Correction note . . .

In a political advertisement for Lovell (Bob) Livingood that ran in last week's Mercury, the ad copy stated incorrectly that "...officers of each precinct will be told to show each voter how to 'Write-In' his name on the voting machine."

Election officers will instruct only those persons who request instruction on the write-in procedure.

KRS 117.265 states that election officers "...shall upon the request of any voter instruct such voter on how to cast a write-in vote."

Please note the change in this week's ad.

two percent discount. From Jan. 1 to Jan. 31, 1982, the taxes will be collected at face value. After Feb. 1, there will be a six percent late penalty assessed.

The Council also discussed the adoption of an insurance policy to bond the councilmen and mayor in case of lawsuit. Costs were discussed with local agent M.C. Blair, but Council decided to table the business until other bids could be taken.

The Council then briefly discussed ordering city stickers for the next year. The point was brought up that the Council consider purchasing the stickers for the next two or three years in advance, since the cost would be less at present rates than it might be next year with possible inflationary pressures and manufacturing cost increases. The matter was tabled for further discussion.

In a final item of business, Council discussed and set the date for Carlisle's Halloween trick-or-treat, due to several recent inquiries from church and civic groups. Council decided that the official time for trick-or-treat would be Friday night, Oct. 30, between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Scott said she could not predict when local taxpayers would actually receive their bills. It will all depend on how long it takes to receive the information from the computer company, and how many corrections are necessary.

Revisiting Bald Hill

duced an instrument of music (organ or piano) into the worship.

None of the principals are still living but I talked recently with Mrs. Charles McWhorter and Walter Flora who live in Carlisle. Both of them remember my meetings at Bald Hill and attended as did their parents. They recall the fact that the instrument was placed in the building but neither recalls the date.

Mr. Flora told me that soon after the Bald Hill Christian Church began to use a mechanical instrument in worship a brother Moore came to preach in a meeting and convinced a majority of the members to give up the instrument and to name the congregation a church of Christ. The Ogden family especially agreed with this position and removed the piano and called the group the church of Christ. Some of the members contended for the status quo but were outnumbered.

Mr. Flora says that those who wanted to use instrumental music in worship filed suit to retain the building. No record was found in the courthouse of a court action, but the pro-musical instrument group left and met for a while in a schoolhouse. They later erected a building and met in it as a Christian Church. Bald Hill continued as a Church of Christ.

"On Sept. 12, 1943, Tony F. Dotson called the small congregation of the Bald Hill Church together after worship services for the purpose of selecting a trustee to take the place of Bruce M. Hanum, deceased. Max Ogden, minister of the Church at Monticello, Ky., but who is a member of the Bald Hill congregation, was named, nominated and he being unanimously elected as one of the three trustees of the Bald Hill Church of Christ." Signed: Laura Ogden Dotson, Sec., Pvt. Leslie McVey, Min., Tony F. Dotson.

Laura Dotson and Max Ogden were children of A.F. Ogden and Tony Dotson was Laura's husband. Leslie McVey was the son of Anderson McVey. Evidently he was serving in the armed forces during World War II. He was later killed in action. The congregation which was "small" in 1943 continued to decline in membership until there were only five or six women left to conduct the worship services. The congregation quit meeting in 1955.

Last contact

In 1950 while serving as Speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives in Frankfort, I received a letter from Laura Dotson inviting me to come to Bald Hill and preach. The invitation could not be accepted because of my work with the General Assembly, graduate study at the University of Kentucky and preaching for the church in Nicholasville. That is the last contact that I had with the Bald Hill Church. There are some regrets now that I did not find time to go to Bald Hill in 1950, but it seems to be but useless longings to entertain such regrets.

Hardships

It is certainly disturbing to think of the hardships which the Bald Hill Church suffered in the light of the great influence which the leaders of the Restoration Movement had on Nicholas County during the early 1800's.

Barton W. Stone came to the Concord Presbyterian Church as a young minister in 1798 at the same time that he became the minister of the Cane Ridge Presbyterian Church in Bourbon County. The things which happened at Cane Ridge also happened at Concord. Both joined Stone in breaking away from the Transylvania Presbytery and forming the Springfield Presbytery. Both voted to dissolve the Springfield Presbytery in 1804. Concord and Cane Ridge both agreed to call themselves Christian Churches. In 1801 Stone made a trip to Logan County to investigate a revival which was arousing so much interest in that section. Dr. Alonzo W. Fortune wrote that:

"When Mr. Stone returned to Concord and related what he had witnessed, a revival began similar to the one in Logan County which he was describing. There were the same physical manifestations in the services at Concord and these were more pronounced in the service at Cane Ridge."

However, the great revival at Cane Ridge in August 1801 was more dramatic because it attracted more attention and larger crowds. So historians have tended to write more about Cane Ridge than about Concord and the Disciples of Christ have enshrined the Cane Ridge Meetinghouse as the beginning of the Restoration Movement, though Concord took the same position as Cane Ridge in 1804.

Conclusion

Early in the 1800's a Christian Church was established in Carlisle and it appears that the Concord Church and the Carlisle Church operated as one congregation, meeting in two separate places in the same county. Concord was less than three miles southeast of Carlisle. John Rogers became the minister of the Carlisle Church in 1819 and served over 47 years. A tombstone marks his grave in the Carlisle Cemetery.

Samuel Rogers, a brother to John, wrote of the settlement of their parents at a place midway between Millersburg in Bourbon County and Carlisle in 1809. Samuel Rogers was influenced to preach the gospel by brother Rueben Dooley during a meeting which Dooley conducted at Concord. Samuel returned to Carlisle in his latter days and became associated with his brother as ministers of the Carlisle Church. During that period they held meetings in Jessamine County where I now preach. Samuel Rogers was buried at Cynthiana in Harrison County.

The Carlisle Christian Church divided in 1960 and the group which left became identified with the Disciples of Christ branch of the Christian Church. This congregation met for a while in the old Concord meetinghouse but later erected a building in Carlisle. The Concord churchhouse was destroyed by a severe windstorm a few years ago.

NCHS news...

by Larry McNabb, Rachel Herrington and Dollie Hunt

The J.R.O.T.C. at Nicholas County has been dropped this year. According to Mr. McMillen, NCHS principal, several factors were involved in the cutting of the program: No overseeing sargent has been positioned here, there is a high turnover of staff, and there was a lack of student interest.

Mr. McMillen said that in the past the ROTC students have been a great help to the school and many have benefitted from the program.

Mr. Don Smith, of Sunland Plans, helped juniors launch their magazine sales Friday. The sales campaign is to raise money for the junior-senior prom.

Prizes will be awarded to individuals selling the most magazine subscriptions. The sales will end next Monday.

The high school will soon be getting a new hot water boiler in the "old part" of the building.

The old tank, which was installed when the building was erected in 1953, developed several leaks. It will take six to eight weeks for delivery of the tank.

Water heater problems have not affected the lunchroom, however, since it is served by another heater.

Nicholas County teachers had an in-service Wednesday, Oct. 7, after school. During the in-service they watched a filmstrip on assertive discipline.

The film told steps to follow in using assertive discipline. "Teachers in their college years are not trained for handling discipline problems, and the film's narrator had a plan and steps to follow for handling behavior problems.

Area school boards to meet at elementary school tonight

School board members and school administrators from 29 area school districts will meet tonight, Oct. 15, for the annual session of the Central Kentucky Region of the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA). The dinner meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Nicholas County Elementary School in Carlisle.

Billy Hunter, Chairman of the Central Kentucky Region and Chairman of the Nicholas County Board of Education, will preside. Robert L. Hyatt, a member of the Anderson County Board of Education, serves as Vice-Chairman and Donald G. Elder, Superintendent of Nicholas County Schools, is the Regional Secretary.

The program will include a review of KSBA programs and services, and discussion of the serious operational problems of schools caused by recent state budget cuts. Members of the Central Kentucky Region Legislative Network will also meet to discuss legislative concerns for the 1982 General Assembly.

Charles J. Brauch, KSBA President and a member of the Bardstown Board of Education, noted that, "Public education in Kentucky is at a critical juncture. For the past several years, the Kentucky General Assembly has taken significant steps toward closing the gap that exists between Kentucky and the seven surrounding states in funding for public elementary and secondary education.

"In 1980-81, Kentucky spent $153 less per pupil than the average of the seven surrounding states. Kentucky ranked 36th in the nation in per-pupil expenditures and the recent state budget cuts have reduced us even more.

"The 1982 General Assembly will determine whether Kentucky will continue her climb toward offering her children an educational opportunity equal to the seven surrounding states, or whether we will take a step backward in funding for education. I believe that Kentucky's children should be her number one priority."

The KSBA Central Kentucky Region is composed of the following county school districts: Anderson, Bourbon, Boyle, Clark, Estill, Fayette, Franklin, Garrard, Harrison, Jackson, Jessamine, Lee, Lincoln, Madison, Mercer, Montgomery, Nicholas, Powell, Robertson, Rockcastle, Scott and Woodford; and the independent school districts of Berea, Burgin, Danville, Frankfort, Harrodsburg, Paris and Richmond.
