Vincent Price to appear in MSU's Concert Series

Vincent Price, one of the best known villains in theatre, will be at Morehead State University on Thursday, Feb. 19. "The Villain Still Pursues Me" will be presented as part of MSU's Concert and Lecture Series at 10:30 a.m. in Button Auditorium. The program is free and open to the public.

Among Price's more than 100 films are such classics as "The House of Seven Gables", "The Three Musketeers", "The Ten Commandments", "The House of Wax", "The Raven", "The Pit and the Pendulum" and "The Theatre of Blood."

Vincent Price

Price made his film debut in 1938 after making his stage debut in England. At age 23, Price was selected to open on Broadway opposite Helen Hayes in 1935 and the success of "Victoria Regina" launched him on a Broadway career.

He made the transition to television, appearing on the first video program to be televised nationally. He followed it over the years with appearances on dramatic, variety and entertainment programs.

For more than 15 years, Price has been on the lecture circuit appearing in more than 350 American cities speaking on such subjects as modern art, primitive art, the letters of Van Gogh, three American voices (Walt Whitman, James Whistler and Tennessee Williams), the enjoyment of great art and "The Villain Still Pursues Me", a history of villainy.

Price has also appeared with several major symphony orchestras as narrator for works including "Peter and the Wolf" and "Oedipus Rex."

If you are not a cookie eater, that is no excuse for not buying. In the next few weeks this column will publish recipes for desserts using the Girl Scout cookies.

BROWNIE PIE

14 Girl Scout Thin Mint Cookies
3 egg whites
Dash of salt
¼ cup granulated sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts

Roll cookies to crush. (If cookies are warm and chocolate soft, chill slightly before rolling.) Beat together egg whites and salt until soft peaks form. Add vanilla. Add sugar gradually, and beat until stiff peaks form. Fold in cookie crumbs and nuts. Pour into a greased 9-inch pie pan. Spread evenly. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. Remove from oven and cool completely. Serve with whipped cream garnished with chocolate bits or shaved chocolate. 8 servings.

NO-BAKE DATE NUT ROLL

12 Girl Scout Oatmeal Cookies, crushed
¾ cup chopped dates (about 5 oz.)
½ cups miniature marshmallows
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup non-dairy whipped topping

Take about ½ cup of crushed cookies and set aside. Combine remaining cookies with dates, marshmallows, and nuts in a bowl. Add whipped topping and mix well. Grease hands with butter or margarine. Form mixture into a ball, pressing very hard. Sprinkle the ½ cup crumbs on a plate or a sheet of waxed paper. Roll date, nut mixture in crumbs as you shape it into a roll about 6 or 8 inches long. Wrap tightly in waxed paper and chill several hours. (This delicious dessert improves with age.) Slice and serve with additional whipped topping if desired. 6 servings.

QUICK TORTONI

1 quart vanilla ice cream
2 cups non-dairy whipped topping
12 Girl Scout Shortbread cookies, crushed
½ cup chopped almonds, toasted
8 candied cherries, cut up (optional)

Soften ice cream. Fold in whipped topping. Add crushed cookies, reserving ¼ cup for garnish. Add almonds and cherries. Mix lightly, to combine ingredients well. Mound into individual paper muffin cups or a serving bowl. Sprinkle cookie crumbs on top. Freeze. 10 or more servings.

TANGY ORANGE YOGURT PIE

18-20 Girl Scout Shortbread Cookies
1 13-oz. package orange gelatin
1 cup orange juice
1 cup sweetened, flaked coconut
2 cups (1 pint) natural yogurt

Arrange 10-12 cookies to cover the bottom of a 9-inch pie pan. Empty gelatin into a medium sized bowl. Heat orange juice to boiling. Pour over gelatin and stir to completely dissolve. Cool mixture until it begins to thicken. Fold in coconut and yogurt. Combine well. Pour over cookies in pan. Top with 8-10 cookies. Chill until firm. Top with whipped cream or topping, if desired. 6-8 servings.

'Know-How for the 80s' is theme of FHA/HERO Week celebration

The second week in February is a special week for members of the Nicholas County FHA chapter because they are celebrating National FHA/HERO Week as a part of National Vocational Education Week. Across the country FHA/HERO chapters of Future Homemakers of America are planning activities focusing on the theme Vocational Education: Know-How for the 80s.

Future Homemakers of America is one of eight vocational education youth organizations. A part of junior and senior high school home economics curriculums, it provides meaning and motivation for youth working toward educational goals related to consumer home economics and vocational home economics education. It reaches beyond classroom instruction into the home and community.

During the week, the Nicholas County chapter has various activities planned. Posters will be hing about the school, a FHA display in the front hall, special Valentines for the teachers will be made, and a Red and White Day for the FHA members.

Future Homemakers of America has 12,000 chapters and a national membership of 400,000. There are two types of chapters. FHA chapters place major emphasis on consumer education, homemaking, and family life education combined with exploration of jobs and careers. HERO (Home Economics Related Occupations) chapters place major emphasis on preparation for jobs and careers with recognition that workers also fill multiple roles as homemakers and community leaders. Both kinds of chapters place major emphasis on growth of the individual, leadership development, citizenship, and dual roles.

Founded in 1945, the organization is celebrating its 35th anniversary during the 1980/81 school year. The national headquarters is located in Washington, D.C.

Western Union increases rates

The state Utility Regulatory Commission has approved rate increases by Western Union which will mean an additional $37,000 in annual revenue for the company in Kentucky.

The Federal Communications Commission had already approved an increase in the company's interstate rates, said Robert Fulton Jr., director of regulatory matters for the Washington, D.C.-based company. Fulton testified during a commission hearing in December.

Western Union is applying for rate hikes in all 44 states where it is subject to regulation, he said.

More money is needed because changes in labor contracts and other increased costs have resulted in a poor rate of return for Western Union, according to Fulton.

The increases are the first for this segment of Western Union's business since 1975, he said.

Its rates will raise from $4.75 to $6, a $1.25 increase, for a basic 15-word message. Overnight telegram rates will increase from $4 for a basic 100-word message to $5.50 for a 50-word message; and its personal opinion telegram rate will raise from $2 for 15 words or less to $3.50 for 20 words or less.

Telegrams are usually delivered within four hours while overnight telegrams are delivered the next day. Personal opinion telegrams within the state are sent to the governor or to legislators while they are in Frankfort.

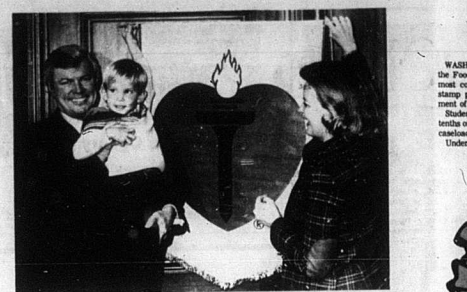
Most college students off food stamp program

WASHINGTON — Recent changes in the Food Stamp Act have eliminated most college students from the food stamp program, a new U.S. Department of Agriculture report shows.

Students now comprise only two-tenths of one percent of the food stamp caseload.

Under the Food Stamp Program Amendments of 1980, enacted by Congress last year, students were made ineligible for food stamps unless they have dependents, are elderly or disabled, or already work. The study shows that the new law has cut most students from the program. At one time, over 200,000 students received food stamps.

Over half of all students remaining on the program are heads of households who support dependents. Most of these are single mothers supporting children with Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) while they attend school to gain skills that may enable them to get off welfare and into regular employment.



Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., pictured with Bret Bemis, Frankfort, the 1981 Kentucky Heart Fund Poster Child, and Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins, state Heart Fund chairman, has proclaimed February Heart Fund Month in Kentucky. There are some 425,000 Kentuckians who suffer from heart disease, this country's No. 1 cause of death. In Kentucky, more deaths result from cardiovascular disease than from all other causes combined. The Kentucky Heart Association, a voluntary agency, has set a Heart Fund goal of $830,954 for 1981. Last year it collected more than $700,000. The Heart Association uses its collected funds for research and public education and community service programs. Last year, more than $200,000 in Heart Fund grant money was awarded to Kentucky research scientists. Five-year-old Bret's two years ago successfully underwent open heart surgery to correct a hole in the heart.

Bus driver retirement age raised to 70

The state Board of Education last Tuesday passed a motion to raise the maximum retirement age of school bus drivers from 65 to 70 and reversed a Kentucky High School Athletic Association decision concerning a student's sports eligibility.

At the December board meeting, Deputy Attorney General Robert Chenowith suggested the board direct Department of Education personnel to secure additional information justifying age 65 as the maximum retirement age for school bus drivers.

Tuesday, Chenoweth reacted to the information gathered by department personnel and said, "Based on the information I have seen, I suggest the board modify the recommendation and take it up to 70." The board then voted to raise the limit from 65 to 70.

Board members voiced their concerns over allowing school bus drivers between the ages of 65 and 70 to operate buses, but, based on the recommendation made by Chenoweth, the motion passed and the regulation will now be in complete compliance with the federal regulations concerning age discrimination.

The board also voted not to uphold the athletic association's Board of Control recommendation concerning athletic eligibility in the case of John Henry Small. The Board of Control had ruled Small ineligible for athletic competition in accordance with By-Law 6, which requires a 36-week waiting period for students transferring from one school district to another.

Board member Stuart Jay pointed out that in this case there was evidence that the Board of Control should have waived the penalty according to By-Law 6 which does allow for eligibility when the residence of the student's parents changes from one district to another.

Board member Jay stated, "The student's legal parent was changed by the court when he moved from New York to Kentucky, which means that his parents, legal not natural, did change residence and the student should not be penalized for this change." The board upheld the other athletic association appeal concerning student eligibility.

The board in earlier meetings had recommended the association review By-Law 6 and at Tuesday's meeting heard a report from Commissioner Tom Mills concerning proposed rule changes.

In other action, the board presented Amy Brown of Lexington with a scholarship donated by board members, former board members and Department of Education personnel. Brown is the daughter of the late Rev. Bob Brown, a former board member.

Winter fuel bill aid still available to assist low-income families

As many as 10,000 low-income households in Kentucky may still be able to get help with their winter fuel bills.

A Department for Human Resources spokesperson announced recently approximately $2.3 million in Home Energy Assistance Program money remains undistributed. On Friday, Jan. 30, the department's Bureau for Social Insurance will begin accepting names, addresses and phone numbers of persons who want to apply for program benefits.

Bureau Commissioner William Huffman said about 75,000 applications for winter heating assistance were accepted during the three full days of program operation, Jan. 5, 6 and 14. Applications were coming into local offices across the state at a rate of 4,000 per hour, he said. Making calculations based on that rate, the bureau stopped taking applications after two hours of business on Jan. 15.

"We had every reason to believe that enough people would apply in those two hours to exhaust funds for this phase of the program," Huffman said. "For some reason the number dropped off dramatically, leaving more than $2 million available to those who need it."

Another factor resulting in the undistributed balance was a higher than anticipated denial rate, Huffman said. About 6.9 percent of the applicants were denied benefits because they did not meet eligibility requirements, he said. The bureau had predicted a five percent denial rate.

Huffman estimates there is enough money left to serve as many as 10,000 households. Starting Friday workers will take names of persons interested in receiving program benefits and will contact them about making application. Requests will be processed in the order in which they are received, Huffman said.

Persons whose names were taken on Jan. 15 after the 10 a.m. program shut-down already have been contacted, he said.

"We will add names to the list and will keep contacting people to make application until this money is distributed to as many low-income households as it can serve," he said.

He said the process will be carefully monitored to make sure the bureau does not accept more applications than it has money to honor.

Huffman announced that on the fifth working day after the department stops accepting names for the regular program, local office workers will begin taking requests for the $720,000 available to households facing heating emergencies.

To be eligible for emergency benefits, a household must be without heat or facing a fuel cutoff, have an income of less than $395 per month and have liquid resources of less than $5,000. Emergency benefits up to a maximum of $200 are available only to households that have not received help through the regular Home Energy Assistance Program.

New Machine to aid farmers

For many years tobacco growers have expressed a need for a practical efficient machine to harvest tobacco.

That need has now been met through the efforts of the Ag Engineering Staff of the University of Kentucky and Four Star, Inc. of College Grove, TN. Over the past three years the University did the necessary background research and built and tested a prototype. The Four Star organization is now manufacturing the unit in time for this seasons tobacco harvest.

Powered by a 12 H.P. gasoline engine, the harvester moves along the row guiding itself by means of a row-fork steering arrangement which frees the operator to take the tobacco stalk from the rotating cut-off blade and impale it on the spear.

Simply designed and sturdily built to last through many seasons of hard use the unit sells for $3995 F.O.B. College Grove, Tenn.
