I was born an American, I will live an American, I will die an American; and I intend to perform the duties incumbent upon me in that character to the end of my career! No man can suffer too much, and no man can fall too soon, if he suffer or if he fall in the defense of the liberties and Constitution of his country.

—Daniel Webster

Freedom of religion, freedom of the press, freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus, and trial by juries impartially selected—these principles form the bright constellation which has gone before us, and guided our steps, through an age of revolution and reformation.

—Thomas Jefferson

What So Proudly We Hail

Since June 14, 1777, our stars and stripes have served as an inspiration to this nation...uniting us in times of war and in times of peace. Let this be the week for Americans to show their colors...raise the flag proudly.

Tyranny, like Hell, is not easily conquered, yet we have this consolation with us that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph. What we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly. It would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated.

—Tom Paine

In the spirit of that America, which lies hidden in some form in the aspirations of us all; in the spirit of that America for which our young men are at this moment fighting, and dying; in that spirit of liberty and of America I ask you to rise and with me pledge our faith in the glorious destiny of our beloved country.

—Judge Hand
