The 1981 Kentucky Judicial Conference will be held at the Hyatt Regency in Louisville on May 13-13. Registration is scheduled from 4 to 6 p.m. on Monday, Mlly 11. The annual Judicial Conference is the only occasion during the year when all of Kentucky's trial and appellate judges are gathered at once.

The conference is sponsored by the Kentucky Court of Justice. The program was developed by the Judicial Conference Planning Committee with the assistance of the Division of Education of the Administrative Office of the Courts. Conference Planning Committee members are: Justice Robert F. Stephens, Judge John P. Hayes, Circuit Judges James S. Chenault and Henry V. Pennington, and District Judges John R. Adams and Howard N. Bowles.

On Tuesday, May 12, Creed C. Black, Chairman and Publisher of the Lexington Herald-Leader, will address the judges concerning the public's perception of the courts.

Edward B. McConnell, Director of the National Center for State Courts, Williamsburg, Va., will discuss the future of the judiciary from a national perspective. The topic of his address is "Courts...A View Into the Eighties."

Recent federal decisions will be examined by the Honorable James Duke Cameron, Chief Justice of the Arizona Supreme Court. The Honorable Morton Hollcrock, a practicing attorney in Owensboro, will bring the judges up-to-date on recent Kentucky decisions.

Two panel discussions will highlight the program. On Tuesday, Milton W. Metz, WHAS Radio and TV, will moderate a panel on intergovernmental cooperation. Panelists include Oliver H. Barbes Jr., Esquire; Jailer Lloyd B. Berry; Secretary Grady Stumbo, Department for Human Resources; Secretary Neil J. Summer course through PEPP

High school students interested in becoming doctors or dentists should apply now to attend a four-week preparatory course this summer which will be held at the University of Kentucky. There will be no cost to the students and stipends are available.

Twenty-five high school students graduating this spring will be selected to participate in a four-week summer course. The curriculum will include meeting and working with medical and dental school faculty and students. Additionally, reading and study skills instruction, career testing, life planning, writing skills development, and problem solving sessions will be included. Interested students should see their high school guidance counselor or contact the Professional Education Preparation Program (PEPP), Kentucky Council on Higher Education, Highway 127 South, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Applications must be received by May 15.

The summer course is being offered through PEPP enacted by the 1980 General Assembly. The program is aimed at addressing the problem of inadequate health manpower distribution in Kentucky.

Through PEPP, the Council on Higher Education is charged with increasing the number of students attending medical and dental school from counties designated as medically or dentally underserved.

PEPP-eligible counties are those designated by the federal government as having medical or dental manpower shortages. High school guidance counselors in PEPP counties and the Council on Higher Education have a list of eligible counties. The Council's telephone number is (502) 564-6483.

Students selected under the PEPP program will be provided additional services during high school and college. The services will help students prepare for testing, improve scientific training and skills required for entry into medical or dental school. Help will continue for PEPP students admitted to medical or dental school.

BEEF, PORK PRICES TO CLIMB THIS SUMMER

Consumers can save grocery dollars this summer by filling their freezers now with favorite beef and pork cuts, as prices are expected to rise nearly 20 cents a pound by August.

With fewer hogs and cattle bound for market this spring, pork and beef supplies will be reduced this summer and will bring higher prices in the supermarket, according to Dr. A. Lee Meyer, Extension economist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Poultry production and prices should remain stable, he said.

Beef prices, stable since last August, will continue near current levels into May, then will rise gradually an average 15-20 cents a pound by summer's end, said Meyer. The higher prices are predicted because the number of fed cattle that will go to market before June is down nearly five percent, a fairly substantial drop, he said.

The supply of non-fed beef, used for ground beef and processed meats, will dwindle the most and result in much higher ground beef prices.

Special workshop for ministers

On Thursday, May 7, the Paris Bourbon County Ministerial Association and the Association for Retarded Citizens, Bourbon County, will sponsor a workshop for area ministers on the topic: "Ministering to People with Mental Retardation and their Families."

The workshop will be conducted by Dr. Bill Berdine, Associate Professor, Department of Special Education, University of Kentucky. Dr. Berdine is in his ninth year as coordinator of the Personnel Preparation Program for those working with persons who are trainable mentally handicapped. He is primarily interested in community based services for people with moderate and severe retardation, and is active in the deinstitutionalization movement.

The workshop will be held from 9 to 12 a.m. at the First Church of God, 1438 South High Street, Paris.

Following the workshop, ministers are invited to a luncheon at Adult Training Center, 21 Ardery Place, in Paris.

There is no cost for the workshop or the luncheon.

Army ROTC Basic Camp will attract 4,000 students

This summer over 4,000 college students are descending on Fort Knox for an authentic look at Army life. They will also spend six weeks of living and working like a soldier. It's called Army ROTC Basic Camp and it's part of the ROTC Two-Year Program.

Basic Camp is specifically designed for graduates of two-year or community colleges who have not taken Army ROTC during their first two years.

These young men and women from schools across the country are getting a taste of the Army and ROTC with no obligation to enroll in ROTC when they return to their campuses.

"We want every student to have the opportunity to get the benefits of Army ROTC, to have the opportunity of securing a commission as a second lieutenant in the Army," said Major General Daniel W. French, Deputy Chief of staff for ROTC at the Army's Training and Doctrine Command. "Basic Camp is a key part of our Two-Year Program which allows a student to catch up on the ROTC training missed as a freshman and sophomore. After completing Basic Camp, students are eligible to enroll in the Advanced Course and gain an Army commission in just two years."

Not everybody finds the Army to be their cup of tea. But on the other hand, Basic Camp gives the Army the chance to observe the students and determine who has what it takes to make a go of it as a cadet or officer. Not everybody has it.

"What this means," General French said, "is that the students get an accurate evaluation of their potential through hands-on training in a field environment. At the same time, we gauge their leadership and management capabilities. All of these qualities are musts if a student is accepted into Army ROTC. If the student completes Basic Camp successfully, he or she will be eligible to enroll in the Advanced Course of Army ROTC. This is an excellent predictor for both student and the Army."

Students are paid for their expenses to and from the camp, and also receive over $500 plus room and board for their six-week training period. Students may also compete for a two-year full tuition scholarship while at the Basic Camp. Army ROTC is available at 279 host colleges and universities as well as at 600 cross-enrolled schools, and over 40 ROTC extension centers across the country. Starting dates for the camp are May 17, 25, 31, June 28, and July 5 and 12.

Appaloosa Classics are May 16 and 17 at Ky. Horse Park

The call of "Run Appaloosa Run!" should bring the crowd to its feet at the Central Kentucky Appaloosa Spring Classics I and II, scheduled May 16 and 17 at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington.

"It's horse against horse and rider against rider," says show organizer John Muth. "The winner might have to go ten times and eliminate ten other horses. So the guts of the riders and the stamina of these Appaloosas really shows up. And the crowd picks its favorite and gets into it, too."

The two shows, each scored separately though held consecutively, will feature 54 classics each day, among them high-powered performance contests such as the Nez Perce Stake Race.

Muth says much of the excitement of the shows comes from the hardiness of the horses and the drama of the elimination races. Each team of horse and rider tries to beat not the clock, but instead the pair galloping next to it. In these classes, the horses race around poles and barrels.

The show organizer says that in addition to stakes races, there will be halter classes, western and English pleasure classes and jumper classes. Horses and riders from many western and southern states are expected to participate.

The show, held in conjunction with a May 16 select Appaloosa sale, will begin at 8 a.m. each day in the Horse Park's Centerfield Arena. The show is sponsored by the Central Kentucky Appaloosa Horse Club, a non-profit organization, and entries will be accepted the days of the shows. Admission for spectators is free with a general admission ticket to the Horse Park. General admission tickets are $1.50 for adults and $1 for youngsters 7-12. Children six and under are admitted free.

More information on the shows may be had by contacting John Muth at (606) 233-4536.

Appaloosa Sale scheduled May 16 at Horse Park

Seventy of those familiar horses whose signatures are their spotted rumps, will go before the auctioneer's gavel May 16 at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington.

The sales pavilion in the Big Barn will be the site of the Classic Select Sale of Appaloosas. Auction organizer Chip Muth says show horses, broodmares and stallions have been chosen for the sale.

There are only two such select sales held each year in the nation, he says, and all of the national Appaloosa bloodlines will be represented in this one. The auctioneers will be Arthur Hayden and John Darlin.

Muth says horses in the sale will come from as far away as Colorado, Kansas and Florida. Though no more horses will be accepted for consignment, interested people and prospective buyers are welcome, of course.

The sale will begin at 7:30 p.m., and the horses can be screened in the Big Barn after 12:30 p.m. General admission to the park is charged from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., with tickets for adults $1.50 and youngsters 7-12, $1. Children six and under are admitted free.

More information on the sale may be had by contacting Chip Muth at (606) 233-4536.
