Do we owe our children a diploma or an education?

When the Nicholas County Board of Education meets Monday night in regular session, it is scheduled to discuss the proposal issued by the County's High School teachers that the number of credits required for graduation be increased from 18 to 20.

school diploma will earn the 20 credits with ease. It is the lazy, irresponsible student who chooses to graduate with the bare minimum that critics will speak of.

"The Nicholas County High School faculty wishes to address the Board on an increasingly serious problem. We feel that the number of credits to graduate should be raised from the current 18 to 20 credits.

"I think the people of the county should think long and hard about the impending decision, and once a personal opinion is developed, the Board should be made aware of it.

Having only been out of college for a few weeks now, I might think it strange that something akin to nostalgia has already set in.

Paycheck up, standard of living down

Many Americans are upset because they feel the cost of living is rising faster than their incomes. Often they say their paychecks have gone up but they see signs that their actual standard of living has gone down.
