Some 4,000 Kentuckians will be crowding the primary ballots this year for elected offices across the state, says John Craig, director of the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance.
 Although rules, regulations and laws applying to campaigns and elections in the state are covered in a manual issued by the registry, Craig said there are still some areas which have caused problems for candidates.
 "One area which candidates frequently overlook is filing copies of their financial reports with the county clerk of the county of their residence at the same time they file with the registry," Craig said.
 Another area, Craig said, is when financial reports should be filed with the registry. Primary reporting due dates for 1981 are:
 — April 24, 32-day pre-primary report.
 — May 14, 12-day pre-primary report.
 — June 25, post-primary report.
 Craig said candidates should be sure to follow the schedule for filing their financial reports with the registry. He warned that if the reports are not filed with the registry within five days after their due dates, the reports will be considered delinquent.
 All reports to the registry are required to show the name, address and occupation of all contributors giving more than $100 either as a single contribution, or when multiple contributions are made by a contributor, at the point the multiple contributions are more than $100, Craig said.
 Craig also advised candidates to keep these regulations in mind:
 — Contributions or loans by a candidate to his or her campaign are to be reported in the same manner as contributions from other trustees or candidates or their trustees are required to maintain accurate records of all their receipts and expenditures.
 — Candidates should note that all financial reports are required to be filed, even though the candidate may lose the election.
 — All campaign receipts are to be deposited in a candidate's or committee's campaign bank account. All expenditures are to be made by check drawn on that account.
 — No candidate or committee shall accept a cash contribution in excess of $100. This applies cumulatively during an election.
 Anonymous contributions in excess of $50 may not be used or expended. If the contributor cannot be identified, the contribution reverts to the state.
 Corporate contributions of money or anything of value, either direct or indirect, are prohibited, but this does not prevent the use of corporate funds in support of, or opposition to, public issues.
 Attorney General Steven L. Beshear gave the opinion, which also withdrew an earlier opinion on the matter, Oct. 8, 1980. The new opinion, OAG 81-27, notes that the audit summary and financial statement "are two different creatures under the various applicable laws, and the publishing of one is not a substitute for publishing the other."
 Michael L. Judy, general counsel for the Kentucky Press Association, requested that the attorney general's office reconsider the earlier opinion.

ASCS farm notes—

The County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) would like to remind tobacco producers to return their marketing cards as soon as all sales are completed for their farm. Failure to return a marketing card could result in the quota being reduced to zero. Baled burley cards must also be returned.
 Burley quota notices for 1981 will be mailed to all producers on March 16. Notices will not be mailed to those producers who have not returned their marketing card.
 In reviewing marketing cards already returned, it appears that the amount of tobacco sold for Nicholas County will be higher than expected. As it looks right now, there will be approximately two-thirds of the county's quota. Earlier estimates put this year's crop at approximately 50 to 60 percent of the effective quota.
 Tobacco leases for 1981 will be taken in the ASCS office starting March 16. A board is available in the ASCS Office for anyone wishing to list their tobacco for lease for 1981.

Financial report must be published

Cities must publish both a summary of the audit report of their finances and also fully follow the publication requirements for a financial statement set out in KRS 220.223 according to one of several attorney general's opinions recently released.
 Attorney General Steven L. Beshear gave the opinion, which also withdrew an earlier opinion on the matter, Oct. 8, 1980. The new opinion, OAG 81-27, notes that the audit summary and financial statement "are two different creatures under the various applicable laws, and the publishing of one is not a substitute for publishing the other."
 Michael L. Judy, general counsel for the Kentucky Press Association, requested that the attorney general's office reconsider the earlier opinion.

Most hunting dates to be unchanged

Next fall's small game hunting seasons will have a familiar look to them. With the exception of a different closing date for rabbit hunting, season dates and bag limits remain unchanged from last year, according to regulations approved by the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission at its quarterly meeting in Frankfort March 3-2.
 The first phase of the squirrel season will open on the usual third Saturday in August (Aug. 15) and will run through Oct. 31, reopening with the other small game seasons on the traditional third Thursday of November (Nov. 19).
 Squirrel season will continue through Dec. 31, rabbit hunting through Jan. 31, quail through Feb. 15 and grouse through Feb. 28. Bag limits remain at 15 daily and 12 in possession (after two or more days of hunting) for squirrel, 4 and 8 for rabbit, 4 and 16 for quail and 4 and 1 for grouse.
 The farber season will run from Nov. 19 through Jan. 31. There are no daily or possession limits on trapping farber and none on taking them by other methods except for a limit on raccoons of one person or three per party of three or more hunters.
 In other action, the Fish and Wildlife Commission included the coyote on the list of animals which can be taken with predator calls and limited the use of these calls to daylight hours only.
 The commission also voted not to permit all day dove shooting if this option is again made available from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Dove, waterfowl and other migratory bird seasons will be set when federal guidelines are announced in mid to late summer.

Bardstown board member elected president of KSBA

Charles Bruch, a member of the Bardstown Board of Education, was elected president of the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA) at that organization's 46th Annual Convention in Louisville, Feb. 23-24.
 Bruch, who has served as a member of the Executive Committee of the Association and as vice-president, is manager of Barton Distillery in Bardstown.
 Robert V. Evans, chairman of the Fort Thomas Board of Education, was elected as vice-president.

Over 800 school board members, school superintendents and other registrants attended the three-day meeting in Louisville. They adopted several resolutions stating KSBA's positions, including a statement requesting:
 — The Governor and the General Assembly to give budget priority to the essential funding needs of our public schools. Increased levels of financial support are necessary to maintain current programs. Any further major budget reductions will unavoidably lower the quality of education in our schools.
 The Convention was climaxed by the presentation of the F.L. Dupree Award for Creative School Administration, to Francis McNeil, Superintendent of Hopkins County Schools. The Dupree Award is given annually by the family of the late F.L. Dupree, an investment banker and one-time member of the Kentucky school superintendent's board most outstanding in leadership.

KU says

 than the individual consumer, the officers said that double-digit inflation has resulted in huge increases in costs to the company. For example, 40-foot wood poles have gone up 125 percent; cost, aluminum wire, 140 percent; pole crossarms, 220 percent; pole-type transformers, 61 percent; and copper wire, 52 percent.
 They also pointed out that the increases in the cost of building power plants have been just as dramatic.
 In 1971, Unit #2 at KUP's Breckenridge plant was put into service at a cost of $125 per kilowatt. Unit #3 at the Ghent plant will be completed during 1981 at a cost of $460 per kw — an increase of 364 percent over Breckenridge. And looking ahead, the company's representatives said the proposed Hancock plant's first unit is expected to cost $131 per kw, which is an increase of 146 percent over the unit at Ghent.
 The company's officers said they understood and appreciated the customers' concern about rising electric rates, but although rates have recently gone up, KUP's rates continue to compare favorably nationwide. The group was told that KU employees are working to keep costs as low as possible.
