Mrs. Lloyd Benjamin Wemyss

Couple wed May 16

Kimberley Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Smith of Lexington, and Lloyd Benjamin Wemyss of Waverly, Tenn., were married May 16 at Lafayette Christian Church in Lexington.

The Rev. Harold Tackett, Lafayette Christian, and the Rev. Elgin T. Smith, Greencastle, Ind., uncle of the bride, officiated.

The matron of honor was Kathy Smith of Augusta, Ga. The bridesmaids were Kim Litton of Lexington and Melissa Beal of Crescent Springs.

Jim Carman of Atlanta, Ga. served as best man. Groomsmen were Greg Smith of Lexington, brother of the bride, and Lt. Winfield Tufts of Atlanta. Ushers were David Wemyss of Paducah, twin brother of the groom, and Lt. Bob Knapp of Dayton, Ohio.

Arrangements of spring flowers, baskets of palm leaves and lighted candleabras formed the setting for the exchange of vows. Several wedding songs were presented by organist, Dr. Arthur Harvey. He also sang "Sunrise, Sunset" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown with a chapel train, fitted waist, and long sleeves. The back of the dress fastened with a neck-to-waist row of satin covered buttons. The walking length veil was attached to a headpiece of ivory antique lace. Mrs. James T. Moore Jr., a close friend of the bride, had worn the gown on her wedding day and her mother had worn the lace in the headpiece at her wedding. She carried an ivory fan, from her antique collection, with fresh spring flowers attached.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore light blue floor length dresses with accordion pleated skirts. They carried bouquets of a variety of fresh spring flowers.

The reception was held in the fellowship hall following the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered cake, topped with fresh spring flowers. Satin rice roses were passed out at the reception by Tracy Shaw and Jennifer Brueckner, cousins of the bride. Lisa Shaw, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Elaine Evans and Genny Wemyss, sisters of the groom, joined friends of the bride as servers at the reception.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Youie Shaw of Carlisle.

Kay's Kitchen

By Kay Fisher

A beef roast is too expensive not to use every morsel, and I have been experimenting with the "left-over" roast. After all, one does get tired of the usual hash, no matter what you spoon it over. So far I have come up with two good recipes. You-might want to try them. And for those of you who have asked for them, here they are.

FRIED HASH

You have to use your head about how much of any one ingredient to use. It depends on how much meat you have, and how many you will be serving. I'll give you the proportions I used and you can go from there.

1 cup cooked roast beef, diced, not too small
2 small to medium potatoes
1 medium onion
Salt
½ teaspoon thyme
¼ cup fresh parsley, minced, or about 1 tablespoon dried parsley
Margarine
Vegetable oil

Peel and slice or dice potatoes and cook with salt to taste until done. Drain and set aside. In frying pan, with enough margarine and oil, about half and half of each, cook onion until transparent, but not brown. Add to potatoes along with the thyme, parsley and meat. Turn into a bowl and refrigerate overnight to marinate. When ready to cook, put enough margarine and oil in frying pan, about ¼ inch deep, and when hot turn hash ingredients into pan and press down, smoothing sides. Lower heat and brown slowly. Under side should be crisp, turn and brown other side.

The first time I made this I had difficulty turning the entire thing, so the next time I made the ingredients into mounds then flattened somewhat. It was much easier to turn the smaller cakes.

I don't guess the margarine and oil combination for frying is absolutely necessary, but it gives a nice flavor. With this you need only serve a green vegetable or tossed salad with bread of your choice.

BEEF STROGANOFF

2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2 cups cooked, diced roast beef, about the size you would use for regular stroganoff
¼ cup margarine
¼ pound mushrooms, sliced (about 2 cups) (I used a 4-ounce can, pieces, juice and all)
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
½ cup small curd cottage cheese
½ cup mayonnaise
2 or 3 tablespoons dry white wine
Cooked noodles

Mix together flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat in flour mixture. Melt margarine in skillet over medium heat. Brown meat on all sides, turning as needed. Add mushrooms, onions and garlic; saute, stirring frequently, about 6 minutes or until tender. Mix together cottage cheese, mayonnaise and wine; stir into beef and vegetables. Heat over low heat, stirring occasionally, about 10 minutes until thoroughly heated. Serve over noodles.

This may be made ahead of time, refrigerated and heated when ready to serve.

It takes a unique publisher to produce a unique newspaper

Because of its reputation for reporting world events with accuracy and insight, The Christian Science Monitor has earned a unique place among the world's newspapers. But there's a more fundamental reason it's unique: It's published by a church.

The two facts are no coincidence. Why? Because the church publishes the Monitor for a very special purpose: to benefit all humanity. How? By providing an incisive, balanced, reliable source of world news and analysis. By helping to uncover the solutions, as well as the challenges, behind today's headlines. And by maintaining a compassionate outlook on the issues that affect people's lives.
