Tractor trailer runs off U.S. 68; injury on KY 36

A pair of serious traffic accidents in the county this week were handled by Constable Ronald McDonald. One of the accidents involved a tractor trailer truck on U.S. 68 and tied up traffic on U.S. 68 for over four hours, while the other resulted in an injury to a local woman.

West Virginia and Missouri last week and Lexington confirmed earlier views that quality of the crop is good to excellent.

Some of the directors reported indications that tobacco is weighing light and heavy preparations to get it on the market are resulting in delivery of some wet burley. Baling is more in evidence, especially in the Bluegrass area. With baled burley fully price-supported some markets are showing up with 50 to 75 percent of tobacco in bales.

Cooperation of farmers is needed

Farmers, your cooperation is needed on end of year surveys. Dave Williamson, Statistician in Charge of the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, says participation on these surveys is voluntary, but very necessary to arrive at accurate agricultural statistics and assure that your area is properly represented. Farmer responses are kept confidential and used only in county, state and national estimates.

Commission warns consumers of coal and wood stove injuries

Coal and wood burning stoves are in, and burn injuries are increasing. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, which keeps tabs on injuries to adults and children caused by consumer products says that some 9,000 people were rushed to hospital emergency rooms last year to treat burns suffered from contact with coal and wood stoves and free standing fireplaces. There were also reports of house fires triggered by improperly maintained or installed stoves.

CPSC notes that a number of accident patterns have developed since the release to popularity of the stove. Inexpert placement of the stove. Excessively hot flues and stoves can set fire to nearby walls, floors and furnishings. A minimum three-foot clearance is recommended by the National Fire Protection Association on all sides of stoves that do not carry certification by a recognized testing organization. No clearance should be installed with less clearance than that recommended by the manufacturer.

Body contact with the stove or flue. Accidents involving the hazard of clothing igniting on contact with the stove, there have been reports of accidental falls against the stove itself, thus resulting in painful burns. Consumers should be sure that all family members should stay away from the stove when it is in use.

Burns from using flammable fluids. Gasoline and other volatile liquids should never be used or stored where they might come near an ignition source, such as the stove. Serious fires occur each year when these vapors explode in the home.

Coy back

Council" which would forbid the Mayor of firing a policeman without majority vote of the Council. The response said that if the ordinance was valid and applied to Coy, then he "has never been discharged, but, has failed to report to the place of his employment" since May 29. The response once again repeated the claim of Mayor Power and the City's attorney that the Mayor has the authority to fire policemen "under KRS 83A.060".

A full account of the settlement will be reported in The Mercury as soon as that document becomes a matter of public record.
