Swapping deficits

There's a reason that foot staraps and welfare have been federal programs. It was because hunger and poverty were rampant in America, and because the states and local commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal commitment to care for the poor, that the federal considerable to the star of the star to the commitment to care for the poor, that the federal considerable to the star to the star

There have, in fact, been equally good offers.
Last year, for $3,000, a group of invited foreign businessmen was promised access to a whole host of senior Reagan administration officials, bot of senior Reagan administration efficials, among them the secretary of the Treasury, the secretary of the Treasury, the secretary of commerce, and the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. That one was arranged by a private firm in collaboration with some of Reagan's closest aides, among them National Security Adviser Richard Allen, a man who has had chronic difficulty distinguishing between the public interest and his own and who has since been forced out of his job.

The foundation is absolutely right that many organizations use letters of endorsement from prominent people when they make their pitch. But they don't come with offers of access to Washington policy-makers or with the blessings of presidential advisers.

Wind-chill factor is . . . science's way of freezing you to death

Life was better before we had the wind-chill factor. I know older people are alsenys asyling it was better back then. But, in this case, "Wind-chill factor has an end ring about it. The very thought of it coglars up a silister science fiction above like the Bloo or the Andromada Strain, or something other all-embracing, insidious, ugly monster.

Before the wind-chill factor came along, people would dress up and go out into the cold and think it was part of life. Sometimes they even enjoyed it, tryiting their unfortunate relatives in West Palm Beach, who never know the Joys of an honest-to-

Wind-chill is negative thinking. If we can't have a wind-warm factor, or a warm-west factor, or at least a long-john factor, let's scrap the wind-chill factor and ignorantly freeze to death like we have in the past.

In delving into the labyrinths of the Social Security system re-cently, a congressman came up with some surprising facts:

About $1 billion a year in Social Security benefits go to persons living outside the United States. About 70 percent of those recipients are aliens who once worked in the United States, but now live elsewhere, usually in their home countries where the cost of living may be lower.

The GOA provided three extreme examples: Alien A paid in $25 nd so far has received benefits of $11,000, B paid in $161 and has received $31,000, C paid in $50 and has received $13,000, and D paid in $397 and has received $42,000.

"It would seem," the congressman said, "the law should be hanged to remove from eligibility those non-citizens who live and changed to remove from eligibility those non-citizens who live and work in the United States temporarily and who then return to their homeland and receive Social Security benefits, spending it all out
