Berea accepting applications for outstanding high schoolers

Berea College is accepting applications for its 1982 summer program for outstanding high school students, and a college experience and Monday that students from Nicholas County would receive preference in admission.
This summer's Rising Seniors Program, open to students who have completed the junior year of high school with a average, consists of college-credit courses in middle school or elementary Spanish and mathematics. The four-week session, which allows students to do intensive study in one subject, begins June 13 and continues through July 8.
Each course in the Rising Seniors Program offers one college credit, the equivalent of four semester hours. The $18 per student cost covers room and board, use of college facilities, insurance, health service and activities fees. Some full or partial scholarships are available, and each student will receive $40 for participation in Berea's on-campus work program. The college library, tennis courts, pool and gymnasium, as well as planned social activities, are available for use during the summer program.

The 20 students accepted for the middle biology program, funded in previous years by the National Science Foundation, will study in the classroom and take part in field trips, greenhouse studies and laboratory investigations. A student-oriented research project in animal behavior also is included in this course and the 7,700-acre Berea College

Watch tax credit ads

While many taxpayers can claim a legitimate tax credit for installation, storm windows, solar heating and other devices installed to reduce the energy used to heat and cool their homes, some taxpayers may be misled by false advertisements claiming that certain tax credit products qualify for the residential energy tax credit, officials from the Internal Revenue Service said.

An item qualifies for the credit if it is specifically mentioned in eligible regulations determining product eligibility. Manufacturers that advertise that their product has been certified by the IRS for the credit, but it is not necessary that the product be certified in order for taxpayers to take the credit. Furthermore, taxpayers should be aware that some manufacturers have falsely advertised that an ineligible product is eligible for the credit or has been "certified."

At the farm level, prices for several Kentucky-grown commodities showed improvement during the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service's most recent reporting period. Hogs reflected the largest gain, up better than 11 percent. Corn and soybeans were up slightly, but remained more than one dollar-per-bushel below year-ago levels. Feeder calves plunged to their lowest level in three years.

Oversize farm prices slipped up 1.4 percent during the month, but remained 1.7 percent lower than the same period in 1981.

Hopkinsville had the lowest local marketbasket average during February, while Jackson checked in at the high spot. Overall, Kentucky Farm Bureau women volunteer surveyors checked supermarket tabs in 23 Kentucky communities.

Those local averages are Hopkinsville, 21.83; Morehead, 21.81; Timpocresville, 20.21; Selmer, 20.77; Owensboro, 20.63; Greenburg, 20.54; Louisville, 20.54; Lexington, 20.53; Brandenburg, 20.16; Glasgow and Georgetown, 20.23; Sebree, 20.20; Greenup, 20.26; Covington, 20.42; Murray, 22.34; Henderson, 22.42; Louisville, 22.44; Stanford, 22.46; and Jackson.

Court to prosecute

After discussing the job, which involves a lot of heavy work involving a loader bucket, Mitchell said "it looks like it is worth more than $1.50."
"Flank agreed, but still talked at the five dollar wage Flynn suggested. Flank suggested starting Flank up at four dollars an hour," said "if he proves to be a good hand, give him a raise."
The court set his starting wage at four dollars an hour. He could begin work Friday.
After discussing several subverts in the county that needed training, the court accepted Magistrate E. M. Myers recommendation to hire Wallace Myers had mentioned Williams as a possible county employ at the last meeting when the court first considered filling the crusher position. Williams was approved for the county at least three different times in the past, according to Flank. No wage was decided upon for him. Ecton was

It. Last year $2,000 was budgeted for that account.

Getriebe said the loss of this fund is one of the most undesirable. "There are actually some children who have a hard time coming to school because they don't have any clothes to wear," he said.

Another striking feature in comparing this year's Title I budget to that of the previous year is found in the amount of money carried over from one year to the next.

In the 1981 fiscal year $26,200 was budgeted as carryover. This year, only $6,445 was earmarked for kicking off next year's program.

Just how much of a cut could the local Title I program stand?
According to Getriebe, "Anything over 10 percent would break our backs." If a compromise could be worked out to cut the proposed reduction in half, Getriebe said things would still very tight. "A 15 percent cut would make life difficult indeed," he said.

A 15 percent cut would reduce the budget to $113,940. That "might" cover salaries and associated fund charges, but nothing else, Getriebe said.

Unless the local school board would pick up the slack created by the loss of federal funds, Title I could see some dramatic changes in the local school system. "And I don't think they can afford it," Getriebe said.

What would happen if the full 23 percent cut made it through Congress?
"I'd probably open that window and jump out," Getriebe said from his second story office.

Food prices rise again dairy products and lettuce, surveyors found. The five pack jumped nine percent during the month, while flyers were up nine cents a pound, eggs moved up five cents a dozen, tomatoes increased 10 cents a pound and corn oil was up 10 cents a bushel.

All seven dairy products on the survey showed declines, with the group down an average two percent. Lettuce dropped to a more seasonal price level, dropping 23 cents from last month's record $1.25 per pound average. The beef cuts were down slightly, but the beef group as a whole remained virtually unchanged.

Flank just had these when he comes to doing for this county."
"I'm going to advertise for bids for gasoline and oil to be used by the county. The bids will be opened at the March 17 court meeting."
