The "move to the Sun Belt" by American business and industry has been a favorite topic of the national media in the past year or so. They tell us that industry traditionally located in the northeastern United States and the upper Midwest, was and is being lured southward by the deep South to California.

But observers of Kentucky's business climate are noticing a more subtle shift in the Sun Belt, some industries are relocating here from more northern cities. The disturbing part of the shift is that a noticeable number of Kentucky companies are making moves of their own, further south.

Don't act your age.

As a child you were probably constantly on the go—running, playing, playing. Just because you're over 60 doesn't mean you can't enjoy exercise. Fact is, regular exercise has the same benefits for you now as it did when you were younger.

Stay young and healthy is one thing you can do to help hold off the effects of aging. You can't avoid aging, but you can control the rate of aging.
