The next formal registration period will be the week of Jan. 5, 1981, for men born in 1962. From that point forward, Selective Service will require continuous registration of men within 30 days of their 18th birthday.

Farm interest rate lowered

Interest rates effective Sept. 29 for farm storage facility loans made through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, ASCS, were reduced by ½ percent — to 12½ percent.

Farm facility loans help farmers build needed farm storage and drying equipment. Presently in Nicholas County, no loan has been made as a producer to erect a silo. The loans are for a period of eight years with seven equal installments. Interested producers should contact the local ASCS office for additional information.

Donkey Thresher

Tracy Dotson, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dotson, Route Three, Carlisle, helps Milburn Flynn feed hay into his donkey powered thresher at the 4th Annual National Crafts Festival at Silver Dollar City in Pigeon Forge, Tenn. Over 75 craftsmen from all over the country are demonstrating their pioneer skills daily except Thursday. The festival continues thru Oct. 19, Silver Dollar City, located near Gatlinburg and the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. — Photo submitted.

Three C'sers have September get together

"It was one of the best government programs we ever had. We got three hot meals a day, good sleep and exercise, and we learned first-rate discipline," says Everett Crum of Hatcherwood, in Bourbon County.

Recently Crum was able to get together with two former working buddies, Arnold Smith of Deland, Fla., and Arthur Cox of Ferrisdale, Miss. Crum, Smith and Cox were co-workers in the Civilian Conservation Corps program in 1947. They worked on a state camp near Cumberland Falls Resort Park outside Corbin.

"We worked on building trails, roads and the lodge, in addition to clearing brush and debris from the area. We learned to get the job done and we gained experience that helped us later," said Crum.

The purpose of the corps was to relieve widespread unemployment among the nation's youth while restoring the country's natural resources. At the time, work was hard to find, and belonging to the conservation corps was a blessing.

About 175 former conservation-corps workers gathered to relive old times Sept. 26-28 at an original campsite, Cumberland Falls. It was the second annual conservation corps reunion held at the state park and plans already have been made to hold a third one there next year.

Returning to Cumberland Falls was special to some former corps workers since they were able to recognize their work of some 40 years ago. Not all the workers returned to the area while enrolled in the program. Some left Kentucky's camps after completing their work to go out west to work. Others never worked in Kentucky camps, yet they all had similar stories

School Board meets next meeting date Saturday, Nov. 8

The Nicholas County School Board held a meeting Oct. 15. The following motions were approved by board members:

— Resignation of Jacqueline Jones as Migrant Program teacher effective Oct. 31.

— Employment of Judy Hawkins as elementary teacher effective Oct. 8.

— Use of Nicholas County Elementary School for Regional Girl Scouts meeting Saturday, Oct. 25.

The following people were approved as substitute teachers: Annette Wallace, Cordelia Smith, Gregory O'Bannon, Kevin Crago, Clady Crago.

— Use of the Nicholas County High School cafeteria for a chili supper by the Carlisle Community Women's Club Dec. 5 and 6.

— Grant commission to Kentucky State Police for a one-hour presentation on "Operation Identification" in grades 4, 5 and 6.

— Band trip to Morehead State University Oct. 25.

— Paying for 12 physical examinations at the WEXCO Health Department.

— Non-resident contracts for Robertson County, Paris Independent, Harrison County, Bourbon County and Fleming County.

— F.F.A. to raise 1981 tobacco and hay crop.

The next school board meeting will be Nov. 8 instead of Nov. 1.

THREE BLOODMOBILE VISITS

New donor year begins Oct. 27

A new donor year has begun and Nicholas Countians will have their first opportunity to give blood on Monday, Oct. 27. The blood donor program for Carlisle and Nicholas County is sponsored by the Nicholas County Memorial Association, and provides valuable protection for residents of the county. The quota of 275 pints is reached. Since we reached our goal last year, all Nicholas Countians are guaranteed availability through Sept. 1981.

Three bloodmobile visits are scheduled during the year, plus two visits at Blue Grass Industries. Persons between the ages of 18 (with signed parental consent) and 65 (up to the 66th birthday) weighing 100 pounds or more and having normal temperature and blood pressure are generally eligible to give. Persons taking medications such as vitamins, hormones and birth control pills are eligible to donate.

Any person meeting the above qualifications may give provided it has been eight weeks since the last donation. Employees who donated at Blue Grass Industries at their last drawing are eligible to donate again.

Since this is the beginning of a new donor year, donors who have not given since last October are especially encouraged to donate now, as this will provide continued blood coverage if you move out of Nicholas County. Also, any persons who have received blood transfusions during the year, regardless of the source or location, need to report such receipts to the Central Kentucky Blood Center or to one of the ministers named below so that proper credits may be issued.

The Bloodmobile will be at the Carlisle United Methodist Church on Monday, Oct. 27 with donations being received between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m., and again from 8:30 to 9 p.m. New donors are badly needed, as the number of potential donors continues to decline due to age, health and other factors. Persons unable to give either at Blue Grass Industries or at the Methodist Church may still give at the Central Kentucky Blood Center, 330 Waller Avenue, in Lexington. Be sure to designate your donation as being for Nicholas County. Giving at other locations than those named here will not benefit Nicholas County. If you would like to become a new donor, or if you are not contacted concerning an appointment to donate, you are encouraged to call one of the following ministers for further information: Rev. Robert Gipson, 289-2346, Rev. Herman Kammage, 289-2402, Rev. Mark Prevo, 289-7390, or Rev. David Stanell, 289-9638. If there are questions concerning eligibility, you may call the Central Kentucky Blood Center toll free at 1-800-472-6258.

Mighty good eating

Andy Judge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Judge of Moorefield, shows two steers he raised as FFA projects. Above is his 1125 pound Hereford-Maine Angou steer purchased by the Deposit Bank of Carlisle at the District Steer Show held in Lexington recently. This steer placed fifth out of 65 in the district carcass show held in Versailles. Below Andy and his 1175 pound Limousin cross steer purchased by Hyatts Trucking Company of Lexington. — Photo submitted.

Consumer catalog to be published

Homemakers program helps develop skills

An area Displaced Homemakers Program at UK's Lexington Technical Institute now serves 11 Kentucky counties.

The 11 counties are Nicholas, Franklin, Anderson, Mercer, Jessamine, Boyd, Garrard, Lincoln, Estill, Powell and Harrison.

The objective of the program is to provide counseling services, vocational training and financial assistance to homemakers so they can develop vocational skills to take care of themselves and their families.

The program's state office is located at the University of Kentucky.

A national project to create programs for displaced homemakers was approved in 1973. Approximately $2 million was made available for the Kentucky phase of the project through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The Bureau for Manpower Services of the Kentucky Department of Human Resources is cooperating in the project.

* Please turn to page 3

no grease on the engine. I think the inspections were good for the men's welfare," Ford said.

Aside from discipline, the conservation corps provided workers with an opportunity for education. According to Danner, at least 20 percent of the men were illiterate so they were taught to read and write. Each camp had at least one person with a college degree, who was called on to teach.

Recreation also was an important part of the corps. Films were shown once a week, men were allowed to take part in organized sports and passes could be obtained to go into town for an evening or weekend.

Conservation corps camps were portable. Each camp contained four 50-men barracks, a mess hall, a recreation catalog, which will be easy to use and to read, is designed to help consumers cut through the "red tape" in finding solutions to their problems.

* Please turn to page 10

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear has announced the consumer protection division of his office has been awarded $23,000 by the Federal Department of Education to produce a Kentucky consumer catalog.

The Kentucky consumer catalog will provide Kentucky's consumers with information on rights and obligations, suggestions for wisely purchasing goods and services, methods to help solve problems in the marketplace and a specific guide to federal, state and local agencies that can provide assistance with these concerns. The catalog, which will be easy to use and to read, is designed to help consumers cut through the "red tape" in finding solutions to their problems.